58 Japanese Deported From Turlock District By White Vigilantes

Orientals Flee From Region With Families After Drastic Action; Ousted Men Roughly Handled by Mob

ARRESTS EXPECTED TODAY

(By Associated Press)

TURLOCK, Cal., July 20.—A general exodus of Japanese field workers and their families from this district is taking place today following the deportation to Keyes, five miles north, of 58 Japanese male workers by white men members of a union of fruit and melon pickers, the authorities announced.

The Japanese here who witnessed the enforced departure of their countrymen complained to the police that they were roughly handled and in some instances were robbed.

The authorities said that the members of the mob, which numbered about 75, threatened to burn one Japanese hotel and two Japanese bunk houses in order to hasten the departure of their occupants.

Fifteen Japanese were taken from Gerard ranch, near town, and the remainder from various other properties. The police expected to arrest some of the mob leaders today.

The Japanese leaving today are going in all directions, but the greater number are headed for Stockton, Keyes and Modesto.

The police were notified that a number of Japanese taken to Keyes by the mob were placed on board a north-bound freight train, which was flagged. The Japanese submitted in most instances without even a protest.

The Japanese had been brought into the district under contract to white ranchers to pick the fruit and melon crop.

ACCEPT LOWER PAY THAN WHITES.

They were to be paid .16 cents a crate, whereas white workers were getting 25 and 26 cents, and this is given as the principal cause of the trouble.

The deportation followed, by a few days, a similar deportation of Japanese workers from the Livingston (Merced county) fruit district. In the former instance, however, the farmers of the Livingston region were held to be responsible for the enforced departure of the Japanese.

The mob worked silently, and was aided to some extent by the full moon. The Japanese were aroused and given a certain time in which to dress and collect their belongings and were then ordered on to motor trucks and driven away. Wives and children of the deported were not molested and no effort was made to disturb the Japanese who have leaseholds on lands here.

The act of the mob followed a protest to the Turlock Chamber of Commerce yesterday by the Fruit and Melon Packers' Union and the refusal of the chamber to pass a resolution upholding the protest.

The chamber issued a statement, however, criticising white farmers who brought Japanese workers into the district.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Action on the Turlock situation is being withheld by the Japanese consulate here until detailed advices are received from Japanese and American participants, S. Yada, Japanese Consul-general here, said today.

"However, I feel certain that the American government should protect the Japanese residents in this country, for in our country the Japanese government protects the Americans."

Britain and France Exchange Sharp Notes Over Advisability of Sending Reinforcements to Allied the Troops

LONDON, July 20 (By the Associated Press)—It was stated in authoritative quarters today that informal suggestions have been made for American intervention in the Upper Silesian trouble, which it is feared will threaten open hostilities.

PARIS, July 20.—(By The Associated Press.)—The British, Italian and French commissioners in Upper Silesia have sent in a report in which they jointly demand that reinforcements be sent to the allied troops of occupation, it was announced here today.

This recommendation came almost simultaneously with the receipt of a note by the French foreign office from the British government in which Great Britain insisted there was no necessity for sending more troops into the district. The note was in reply to the recent communication in which the French government notified Great Britain that more reinforcements were needed urgently.

Vessel With 100 Passengers and Crew Picked Up; Making Port.

With a hundred passengers and a crew of sixty on board the Pacific Steamship company's steamer Queen drifted for hours off the rugged and menacing coast of Point Sur, near Monterey, until a wireless message brought help today from the steamship Farragut which is now towing the crippled ship to port.

Word from the stricken vessel is that an engine mishap which occurred 100 miles south of the Golden Gate, caused it to drift helplessly for hours. Passengers, sensing the danger and knowing the character of the rocky coast line, were given cause for apprehension as the night hours wore off without help arriving. Absence of a high wind was in their favor.

SHIP 138 MILES SOUTH OF S. F.

The Pacific Steamship Company despatched the tug Sea Monarch to meet the Queen last night and a line was passed to the drifting vessel at 7:40 o'clock this morning. Her location at that time was 138 miles south of San Francisco. It is expected that the Farragut, the Sea Monarch and their tow will be in port here tomorrow. The Farragut is another vessel of the Pacific Steamship line.

Officials of the company said today that at no time was the ship endangered or completely disabled. They say the trouble was due to the difficulty with the sea pumps and boilers. The Queen was on the way from San Pedro to San Francisco.

VESSEL DISABLED LAST JANUARY.

The Queen was disabled in a gale off the Oregon coast on January 9 and at that time the Admiral Dewey of the same line went to the rescue. Passengers on the Dewey were all asleep and only a few knew that the engines had been reversed and that the vessel was speeding in a mad race to rescue the sister ship before the winds could drive her on the rocks. When the Dewey found the Queen, the latter was ten miles at sea off Point Arena. She had all her available canvas on her masts and was fighting the winds to keep offshore.

England Reported Ready to Flood Ireland With Troops if Parley Between De Valera and Ulsterites Breaks

General Smuts Continues His Efforts to Bring Hostile London Conference Is Vain Elements Together, But

By CHAS. M. McCANN,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, July 20.—With the Irish peace negotiations quivering in the balance today, it was learned authoritativelythat failure of the conference will be followed by an unparalleled campaign of military repression in Ireland.

If the present effort toward peace is unsuccessful, every power of the government will be exerted to utterly crush the Sinn Fein. High officials informed the United Press that plans have been prepared which will virtually turn Ireland into a vast military prison, crushing the country's economic life and putting a tag on every Irish citizen.

The danger that the plans may become operative was shown in the attitude of the various conferees today. Premier Craig of Ulster was back in Belfast with General Smuts on his trail, apparently in an effort to arrange his participation in some way in further negotiations.

Sinn Fein delegates here hesitated to comment on Craig's departure, after asserting that Ulster would demand recognition in the settlement.

LLOYD GEORGE'S HAND IS SEEN.

Sinn Feiners did not know whether Sir James was talking for the benefit of Ulsterites or whether he had the approval of Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain. If the latter were the case, it was certain the Sinn Feiners would withdraw immediately from the conferences.

Meanwhile, Desmond Fitzgerald, chief propagandist for the Sinn Feiners, has asserted positively that Ulster will not be admitted to the main conference, but will have to treat with Southern Ireland after peace is arranged with great Britain.

In view of the apparent deadlock, British officials were serious in proceeding with plans for blotting out the Sinn Fein. Among these proposals are:

1—Declaration of martial law in all Sinn Fein districts.

2—Garrisons to be posted in all cities and towns and strong military forces put to patrolling the open country.

3—All Irish citizens, in England as well as in Ireland, to be registered, photographed and thumbprinted. All citizens would be compelled on demand to show their identification papers.

4—Extreme restrictions on even ordinary travel.

5—Summary action against disloyal government employes.

6—Passports to enter or to leave Ireland.

7—More drastic penalties for consorting with rebels

8—Increased effort to catch rebels "on the run."

To make certain that authorities get in touch with everyone in Ireland, dragnets will be thrown out so that a cordon of troops will sweep through every section.

LONDON, July 20.—The probability of a meeting in Belfast between Eamonn de Valera and Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, is foreshadowed in some political quarters and several newspapers this morning.

General Jan C. Smuts, premier of South Africa, who re-entered the negotiations yesterday, doubtless is largely responsible for this and similar optimistic speculation which has survived under great difficulties since Monday when the Ulster premier departed suddenly for Belfast.

De Valera is reported willing to go to Belfast and meet Sir James after he has discussed with his Dublin followers certain proposals, which it is understood Premier Lloyd George will submit to him Thursday.

'Bandit' Woman With Glass Gun 'Holds up' Train, Puts Crew to Flight, and Avenges an Insult

SCARED MEN FLEE MADLY FOR SAFETY

Panic in S. P. Freight Yards At West Berkeley Is Ended Only When Police Arrive; Woman Laughs Over Joke

BERKELEY, July 20. — Believing that she had been insulted yesterday afternoon by a Southern Pacific train crew who attempted to persuade her to get into a car, Mrs. Mary Taylor, residing at the end of Murray street, and the wife of a policeman employed by the railroad company, entered the yards this morning and held the train crew of the "cannon ball" freight at bay for several minutes with a glass 'candy' pistol, mistaking them for the men who addressed her yesterday.

While Mrs. Taylor stalked about the locomative armed with the harmless piece of glass, the fireman and other members of the crew made a wild dash for safety, many hiding beneath cars in their anxiety to escape the "bandit woman."

WOMAN ARRESTED BUT SOON RELEASED.

Police, hurried to the Southern Pacific yards in response to calls for assistance which declared the "cannon ball" freight was being held up by train robbers, found the woman, immediately perceived that the pistol was harmless, and took her to the police station, where she was released a few moments later. The train men then crawled cautiously out from their places of hiding and with a sigh of relief mopped the perspiration from their brows with gaudy bandanas.

"Gosh, that was a close shave," said one. "I thought she was going to shoot."

Informed that the "weapon" of the "woman bandit" was harmless, the members of the crew grinned sheepishly and said: "Well, how was we to know?"

According to the story told by Mrs. Taylor to the police, she was going through the freight yards yesterday afternoon. A freight train was standing on one of the tracks and, as she passed, several members of the crew started to converse with her. She said that several of the men made unpleasant remarks and invited her to enter one of the cars.

ENGINEER RUNS AT WORDS "HANDS UP."

The woman returned to her home, she said, and made plans to resent the insult. She decided to take a pistol-shaped glass which her husband had once brought her filled with candy and frighten the men.

She reached the freight yards this morning, just as a train, known as the "cannon ball" freight was pulling in. She mistook this for the one she saw yesterday afternoon, and, after it stopped, climbed into the engine cab and pointed her "weapon at N. A. Gloden, 1033 Willow street, Oakland.

"Hands up!" she ordered.

Gloden jumped from the cab and ran down the tracks, seeking safety.

TRAINMEN FLEE AND CRY FOR HELP.

Other members of the crew were similarly encountered, and each dashed away from the "bandit woman," several yelling for help.

R. A. Barr of 2938 Belinda street, Oakland, saw the woman and ran to a nearby telephone and called the police.

Patrolman John Larson was hurried to the freight yards. Several trainmen met him and warned him as he started toward the scene of the robbery:

"She'll shoot on the slightest provocation, look out!" warned one.

Larson crept cautiously along the train until he came near the locomotive and saw the woman. He reached for his pistol, and then stopped. The rays landed squarely on the woman's "revolver," and he got a good look at it.

It was made of glass.

After talking to Mrs. Taylor for a few minutes, the policeman took her to the station, where she told her story and was allowed to go to her home.

Woman Tells of Fright of Men 'Everybody Yelled, Then Ran'

By MRS. MARY TAYLOR

I went down to the bay yesterday afternoon to get some driftwood. As I was going through the freight yards, a train stopped and a man got fresh with me and I went home. This morning I thought I would get even with them so I took a glass toy pistol filled with candy that my husband bought for my little boy.

When the train came this morning I thought it was the same one and I pointed the pistol at the fireman. He threw up his hands and everybody yelled and ran. They were awfully scared. I didn't think they would be scared of a glass toy pistol but I just took it along to see what they would do. They all ran and were awfully scared.

Then I saw it was not the same train and I had made a mistake. The next I knew the policeman came.

I would not shoot anybody if I had a real pistol, but I only wanted to scare those men because they insulted me.

My husband came home and was awful mad and took the glass toy pistol and smashed it. He didn't seem to like it very well.

"MURDERER", "LIAR" SHOUTED AT TRIAL

Dramatic Scene Is Enacted at Policeman's Hearing

Accusations of murder delivered by a weeping man on the witness stand and denials shouted by the defendant, gave to the trial of Patrolman Charles Nightingale in police court today dramatic and exciting moments. Nightingale is being given a preliminary hearing on a charge of murdering Joseph Suppo on the night of July 11.

"You're a liar. I am not a murderer," Nightingale yelled when Pasquale Gillio cousin and roommate of the man who was shot, referred to the patrolman as such.

While Gillio was testifying, tension in the court room was drawn wire-tight. Nightingale leaned forward to hear all that the man said and it was evident that the strain was slowly drawing on the accused man's reserve of strength. Twice Gillio broke down and cried like a boy, and once, when he was pointing with a shaking hand at the picture of the house and ground where the shooting took place, Judge Ralph Richmond had to halt the story until the witness could gain control of his emotions.

SCENE IN COURT IS DRAMATIC

Following the hearing today the case was continued until tomorrow at 1:30 o'clock.

The outburst from Nightingale came after Peter Crosby, one of his attorneys, had asked Gillio who he meant when he said that "a woman coming in the gate had spoken to a man."

"What man do you mean?" asked Crosby.

Gillio lifted reddened lids and answered deliberately, "the murderer!"

Then Nightingale rose from his seat and called out a loud denial.

"You are a liar. I am not a murdered," he yelled in voice strong enough to be heard in many offices in the city hall and out in the corridors.

It took Nightingale's attorneys, Crosby, Henry Skinner and J. W. Collier several minutes before they were able to quiet the patrolman.

COURTROOM IS CROWDED EARLY.

The courtroom was crowded long before 9 o'clock. Every seat was taken and all available standing room was occupied.

Several hundred persons stood outside the courtroom door and had the information passed to them by those in the courtroom.

The prosecution's first witness was Pasquale Gillio. He was with Suppo in the yard at 710 Eighth street on the night of the fatal shooting. Gillio was arrested following the shooting on a charge of battery. His hearing was held yesterday by Judge Richmond and a decision will be given tomorrow.

Gillio's story, which he related to the court, follows:

STORY OF TRAGEDY TOLD BY WITNESS.

"My cousin Joseph Suppo and myself were standing in front of the house of S. H. Barbour, 710 Eighth street, on the night of July 11. A man walked down the street and walked into the rear of the yard where the garage is. I followed him. I asked him to leave as I was going to close the garage door. It was then that Richard Truffa, a 17-year-old boy, came into the yard. In a low voice he said to me:

"'That is the man that wants the wine.'

"I then left them and walked into the house. When I came out Suppo, Truffa and Nightingale were all standing on the side of the house near a palm tree.

"I called to Suppo: 'Why don't you come in the house?' I then walked up to where the three were standing. It was then Nightingale drew his revolver and said 'up with your hands.' My cousin and I both threw up our hands and called out in a loud voice, 'we are being held up.' We again called 'Mrs. Barbour, Mrs. Barbour, come quick; we are being held up.'

TELLS HOW FATAL SHOT WAS FIRED.

"The next thing I remember a shot was fired by Nightingale and my cousin fell to the ground with his hand on his back where he was shot.

Nightingale was arrested on the warrant sworn to S. N. Barbour in whose yard the shooting took place. According to the police, Suppo and Gillio are accused of mistreating Truffa, the 17-year old boy. It was on the boy's complaint that the officer went to the home of the men in order to try to get evidence against the two men.

Following the shooting, Nightingale told Chief of Police James Drew that he posed as a drunken sailor in order to try to get the evidence. At the time of the shooting he claims that he was sober.

Suppo and Gillio came to this country from Italy several years ago. They were both laborers although Gillio attended a University in the northern part of Italy for two years. While at the University he studied law.

SHANGHAI, July 20. — Manuel Quezon, the Filipino leader, left today for the United States, via Japan.

Quezon took occasion before leaving to deny reports that he had opposed the Wood-Forbes mission in the Philippines. He said he was confident that the report of the mission would be liberal and not reactionary.

He stated that the majority of the Filipinos want an independent protectorate under the United States Government. If necessary, however, they would be willing to take their chances on full independence without a protectorate, he said

"The Filipinos are friends of the United States," Quezon said "In case of a war in the Orient involving the United States, the Philippine Islands would raise an army of 1,000,000 to aid the cause, even if complete independence without a protectorate were granted."

Russ Church Faces Religious Revolt

RIGA, Latvia, July 20. — The monk Dilodor (Heliodorus), former preceptor and afterward antagonist of the notorious Rasputin, is again attracting attention in Russia by announcing his purpose to start a revolution in the Orthodox Russian church. Heliodorus fled from Russia after his break with Rasputin in the early part of the war but returned after the Bolsheviki gained control. He was unfrocked by the church. His reappearance in public in Russia was almost simultaneous with a revival of ferver in the Orthodox church, which the Bolsheviki now are trying to combat.

Every Sunday and on many religious feast days in Russia the churches now are crowded. Communists, themselves, are attending the services and this has brought down on their heads a warning from the government "not to set so bad an example for the peasants."

N. Y. Official Fired On in Courtroom

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 20. — Charles K. Reynolds, Buffalo, enraged at Deputy Commissioner Charles K. Blatchly of the state industrial commission, for not allowing him compensation under the workmen's compensation act, shot at the commissioner three times today in the equity department of the supreme court.

Anthony Addarce, 40, who was testifying at the time of the shooting, was struck by a stray bullet in the base of the skull and probably fatally wounded.

The commissioner, at the beginning of the shooting, dodged behind a bench and was unharmed.

BUDGET DIRECTOR POINTS OUT WAY TO SAVE MONEY

Economics Are Suggested by Dawes in Report to Harding.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—An estimated saving of $112,512,628 can be effected in the appropriations of approximately $4,000,000,000 available for government expenditures during the current fiscal year, President Harding was informed by Director of the Budget Dawes. Included in the estimate, Director Dawes said, was $22,822,113 pertaining to continuous appropriations for building and construction, which would be postponed for expenditure in future years.

The estimate of government economy possible during the present fiscal year was contained in a letter directed to the President by Director Dawes, who presented the amounts by which the expenditures could be reduced in the departments and independent establishments

POSSIBLE ECONOMIES.

Survey of possible economies was begun a few weeks ago by Director Dawes, using the budget machinery, after a meeting at which department heads and bureau chiefs had been directed to reduce expenditures The director wrote:

"Whatever may be the relation of total expenditure to total revenues at the end of the current year, which, for various reasons, including possible new legislation, the operations of the Shipping Board, the Railroad Administration and fluctuation in current receipts of the, postoffice department, cannot be predicted at this time, the above amount is that much of a contribution to a more favorable relation.

"This fine response to your request from the heads of departments and independent organizations and bureau chiefs infers the existence in their minds of three principles involving improvement in governmental business.

EFFICIENCY FIRST.

"First—That the business organization of government hereafter assumes that the minimum amount of money to be expended in any fiscal year is not, of necessity, the sum appropriated in advance by Congress, but the smallest amount upon which the business of the government can be efficiently administered under the program outlined by Congress.

"Second—That the minds of the business administrators of government have been diverted from a too easy reliance upon the customs of deficiency appropriations.

"Third—That where Congress has directed the expenditure of certain sums for specific purposes, an executive pressure will now be exerted for more efficient and economical administration in order to produce greater results from the given expenditure, and also wherever possible to complete the given project for a less amount than the total appropriated for the purpose."

SAVINGS TO BE MADE.

Estimated savings of the more important departments were listed as follows:

State department	$ 1,171,982
Treasury department	36,342,149
War risk bureau	16,534,523
War department	15,000,000
Navy department	10,047,891
Interior department	19,327,191
Department of agriculture	1,687,802
Postoffice department	35,500
Postal service	14,920,421
Department of commerce	2,063,383
Department of labor	10,660
Department of justice	94,300

Completion of the economy estimates by the government organizations within three weeks was regarded by Director Dawes as evidence of increased efficiency. Work would be begun at once by the budget bureau, he added, on the budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, using the new estimates of necessary expenditures as a basis.

Tennis Psycholoy Feature of Match

PARIS, July 20.—Andre Gobert, who held the French tennis championship for several years until defeated by Jean Samazeuih of Bordeaux last May, served during the war as an aviator and was recuperating at Vichy from shock received in a fall of over 1000 feet altitude in 1917, when some of the neutrals enjoying the cure organized a tennis tournament. Gobert entered under the name Dubois. Not being in the best of shape he had a hectic time in reaching the semi-finals where he had to meet a youthful Dane who was going great guns. Gobert lost the first set six to two and was in a fair way of losing the second when someone in the crowd recognized the French champion and commenced shouting encouragement to him by calling him by his own name.

The Dane realizing that he was playing against the champion of France, seemed bewildered, making fault after fault, missing easy returns, netting. Gobert won the next three sets.

Flamingos Soon To Be Extinct Species

MIAMI, Fla., July 20.—The flamingo, one of the most beautiful of birds, will become extinct in the Bahamas unless given greater protection, according to Harold H. Bailey, who with three companions has returned here from a tour of Andros Island. The island is a breeding place which the party visited in quest of young flamingos for the Miami Beach zoological park.

Mr. Bailey said he found the natives eating the young birds and although the colonial government has a standing reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons harming them, the slaughter continues.

Jobs Are Found For 180,525 During Year

SACRAMENTO, July 20.—A report made public here by John P. McLaughlin, state labor commissioner, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, shows a total of 180,525 positions filled by the public employment bureaus of the state during the year. Of this number 149,529 were male placements.

This is a decrease of 26 per cent over the previous year, the report adds. A total of 243,866 were placed during 1920. In placements for the past year, Los Angeles led, with San Francisco second and Oakland third.

CALIFORNIA MAY PRODUCE SUPPLY OF CHAULMOOGRA

Tree From Which Oil Is Taken To Be Grown in United States.

WASHINGTON, July 20. — Introduction in the United States of the chaulmoogra tree to assure a permanent supply of the oil for the treatment of leprosy is planned as a result of a trip through Siam, Burma and Assam by Professor J. F. Rock, formerly of the University of Hawaii.

Prof. Rock has just returned to Washington after an extensive exploration into the jungles for the Department of Agriculture's branch of foreign seed and plant introduction. He brought back with him several specimens of the "taraktogenos" tree, the seeds of which have been sent to various experiment stations of the department in Florida, Maryland and California for germination. Within eight years, it is believed, enough fruit will be borne from these plants to initiate a domestic sources of supply of chaulmoogra oil.

With the possible exception of a man named Kerr, an amateur botanist, Prof. Rock is said to be the first white man to invade the region of Siam where he obtained his specimens Natives of that country for many years had visited the taraktogenos forest to obtain enough of the oil to meet their domestic needs, but they made these trips only every three years for fear of the beasts that inhabit the wild country.

While chaulmoogra oil has been used scientifically for only a few years, Prof. Rock says the natives of that part of Asia which he visited have been using the curative properties of the taraktogenos tree for hundreds of years, but in such a crude way as to be unable to derive its complete benefits.

"In the Buddhist histories that date back 1000 years, there are mentions of this tree," Prof Rock pointed out, adding that "the crude oil of the tree was taken internally by the natives and the legends say it was effective."

SAN LEANDRO BAR OWNERS IN COURT

A. Parenti and D. Massoni, San Leandro saloonmen, operating a saloon at 157 Hepburn street in that town, will be tried before United States Commission Albert M. Hardie on July 27 on charges of having "jackass" brandy and fermented grape juice in their possession.

The two men were arrested yesterday by prohibition enforcement agents and arraigned before Commissioner Hardie today. They are at liberty on $500 bond each.

The case of J. H. Powers, saloonman, of 701 Franklin street, charged with dry law violation, has been taken under advisement by Commissioner Hardie, following arraignment this morning. The cases of Louis Neuwiler and George Walters of 1000 Franklin street, accused of a similar violation of the law, were dismissed.

Fresno Man Chosen Theosophist Officer

SELFISHNESS IS HELD CAUSE OF TRADE FAILURES

DENVER, Colo., July 20.—"Behind fifteen thousand business failures in May, involving total capital of $57,000,000, was the selfishness and ignorance of men who took no account of the law of abundance, but followed the rule of selfishness," Charles H. Watts, Philadelphia business man, declared at yesterday's session of the eighth annual conference of the International New Thought Alliance.

"The belief is growing," he said, "that the business of even today can function successfully under the law which is God."

Watts was the principal speaker at yesterday's session. To a disordered mind is du the disordered condition of business today, Watts said.

"New Thought," he said, "teaches the obligation to each of us to look after the other fellow in a brotherly way."

'FRANKNESS' IS LASKER POLICY

WASHINGTON, July 20.—A determination to follow a policy of "absolute frankness," in reorganization of the shipping board, was declared at the White House yesterday to stand behind Chairman Lacker's proposal for a $300,000,000 appropriation for operating expenses of the shipping board.

It was asserted that the administration had no intention of inheriting the complicated liabilities of the board without letting congress and the American people exactly understand the situation. Should the experiment of an efficiently managed board prove too costly, it was added, it would be time for the country to consider what other means might be adopted to foster an American merchant marine.

Judge Walter D Meals of Cleveland is understood to be under consideration to head the special court of appeals which is to pass on claims involved in the reorganizatio of the shipping board.

Chairman Lasker declared the books of the shipping board were in a "deplorable condition" and that they "could not have been kept in much different shape had they been kept with a view to cheating and deceiving congress and the country."

The ships are being operated on a commission basis, under contracts that cannot be discontinued immediately, he said, and "we must grin and bear that system for some months to come."

Burlingame Highway Stone to Be Removed

BURLINGAME, July 20. — The City Board of Trustees decided Monday night to remove the giant masses of painted stone on the highway which mark the entrance and exit to this city, known as the Burlingame gates. The decision was reached after the board had been addressed by D. E. Watkins, secretary of the California State Automobile Association.

The City Board of Trustees has received many petitions from individual citizens, the town of Hillsborough and the various automobile associations of the State, asking that the gates be removed or set back, because of the numerous automobile accidents they are said to have caused. Several people have lost their lives when their cars collided with the gates, it is said.

STILLMAN SUIT PUT OFF.

YONKERS, N. Y., July 20.—Hearings in the divorce proceedings instituted by James A. Stillman, which were to be resumed at Poughkeepsie next Monday, probably will be postponed until fall. Associates of John F. Brennan, chief counsel for Mrs. Stillman, have written the banker's counsel suggesting that the trial be deferred until October 11 because of Brennan's illness. Stillman's attorneys are expected to assent.

ALLEGED SLAYER WATCHED FOR ON OREGON LINE

Dr. R. M. Brumfield Believed to Have Fled South; Russell Also Sought.

ROSEBURG, Ore., July 20.—Is Dr. R. M. Brumfield the murderer and decapitator of Dennis Russell, hermit laborer, and a fugitive from justice, or was the headless body found beneath the dentist's wrecked automobile that of Dr. Brumfield himself?

This question, which a coroner's jury here is trying to decide through identification of the mutilated remains, is the issue in one of the strangest murder mysteries in recent years.

Authorities Monday watched every artery leading into California, on the theory that Dr. Brumfield, having killed Russell in order to defraud an insurance company and pay his creditors, may have sought to escape southward.

On the opposing theory that Russell killed the dentist, search is also being maintained for the laborer, who lived alone in a solitary cabin near where the crime occurred.

Mrs. Brumfield, widow of the dentist or—if he be living—his wife, declared today that she is positive the body is that of her husband. She and her two small sons are the central figures in the investigation now in progress.

She takes her intimate knowledge of Dr Brumfield against the opinion of several acquaintances of both men, who declare that the body is that of Russell.

"My husband was not pressed for money," she declares. "Last fall my mother fell heir to $50,000, and the doctor could have borrowed all he needed. I know he had about $1000. It is true that part of his insurance was made out to me as beneficiary and part to his creditors, but he has always followed that policy to protect any creditors he might have.

"Through years of association I am familiar with every line of his appearance. I base my identification upon the cut of his hair, shape of the fingers and nails, callus made by his ring, and the peculiar corn on his foot.

"It is ridiculous to think that this is not my husband's body. The theory that Dennis Russell committed a murder for the sake of robbery is quite as plausible."

Witnesses before the coroner's jury testified both ways A shoe merchant declared he had lately sold to Russell shoes like those on the corpse. Socks, overalls, watch, fountain pen, letters and other articles were identified as Russell's, also the color of the hair.

Sabotage Is Claimed In Report to Police

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—An act of alleged sabotage which might have cost dearly in lives and property had it not been discovered was reported to the police today by Richard Dyer of Dyer Brothers Iron Works, Seventeenth and Kansas streets. Some time during the night some one entered a large enclosure adjoining the plant and sawed almost through five wooden guy derrick poles, said to be of a total value of $5000. The poles weer rendered worthless. Had one of them been used by chance in building operations and have parted when a hoist was being used, a disaster might have resulted.

The plant was installed by a Petaluma firm.

SENATOR WATSON WHETS BLADE FOR U. S. BANK BOARD

Georgian Opposes Resolution Directing Harding to Oust Present Members.

By FRASER EDWARDS.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, July 20.—"Big Chief" Tom Watson of Georgia started on the warpath today. With a grim smile as war paint and a keen-edge rhetorical tomahawk, he is after the scalp of the Federal Reserve Board.

Since the advent of the Georgia firebrand in the senate, his colleagues have expectantly awaited the "outbreak" of the "chief," as his clerks call him with affectionate deference.

The "war cry" of the "chief" was a resolution couched in the bitterest denunciatory terms, directing President Harding to "fire" the present members of the board and replace them with "men of affairs," who are not to be servants of Morgan, Standard Oil, packers and other legalized marauders."

"I'm going to camp on their trail like a hungry coyote after a corpulent jack rabbit," declared the "chief." "And the coyote usually gets his meat."

The "chief" was in his tepee sharpening his weapons—sorting a great mass of data relating to the Federal Reserve Board—preparing for his first attack, when found by the correspondent of the United Press.

He is typical of the ante-bellum South. Immaculate in his tropical suit, b'iled shirt and string bow tie, he gives a visitor a courtly bow and a hearty hand clasp.

"The criminal and arbitrary deflation of the currency by the reserve board," Senator Watson declared, "has cost the American people the amount of the German indemnity—$32,000,000,000.

"The unscrupulous bunch of scoundrels who compose the board have caused 10,000 business failures, innumerable heartaches among formerly prosperous people, and the suicide of hundreds of citizens who have been reduced to desperation by the infamous policy of the board.

"They have done to America what German U-boats tried but failed to do—sink the nation into the abysmal degredation of outrageous subjection. The sinking of the Lusitania and the cold-blooded murder of 119 Americans was no worse in moral turpitude than has been the criminal policy of the board.

"The outcome there can be but one—to get rid of the board. I have dedicated myself to that purpose."

INJURED IN FIRE.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 20.—D. D. Hamilton, dashing through a wall of flame in a futile effort to rescue his automobile from a motor paint shop here, was severely burned. Firemen probably saved his life by pouring oil over him as he lay unconscious on the floor. A. F. Abernathy, who tried to save his motorcycle, suffered minor burns.

Scout Camp at Redwood Ably Governed by Boys

PIEDMONT, July 20.—Seventy-three Piedmont boy scouts have returned this week to their normal habitations following a three weeks' encampment at Camp Redwood in Sonoma county, and are prepared to resume their "at-home" scouteraft activities.

The boys were accompanied on the camping trip by thirteen adult leaders, including Drs. J. D. Grissom and H. A. Makinson, camp physicians.

A novel plan for the government of the camp was put in effect by organization of the boys as representatives of the different districts of the State of California. Besides electing a governor and constituents to a state legislature, which later developed and passed various bills, the camp was organized into cities with municipal governments representing the leading cities of the state.

Two weeks of hot political campaigning proceeded the election for the principal offices. The political parties with candidates in the field were the Upper Crusts, the Lower Crusts and the Non-Partisans and at times, according to George Kenepp, scoutmaster of the Piedmont council, the campaigning waxed so warm that camp officers had to interfere to stop to boys from employing nineteenth century election methods.

WIRELESS POPULAR.

Classes were conducted in short courses on 50 different subjects involving scoutcraft and camping, the most popular courses being those in wireless telegraphy and swimming. As a result of these courses 175 merit badges were issued to the boys in recognition of their work and three scouts, Joe Moore, Clarence Chichester and James Tyson, were advanced to the rank of eagle scout—highest rank in the order.

Tyson, who is secretary of Piedmont Troop No. 1, is the highest ranking scout in the Piedmont council, possessing 33 merit badges.

The commissary department at the camp was maintained by two chefs and the business management of it was in the hands of Scouts A. J. Morrill, Joe Moore and Clarence Chichester.

A large army field radio set, a navy wireless set and two portable radio sets furnished by the Presidio, were the equipment used in the radio classes as a result of which a number of the students became proficient in the operation of wireless apparatus.

FOUGHT FOREST FIRE.

The log of the camp shows that on July 4 the Piedmont scouts took an active part in fighting a forest fire which burned for some time in the mountain country a short distance from the camp. According to Scoutmaster Kenepp, firenghters of the district credit the scouts with an important part in stopping the spread of the fire.

The camp was conducted under the personal supervision of the committee on camping of the Piedmont Council of Boy Scouts, consisting of W. W. Saint, chairman, Lawrence Moore, Walton N. Moore and Scout Commissioner W. J. Barrett. Those in direct charge of the boys while in camp were: Camp Director Geo. E. Kenepp, Physical Director E. W. Willman, Swimming Instructor J. A. Gooch, Radio Experts A. C. Adams, Ernest A. Williams and Arthur H. Neff, Managing Committee Department, A. M. Merrill, assistants, Joe Moore and Clarence Chichester, marksmanship instructors, C. D. Bartlett and Albert H. Gorie; in charge camp detail, Noble Gowing, in charge military tactics, Helmik A. Gabrielsen, camp canteen, Owen E. Hotle, Scout naturalist, Bruce M. Stephens, editor daily camp paper, Van H. King.

INDUSTRY SHOW DATES ARE FIXED

Under a canvas, covering 25,000 feet of floor space, the Eastbay Manufacturers' Exhibition will be staged in the stadium at Idora Park, October 1-9, inclusive.

"Selling the Eastbay to the residents of the Eeastbay" as the slogan behind the plans of its originators.

The wide range of goods produced in mill, machine shop, factory, cannery, shipyard, and other industries is held by the originators of the exhibition as a splendid advertisement for the Eastbay. It is generally admitted that not one person out of 1000 in the Eastbay realizes the number of factories that are daily turning out a thousand and one different variety of goods in this district.

It is to reveal to the citizens of the Eastbay this great variety of industrial activity that the exhibition will be staged. Indicative of the wide variety of manufactured goods represented by the Eastbay factories, is the list of those serving on the executive committee, arranging for the exhibition.

This committee is comprised of George Hammer, president Hammer-Bray Co., chairman, George A. Armes, president Moore Shipbuilding Co., Oakland, Charles Gross, president Marchant Calculator Co., Emeryville; Major E. A. Hey, superintendent of the California Conserving Co., Hayward, A. H. Irving, general superintendent Paraffine Paint Co., Berkeley, J. R. Miller, general manager California Cotton Mills; Roland C. Oliver, general manager California Cap Co., Richmond; Oliver S. Orrick, president California Paint Co., Oakland; Curtis Wright, president Pacific Bed Spring Co., Berkeley; J. W. Phillips, general manager Gold Medal Water Proofing Co., Oakland.

During the nine days of the exhibition it is expected that at least 250,000 Eastbay residents, menfi women and children, will crowd the tent. J. S. Martin will direct the exhibition. A. I. Mount, cashier of the Central Savings Bank, has been named treasurer.

At this meeting, according to Miss Jennie Lind Redfield, vice-president at large of the Alameda county organization, plans will be made for the participation of the Alameda county delegation in the national convention of the W. C. T. U. in San Francisco from August 14 to 24.

BOY'S RIGHT TO SEE BALL GAME SUNDAY UPHELD

MORRISTOWN, N. J., July 20.—The right of a four-year old boy to attend Sunday baseball games despite his mother's objection has been upheld by Vice-Chancellor Backes. The vice-Chancellor yesterday refused an application of Mrs. Grace Lines, of Morristown, for an order prohibiting her husband, John A. Lines, from taking their son for Sunday walks, because she said, she had discovered Lines took the boy to ball games.

Mrs. Lines, who is suing for separate maintenance, has custody of the boy under a court order, but the father is permitted to have him on Sunday afternoons.

AUTO PROVIDES POWER IN NEW AQUATIC SPORT

MERCED, July 20.—Venturesome lads have discovered a new sport which rivals the famous surf-board riding of Honoluiu. They take a smooth plank, attach a stout rope to one end and tie the other end of the rope to an auto. Then the irrigation canal bather mounts the "surf-board," the driver gives the car the gas and away they go. It's great sport, declare the lads, wherever the banks of a canal will permit a car to navigate.

YEAR MAY BE CUT INTO 13 MONTHS

PASADENA, July 20.—(United Press.)—Harold G. Simpson is a member of a nation-wide organization which proposes to shuffle the months of the year around in quite a reckless manner.

The organization, whose headquarters is in Washington, proposes to change the present calendar and make it over into a new one called the "Liberty Calendar."

The new Liberty calendar, which is being widely advocated by mathematicians throughout the world, including former Premier Painleve of France, makes a number of important changes.

First: The year will be divided into months of exactly four weeks each, thus abolishing the necessity of remembering the "Thirty days has September, April, June and November" rhyme.

Second: New Year's Day will become an independent legal holiday, not included in any week or any month.

Third: Another independent legal holiday, called "Leap Year Day," is provided for leap years. It would not occur after February, however, but between June and July. It would not be included in any week or month.

Fourth: Bravely facing the jinx of 13, the rest of the days would then be divided into 13 months of exactly four weeks each, every month commencing with Monday. Thus there are an equal number of weekdays in every year, that is, the same number of Sundays, Mondays, etc. In order to maintain this, each seventh New Year Day becomes "New Year Sunday, and each seventh Leap Year becomes "Leap Year Sunday."

Fifth: The Fourth of July, Armistice Day, and Christmas would all come out on Thursday of every year, according to the new arrangement.

Sixth: Liberty would be confined to one month. There being 13 months in the year, a new month would be added between the present February and March. The new month would be called "Liberty," and the new roll-call would read "January, February, Liberty, March," etc.

Similar calendar changes, some of them differing in various particulars, but all designed to even up the months and make calendar calculations somewhat approximate the ease of the decimal system in the mathematical world, are being advocated by scientists here and abroad.

Legal Publication Rate Fixed by Law

OLYMPIA, July 20.—All the publishers in the State of Washington are intensely interested in the new legal rate law passed by the late legislature, which goes into effect this month and which standardizes rates for legal publications in newspapers. Under this new law, every newspaper, excepting those of 20,000 or more circulation, is obliged to charge $1.40 per folio of one hundred words for the first insertion, and eighty cents per folio of one hundred words for each subsequent insertion of any legal notices required or allowed by law. The affidavit of publication must show this rate has been charged and collected. The new rate does not necessarily apply to legal advertisements for school districts, villages, towns, cities, counties, State, municipal or quasi-municipal corporations, or to the United States Government.

The law is regarded the most constructive piece of legislation the State Press Association has to its credit, giving protection both to the publisher and the legitimate attorney.

Fifty-one unions of San Francisco and Oakland were present at a meeting of this committee which is pledged to work out plans for the settlement of the present industrial problem.

The meeting, it was announced, was held independent of the San Francisco or State Building Trades Council and represented the "rank and file" of the building trades unions.

VIVISECTION IS DECLARED NEED

The American Association for the Advancement of Science, the national organization of scientists in all lines, is to launch an educational campaign on "important features of the public welfare" according to an announcement just received at the Chabot Observatory in Leona Heights, which is a member of the association.

In the announcement, the association sets forth a number of resolutions expressing itself on matters affecting scientists.

One resolution covers opposition to anti-vivisection laws declaring that "the advancement of knowledge is dependent upon intensive study of living tissue and is inevitable followed not only by amelioration of human suffering, but also by lessening of animal disease and by substantial economic gain and by conservation of the food supply."

Another of the resolutions "affirms the association's belief in the scientific desirability of the adoption of the metric system of weights and measures for the United States."

Other resolutions cover the need for preservation of the natural wildlife of the country, the safeguarding of the National parks and monuments and the desirability of duty-free importation of scientific materials and apparatus by educational and research institutions in the United States.

California Diana Arrives With 4 Captive Kangaroos

MRS. HAZEL NEWMAN and one of the four kangaroos she captured on her honeymoon in Australia

Rodgers Park Couple Home From Ten-Months Trapping in Australia.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—After spending ten months in Australia, hunting and trapping in the Queenland brush, during which they captured four kangaroos, Mrs. Hazel Newman, of Rodgers Park, Cal., and her husband are in San Francisco today following their arrival on the Liner Sonoma yesterday. Mrs. Newman left San Francisco ten months ago on her honeymoon.

The kangaroos, Mrs. Newman said today, will be converted into steaks, unless the pet-like qualities of the animals give her a change of heart. During the time Mr. and Mrs. Newman spent hunting their food consisted mostly of kangaroo and Wallaby steak, varied with curlew, ibis and wild duck.

"Kangaroo steak is as good as beefsteak," averred Mrs. Newman upon her arrival. "But they make wonderful pets and Leo Buchner, another passenger on the Sonoma, wants to purchase them for a Southern California Movie concern."

John Pomeroy, the man who beat the Zeppelin, en route to Washington to negotiate with the government concerning a new explosive and incendiary bullet, superior to anything he has ever produced, was also a passenger on the steamer. Pomeroy received $125,000 during the war from the British government as partial recognition of that nation to him, the "Savior of London," from the devasting German air raids.

He will be a guest here for several days before continuing his trip to the nation's capitol. During the war the British government purchased seven inventions from him.

Judge Albert M. Noble, naval jurist, for the past 10 years stationed at American Samoa, arrived here on the same vessel en route to his home in North Carolina. He was accompanied by his wife and two children. Judge Noble served on the islands under four administrations, and stated that the natives were never so happy and contented as they are now.

SACRAMENTO MAN BEATEN, ROBBED IN SAN FRANCISCO

Thrown From Auto on Ocean Beach by Two "Friends" From Dance Hall.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Edward W. Book, Sacramento capitalist, had an exciting experience with two robbers whom he met in a down town dance hall early this morning and who later pitched him from their automobile and left him lying dazed and bleeding on the highway fronting the ocean. Book arrived here Monday and registered at the Hotel Mentone, 387 Ellis street. Yesterday he transacted his business and last night set out to see the sights. He met the two men in question and they invited him for an auto ride. While driving along the upper highway near the wireless station at the beach, they suddenly stopped the car.

They asked him if he could see the lights of a vessel on the ocean and as he turned, set upon him and beat him and took his purse containing $50. They then dumped him into the roadway. His cries attracted Archibald Sika, a coast guard of the Golden Gate Life Saving Station, who commandeered the automobile of Louis Arlett, 815 O'Farrell street. Book was taken to the Central Emergency Hospital, where severe bruises of the face, head and body were treated. The robbers had overlooked $280 carried in an inside pocket and his diamond pin.

Several of the theaters in Paris are managed by women, who are proving themselves of being capable of directing in a successful manner.

The Housewife of 1921

Now that Woman's Suffrage is a reality the American woman must henceforth be considered not merely as a housekeeper and home-maker, but as a voter—a citizen and a force in this busy work-a-day world. With added responsibilities her health should never be neglected, and when beset with ailments peculiar to her sex she owes it to herself to first give that grand old medicine, Lydia E. LESSON SIX

Cooling Summer Milk Drinks

HAPPY indeed may be the hostess and popular will be her parties if she can serve her guests tasty, satisfying drinks. It is not a difficult task to serve summer drinks if one has at hand a few choice recipes and gives care to the art of blending of materials. The use of Carnation Milk offers endless suggestion for making wholesome, flavory drinks at home. This rich milk is especially useful during summer, because it will keep for days without ice, and because of its purity and availability. You can get Carnation at any grocery store, wherever you are and however unexpected the need.

In this lesson I will give you some select recipes for summer drinks. Try them all. Serve them this summer for lunch or dinner. Many of these, when served with sandwiches or cake, will be sufficient for lunch, or ideal refreshments for the porch party.

Egg Nogg—Nourishing and Delectable

For a very rich drink, use Carnation Milk undiluted. Otherwise, dilute with 1/3 water. For an individual glass, use yolk of one egg well beaten with 2 level teaspoonfuls sugar. Stir this into the Carnation, add the white of egg beaten stiff. Sprinkle top with a little nutmeg, if desired.

Carnation White Tea

This is a safe beverage for the children at breakfast or any other time. Hot water three parts, Carnation Milk one part and sweeten to taste. Dilute with more water if too rich.

Carnation Milk Punch

A delicious and refreshing drink may be made by diluting ice cold Carnation Milk with cold water in equal proportions. Sweeten to taste, flavor with vanilla and a dash of nutmeg. Lastly, add the beaten white of an egg.

For Carnation Fruit Punch, substitute any desired fruit juice sweetened, in place of the vanilla in above. Mix well before serving.

Carnation Milk for Drinking

Everybody in the family can afford to drink all the milk desired if you use Carnation. Because of its added richness and convenience it is more economical and has a finer flavor. Many people, especially men, like to drink Carnation simply diluted with half water. Others prefer to modify its "different" flavor by heating the water to boiling point, add Carnation in equal amount, boil for a minute and let cool.

This same preparation served hot is an excellent drink before retiring. It relieves nervous tension and is conducive to restful sleep.

Carnation Iced Tea

Never pour out surplus tea in the summer. Drain it from the grounds and keep it in a cool place until you want to make Iced Tea. Many may prefer Iced Tea clear. But a great number of people wish cream with it. For those, prepare it this way:

Serve very cold with undiluted Carnation Milk and powdered sugar. This is always nicer with cold drinks, as it dissolves more readily. You may serve Carnation right from the can, and it is especially convenient if you use the "baby" size. But some people prefer it from the pitcher, as with ordinary cream.

Q. Will you tell me just how Carnation Milk is made?—Mrs. I. S.

A. Fresh milk is received daily from the better dairy herds, tested, and then evaporated to remove part only of the water, nothing else. It is then cooled, hermetically sealed in cans, and sterilized, so that it is always pure, rich and sweet. If you should visit the Carnation Milk condensery at Gustine, in Merced County, California, the largest on the Pacific Coast, you would see for yourself the infinite care and absolute cleanliness exercised in evaporating this rich milk.

Q. How can I keep milk sweet during warm July days?—Mrs. J. H. S.

A. If you have trouble keeping ordinary milk without ice in summer, try Carnation Milk. It will keep sweet several days after opening, but the same care should be given it as ordinary milk. Unopened, it will keep sweet indefinitely in a cool, dry place, so that you may always have pure and rich milk at hand.

MEAT DEALERS TO PICNIC TOMORROW

Not a pound of meat will be sold anywhere in Oakland or Alamada County tomorrow, for on that day the butchers will hold their annual outing and barbecue at Idora park. Instead of cutting out loins and slicing chops and steaks butchers will take a day off and make merry at the big amusement park with their families and friends.

The butchers also will operate a country butcher shop where the high cost of living will be given a hard blow. Whole hams, great slabs of bacon, pails of lard and quarters of mutton will be passed over the counter to the lucky ones at a cost of but twenty-five cents.

During the day there will be a program of sporting events, races and games of all sorts. In the evening there will be dancing in addition to the many regular attractions to be found at the park.

ACTIVITIE WOMEN

Mountains And Sea Call Society

Such a flitting about!

First to the mountains and then to the sea, and then off to the silent places in the Gray Wastes, and back again; only to be off once more to mountains for the glories of approaching Indian summer, when the pines touch the sky.

Mrs. Frederick T. Dieckmann and her little daughters, Mary and Dorothy, are summering at Pinecrest on Strawberry Lake, where they have a snug little cabin with a porch all round it, as becomes mountain cabins.

Their place adjoins the log cabin of Mrs. H. G. Plummer of Berkeley and the George Farrell place, on the west side of the lake, where the sun salutes the world at somewhere around 4 o'clock, bestirring the orioles and larks and the chattering bluejays in the pines, who are obviously of the opinion that sun-up means get-up for everybody.

The families on the edge of the lake—incidentally one of the most beautiful little lakes in Upper California—have built themselves harbors for swimmin' holes by commandeering dead trees that had fallen into the lake. And in each harbor ride clever little motor boats that o' mornings become fishing smacks, minus the motor.

Apropos of the Perrys, Mrs. Perry is at her mountain home near Truckee, where no day passes without guests from the bay terrain.

Tomorrow Mrs. Glen Barnhart will leave for the Perry place, having just returned from Brookdale, where she was visiting the Samuel Hubbards.

Glen Barnhart left on Wednesday with a group of friends for the high Sierras, planning a trip to Mt. Whitney, a flock of nine horses in their pack train.

The Larkey boys, who are leaving soon to go by way of Visalia, will meet the Barnhart party in the Kings river country and proceed to the mountain with it, the group to return together.

And while her sons are doing the Sierras, Mrs. A. S. Larkey will spend the time in Portland, leaving in a day or two.

MISS HELEN MARGARET KIEL, recently betrothed to Martin Carl Kidd. The nuptials will be solemnized September 3.

HOME READY FOR BRIDE.

The future home of Miss Frances Redman and Lloyd Roberts—an artistic apartment overlooking the lake—is quite complete for the homecoming of the lovely young bride, whose marriage is the dominant episode of the month.

The Interdenominational Church, that crowns Piedmont hills, will be en fete on Friday night for the service that will be simple, albeit the bride will be surrounded by a flock of lovely bridesmaids—the Mesdames Gardner, Terry Pond, Henry Ellery Avey, Harold Cushman, Thomas Campbell, Arthur Lamb and Miss Dorothy Wishart.

Mrs. Howard Sebastian, cousin of the bride, and herself a bride of but a few months, will serve as matron of honor. And adorable little Emile Childs, daughter of Mrs. Stephen Childs of Los Angeles, will carry the rose basket. Ray Taylor will assist the groom at the traditional post of best man, with a flock of ushers to escort the girls in the party to the chancel.

Her wedding-dress, said to be very lovely by the few who have been favored with a look at it, will be expressive of the originality of the resourceful bride, whose sartorial successes have been a matter of common acceptance since she was a debutante, not so long ago.

Some two hundred guests will greet the young folk in the church to wish them bon voyage.

Mrs. George Porter Baldwin, who is spending the summer with her kinsfolk, the Frank Edoffs and Miss Allene Edoff, has found much to enjoy in the nearby country—Marin county, for instance, where Muir woods awakens at each visit a profound reverence for the gifts nature has bestowed upon Upper California—and almost at our doorstep, at that.

The beauty of the bay country is being revealed anew to the visitor who holds California her home-state, her marriage to the distinguished Philadelphian notwithstanding.

The Ray Simonds, having sold their Spruce street home, are at the Fairmont, where they will remain until they take their summer trip, or make plans to build a home on their newly acquired site in Thousand Oaks—"Sunny Ray."

Just when they will build is problematical — probably when they weary of hotel life.

They spent the week-end at their country place in Baltimore Canyon, lent to the George Adrian Applegarths for July.

Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Hale White were recent guests of the George Farrells and their home on Strawberry Lake, motoring from Stockton, whither they went on the Stockton river boat.

Among the round-the-bay folk who are summering at Palo Alto are Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Lawrence and their little family and the Milo Robbins, Erle Osborne, brother of Mrs. Robbins completing their household.

Food Restrictions Abolished in Rome

ROME, July 20. — Meatless days, bread and macaroni restrictions and sugar embargoes, which until now have been in force since the beginning of the war, have finally been abolished. Food cards are now no longer needed to procure the bare necessities of life, and gradually such luxuries as pastry, cakes, ice cream and other delicacies are being sold in their pre-war quality and amount.

Warrants Out For Purported Suicide

MARYSVILLE, July 20. — Yuba and Sutter county officials are skeptical regarding the purported suicide of A. J. Tourney of Williams, Colusa county, who left two notes and his coat and hat on the Feather river bridge here last Friday night, several hours after he had bidden his wife good-by at their home, saying that he was about to end his life by drowning.

A report that Tourney purchased a ticket at the Southern Pacific depot here for Tacoma, Wash., early Saturday morning has interested Sheriff McCoy sufficiently to cause him to telegraph the officers at Seattle, Portland and Tacoma to keep a-lookout for the missing man.

Sheriff Stanton of Colusa county is sending circulars asking for the arrest of Tourney on a charge of forging the name of his sister-in-law, Miss Virgie Goodwin of Williams, to two checks for $20 and $25 respectively.

Sonoma Fair To Be Held On Speedway

SANTA ROSA, Cal., July 20. — Huge green tents will soon rise inside the wooden bowl of the Santa Rosa Speedway to house the Sonoma and North of the Bay Counties Fair to be held August 24 to 28. Tents are to be used because there is no time for erection of permanent fair buildings. A circular dirt track one mile in length is being prepared inside the speedway for the horse races.

Buy An Edison

and hear all the musical artists

Its Re-creation is True—its Tone the Best

No one company has all the good artists at its command for the making of records. Each company has some of the good ones. Everyone has favorites among the artists whose talents are utilized by the different reproducing processes. There is only one way in which you can hear the different records at their best without owning more than one instrument. That way is through buying an Edison. No needle record phonograph can properly play an Edison record. But the Edison will play any needle record as well or better than the machine for which it was made. We are prepared to make comparative tests of the Edison with many of the needle record instruments and we invite you to visit our Phonograph Studio for the purpose of trying it out.

LABOR AGITATORS AWAKEN SLEEPING CHINESE WORKERS

Use of the Strike, Taught in Canton, May Spread Over China.

By CHARLES EDWARD HOGUE,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

SHANGHAI, China, July 20.—Paid agitators who have set the rest of the world on end through labor disturbances have awakened sleeping China and are today engaged in organizing what they hope will be a counterpart of the American Federation of Labor.

Twenty thousand working men are on strike in Canton today and nearly that many have quit their jobs in Shanghai.

Peking and Tientsin are to be the next points of attack and after that, if the preliminary movements against the employer in the larger cities are successful, the plan is to extend the propaganda to the smaller communities throughout the country.

That foreign methods have been adopted by the Chinese leaders is evident and there is a strong suspicion among the authorities that a foreigner is secretly directing the campaign. But thus far all efforts to discover the identity of the "Man Behind the Throne" have been unavailing.

STARTS IN LAUNDRY.

Laundry workers who commit mayhem on soiled garments by processing them through a course of rock-pounding in muddy water at three coppers per garment were the first of the local workers to rise in their wrath and demand better treatment from their bosses. An eight-hour day, double pay for overtime, half-day holiday on Sundays and full pay for national and labor holidays were incorporated in their demands. The laundry owners were aghast. They had never been up against a proposition like that before. Seldom had their menials dared to even raise their eyes to the higher-up, let alone demand or even beg better pay or working conditions.

"It can't be done," they wailed.

"But it will be," grimly retorted the aroused employees. Whereupon they staged a parade demonstration and succeeded in calling out the carpenters, the masons, the cotton spinners and the sawyers. Daily other of the smaller craft are joining the ranks and what threatens to become a general strike is becoming more and more probable.

RIFLEMEN GUARD BUFFALO BANKS

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 20.—Due to the number of increasing bank robberies throughout the United States, Buffalo banking institutions have installed many safety devices to insure against robbery.

Sharpshooters armed with automatic rifles, barricaded in an armour plate cage above the corridor of the Federal Reserve Bank, are on guard to frustrate possible attacks by armed bandits.

The "pill box" contains seven loop holes and looks like a world war fortification. Any point in the bank is a target for the man in the cage.

Additional night guards have been placed in banks and they are now armed with sawed-off shot guns.

Besides visible means of warding off attacks the banks have installed secret appliances that would bring police instantly to the bank where an attack was made and other appliances that would trap the robbers.

Schlichting and W. G. Tibbitts. In addition the commission also includes the members of the council, the city attorney, city engineer, city clerk and city manager.

The appointments to the social service board were Mrs. S. J. Ackerman, Mrs. A. Fourchy, William J. Hamilton, H. D. Maynard, Henry H. Shires and Mrs. Beulah H. Spunn.

The council authorized the construction of a sewer along Buena Vista avenue from Foley to Everett streets.

Following the regular meeting the council held a meeting as a committee of the whole to consider the garbage and water questions.

Dogs Find Friends In Carriers, Says Bureau Contributor

MAIL CARRIER CHARLES L. SPAULDING, for fifteen years in the employ of the government, and for ten years secretary of the local branch National Association of Letter Carriers.

Postman Describes Death of Little Canine Pal Under Wheels of Car.

MAIL CARRIERS who wish to submit contributions to The TRIBUNE'S MAIL CARRIERS' SERVICE BUREAU are requested to send them in immediately. In each sketch it is requested that a short biography of the sender's life in the postal department be given, in addition to the district where he works, and the station he is working from.

In order that more interest may be attached to the BUREAU, each postman is requested to send his picture to The TRIBUNE, accompanying his contribution to the SERVICE BUREAU.

Pictures and sketches of the various Oakland mail carriers will appear three times a week—Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Charles L. Spaulding, mail carrier No. 40, has been a postman for 15 years. He began carrying maill in 1906, shortly after the San Francisco fire, and has been delivering mail to the Court House, Hall of Records, the County Jail and along Sixth street. He was for ten years secretary of the local branch, National Letter Carriers' Association. He delivers mail from station D.

The best friends of the mail carrier according to Spaulding, are the neighborhood dogs, who meet the mail carriers each morning and accompany them around the district, in most cases following the carriers along the route even up to the postoffice, where they must be left outside to return home alone.

According to Spaulding, the most pathetic incident he has encountered during his service as a mail carrier was the death of a small neighborhood dog, Jack.

"Jack, my best canine friend, would meet me each morning at his master's house and play along by my side to the end of the district where I took a car for the postoffice. One morning while delivering mail along Seventh street, the poundman spotted Jack, whose collar and license had evidently been left off. The two poundmen quickly hopped from their wagon, whirling their lariates.

"Little Jack tried his best to escape, but at that moment a Seventh street local came flying down the tracks and frightened, bewildered Jack was driven beneath the wheels.

"I called to the poundmen, but they evidently were unable to hear me above the roar of the train. My little dog friend rolled from under the train with his right paw completely severed. Even thus crippled, he managed to escape his pursuers' ropes and hopped on three legs to his home. There the poundmen found him, in a corner of the front porch, where he had taken refuge. Cornered, he defied the poundmmen until his mistress came to the door, and, seeing his condition, allowed the poundmemn to shoot him to put him out of his misery.

"For many days after as I passed Jack's home I missed his friendly barg and it was with genuine sorrow that I thought of my little friend's gameness and cruel ending."

U. C. GETS CREDIT ON WAR LISTING

BERKELEY, July 20.—The University of California has been placed on the "distinguished institutions" list by the war department for the seventh consecutive year, according to word from Washington. Thirty-four educational institutions in all are on the 1921 list, in recognition of the excellence of the military department and the showing made by the students in the respective colleges and schools.

The University of California is one of the few institutions that have been on the list continuously since 1914. Place on the list carries with it the right for universities and colleges to name one student each, virtually without examination, for appointment as an officer in the regular army, while schools so honored are allowed privileges in sending students to the West Point Military Academy.

"The honor is one which is highly appreciated here," said Colonel J. T. Nance, in charge of the military department. "Winning the honor is due primarily to the hard work and interest of the students of the university. Continuous hard work is essential to winning a place on the list."

Among other institutions on the 1921 list are the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, the Colorado Agricultural College, the University of Washington and the Oregon Agricultural College.

If you see it in The TRIBUNE tell them so.

PORTO RICO GIVES $4,000,000 FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Largest Sum in Island's History Set Aside For Education in 1921 Budget.

SAN JUAN, P. R., July 20.—Out of a budget of $10,000,000 passed by the recent Legislature and just approved by Acting Governor Jose Benedicto, a little more than $4,000,000 is set aside for the public schools of the island. This is $1,000,000 more than the last school budget and the largest amount ever appropriated for education in any one year.

The budget is the largest ever approved. Including bond issues and direct appropriations, the Legislature voted expenditures of $20,000,000, but several of the projects involving large sums may be vetoed by the governor. Among the bond issues authorized were those for $3,000,000 for the extending of a railroad around the island; $1,000,000 for an insular bank; $2,000,000 road extension and improvement bonds, and $1,000,000 for rural schools.

A new income tax law provides a normal tax rate of 3 per cent for both individual and corporate incomes and limits the additional income tax to 15 per cent for individuals and to 20 per cent for corporations.

The law provides that "additional returns" may be filed where revisions are necessary for individuals or firms whose returns last August were based on anticipated profits which were not received.

A commission was authorized to study a proposal that the insular government purchase steamships from the United States shipping board to provide better transportation for the island.

MEXICANS ARREST ALLEGED FALSE EXCHANGE 'ARTIST'

NUEVO LAREDO, Mex., July 20.—Jose Torres has been apprehended by Mexican federal authorities in Monterey, Nuevo Leon, charged with attempting to swindle Mexican and American banks of sums said to total $50,000.

Torres is alleged to have forged the name of the National Bank of Nuevo Laredo to a communication addressed to the Sada Paz & Brother Bank at Monterey, stating that a $10,000 bill of exchange had been sold Torres.

Telegraphic communications from the American Bank revealed the falsity. Torres was arrested when he presented his false bill of exchange. Charges of similarly swindling three other banks in Monterey and Texas, were lodged against him.

SCHOOL NURSE ROW BOBS UP AGAIN

BERKELEY, July 20—An attempt to move the school nursing headquarters from 1645 Bancroft way to the health office in the city hall elicited a lively debate last night at the school board between Mrs. L. E. Blochman, who opposed the plan, and Director C. T. Bartlett, who recommended it. A request that the change be authorized was made by Health Officer E. H. Pape.

"I think it is a case of Dr. Pape trying to hold down two jobs," said Mrs. Blochman. "Besides, he should work under the direction of the school superintendent. We have our health headquarters established and I do not see why we should move them."

Riot of Convicts To Be Investigated

A. Rook, secretary of the board of inspectors. The inspectors' investigation will begin after Warden Francis has completed his inquiry as to the cause of the trouble, Colonel Rook said.

Berkeley Woman Makes Perilous Descent to Lake

MADAME LYDIA STURTEVANT, Berkeley grand opera singer, who is accorded the honor of being the first white woman to reach the shores of Crater Lake, in Southern Oregon.

Struck by Rock in Climbing Precipice in Wilds of Oregon.

BERKELEY, July 20.—The honor of being the first white woman to make the descent to the icy waters of Crater Lake in the Klamath Reserve in southern Oregon has fallen to Madame Lydia Sturtevant, Berkeley grand opera singer. This became known today with the return to Berkeley of the party with which Madame Sturtevant spent an outing in the rough southern Oregon mountains. The party was headed by Dr. and Mrs. Albert E. Sykes, of 77 Domingo road, Berkeley.

According to members of the party, Madame Sturtevant had great difficulty in obtaining the permission of the guides to attempt the trip. In order to reach the shore of the lake it is necessary to descend seventeen hundred feet into the crater of a one-time active volcano. The trail leading into the crater is almost perpendicular. At this season of the year the walls of the crater are a mass of frozen ice and snow and it is necessary to cut each foot-hold into the side of the wall.

STEEP CLIMB MADE.

"We made the descent in 45 minutes," said Madame Sturtevant. "But it took two hours and fifteen minutes to climb out. You go down seventeen hundred feet, but to get out it seems like it is seventeen hundred miles. There is a boat on the lake. From the rim of the crater this boat looks like a little sliver of wood. But it is really a good-sized boat. We had a ride in the boat, visiting all parts of the lake, and we all caught our limit of fish. Each person is allowed to take only five from the lake.

STRUCK BY ROCK.

"On the return trip we were about a third of the way up when an avalanche of rock became loosened just above us and came hurtling down. There was nothing we could do to avoid it, except hug the bank and trust to luck that it would 'jump over' us. This is what happened. I was struck by a rock just below one knee and the wound pained me considerably on the climb, but it really amounted to nothing."

Madame Sturtevant declared the risk was worth while, for it is impossible to obtain any conception of the real beauty of the spot without making the descent.

ALAMEDA C. OF C. TO ELECT HEADS

ALAMEDA, July 20.—A large attendance of officers and members is expected at the annual meeting of the Alameda Chamber of Commerce in the council chambers in the city hall this evening. In addition to the election of seven directors, President Carl E. Strom will submit his annual message, and there will be a series of brief talks on some of the larger projects vitally affecting Alameda. The talks will deal principally with summing up progress to date and the future action of the chamber.

Following the election of the seven new directors the meeting will elect a president and secretary. Following routine procedure the Alameda bank will be named treasurer. The two local banks serve as treasurer for alternate years. The Citizens bank was the treasurer during the year just closed.

Among the speakers who will give brief resumes on special subjects tonight will be Mayor Frank Otis, City Manager C. E. Hickok, City Attorney W. J. Locke, Edward J. Silver and President Strom.

Naval base, free port, consolidation, Government Island, trans-bay bridge, Oakland harbor bridge or subway, water and harbor improvements will all be touched upon.

U. S. Approval of Bay Span First Task of Promoters

Attention of the various committees in charge of the bridge-the-bay movement will be centered for the next few days upon the formulation of plans to gain War Department approval of the general scheme for spanning the bay.

Details to be worked out include the naming of a committee to go to Washington, the calling of a public meeting by the board of army engineers, and the financing of the delegation that is to take the matter up at the national capital.

It was brought out in discussion by the general bridge committee that the Modjeski-Davies plan, though tentative, are sufficient upon which to base War Department approval or disapproval.

In making this declaration the committee places itself on record as in the belief that the location of western end of the bridge only is settled.

It was pointed out that the War Department was interested only in the tunnel and bridge portion of the span and that the causeway and fill portions in the shallow water are not pertinent to the question of approval or disapproval. The Eastbay, the committee says, may settle the line of the bridge from the San Francisco-Alameda county line to the terminal in Oakland. Whether or not the government would object to the plans to build a bridge in the naval base is one of the questions that the committee will have to take up with the authorities.

While the delegation that is to make the Washington trip is not named definitely, it is intimated that it will include: Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco, Mayor John L. Davie of Oakland, Mayor Frank Otis of Alameda, Mayor Louis Bartlett of Berkeley, Supervisor Richard Welch, chairman of the joint conference committee; Supervisor James E. Power, Supervisor J. Emmett Hayden, Supervisor W. J. Hamilton of Alameda county, Supervisor Ralph McLeran, chairman of the subcommittee on finance; Marsden Campbell of Oakland, Joseph E. Caine of Oakland, and City Engineer M. M. O'Shaughnessy of San Francisco.

HERMS IS HEAD OF SCHOOL BOARD

BERKELEY, July 20. — Professor W. B. Herms, newly elected member of the Board of Education, was elected its president last night when reorganization for the new fiscal year was effected. Only four members of the board of five members were present, Mrs. Carrie H. Gibbs being absent.

Director C. T. Bartlett nominated Professor Herms, and Mrs. Ida Blochman nominated Lester Hink. She explained that she wished Hink to head the board because he was familiar with the entire building program of the board. In the vote that followed, Mrs. Blochman voted for Hink, Bartlett voted for Hermms, and Hink voted for Herms, leaving it to Herms to elect himself or cast his vote for Hink, thus making a tie.

Professor Herms explained he had been placed in an embarassing position. He said he wanted the honor of heading the board, but had no desire to place himself in the position by his own vote. In order to relieve the situation Mrs. Blochman offered to change her vote, making the choice unanimous.

Professor Herms held the position as president of the board when he resigned to enter war work at the entry of the United States into the war.

East Bay Water Company

THE commodity handled by this Company is a necessity of life for which no substitute will ever be found.

The large part of the Company's property is of such a character that it is subject to a very slow depreciation.

There is so little change from time to time in the method of handling water that the Company's investment is negligibly affected by the element of obsolescence.

Through ownership of all available reservoir sites, and operating as it does under constitutional franchises without time limit, this Company enjoys a veritable monopoly, subject to regulation by the Railroad Commission.

The management of this Company is conscious of the obligation which accompanies its undertaking to give such an important and rapidly growing community an adequate supply of good water and has always striven to make the Company a public service Corporation in the true sense of the term.

THE following summarized description of the Unifying and Refunding Mortgage 7½% Gold Bonds, Series "A" has been prepared for us by Edwin O. Edgerton, President of the East Bay Water Company, from his letter to us, dated July 15, 1921:

The East Bay Water Company, a California corporation, was formed November 13, 1916. The Company with its predecessors has been engaged for the past fifty-six yeears in the production, distribution and sale of water for domestic and industrial purposes in the Cities of Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, Piedmont, Emeryville, Albany and San Leandro in Alameda County, and Richmond in Contra Costa County. These communities are advantageously located on the eastern shore of San Francisco Bay and have a combined population of 350,000.

First Mortgage 5½% Gold Bonds, due January 1, 1946	$9,928,900.00
Unifying and Refunding Mortgage 7½% Bonds, Series "A" (this issue)	2,500,000.00

Common Stock	100,000.00

*NOTE: These notes are secured by $1,634,000 of First Mortgage 5½% bonds, which must be deposited as collateral under the Unifying and Refunding Mortgage when the notes are retired.

These bonds will be a direct obligation of the Company and a mortgage upon all of its properties now owned or hereafter acquired.

The Unifying and Refunding Mortgage will have an authorized issue of $50,000,000 and will provide that when and as the remaining bonds of the First Mortgage can be issued and when and if additional First Mortgage Bonds are released to the Company by the payment of the 6% Note Issue due August 1, 1923, such bonds must be immediately deposited with the Trustee of the Unifying and Refunding Mortgage. There will be immediately deposited under the Unifying and Refunding Mortgage $2,500,000 of First Mortgage 5½% Bonds. Eventually there will be deposited under the Unifying and Refunding Mortgage approximately $4,939,100 par value of First Mortgage 5½% Bonds, which will be approximately 33% of the total First Mortgage Bonds outstanding.

Additional bonds may be issued only at par for 75% of the cost of new construction, additions and betterments, and then only when net earnings for 12 months out of the preceding 15 months shall have been sufficient to show 1¾ times the total interest on all outstanding bonded debt and the interest on bonds of this mortgage for which certification may have been requested.

Based upon the valuation of the Company's properties made by the Railroad Commission of the State of California at the time of the incorporation of the Company plus subsequent expenditures for improvements, extensions and betterments of plant, the present physical property investment of the Company as of January 1, 1921, is $19,180,000. The Company owns in excess of 45,400 acres of real estate conservatively valued at $7,250,000. Based upon the estimated increased growth of the East Bay cities, the present developed water supplies of the East Bay Water Company are sufficient for the next 10 years. Based upon the number of services in use, the East Bay Water Company is the second largest privately owned water utility in the United States. The total number of services installed as of January 1, 1921, were 70,203, an increase in the past ten years of 27,528 services, or 65%.

The proceeds of this bond issue will be used to reimburse the Company's treasury for capital expenditures heretofore made, to provide funds for the acquisition of additional property and for necessary improvement to the plant of the Company.

Application will be made to the Superintendent of Banks to certify these bonds as a legal investment for savings banks in California. These bonds are offered subject to their issue being authorized by the Railroad Commission of the State of California.

All legal details incident to the issuance of these bonds will be under the supervision of Messrs. Goodfellow, Eells, Moore & Orrick, Attorneys at Law, San Francisco.

ALAMEDA LOOT INCLUDES PINK BOAT AND AUTO

Purses Snatched From Park Benches and Swimmer Loses Suitcase.

ALAMEDA, July 20.—Thieves operating in Alameda during the past 24 hours showed little discrimination in what they termed loot, according to the reports made the police department during the night and this morning. The thefts ranged from a pink rowboat to a $3000 automobile.

The automobile was the property of George Mastick of 930 Pacific avenue. The thieves forced an entrance into the garage early last night. The car was recovered early this morning, stripped of practically everything removable, on the highway not far from Martinez.

The pink rowboat was the property of John Restauch of 2047 Lincoln avenue, and it was stolen on the estuary. Later it was recovered in the possession of Herbert Smith, who informed the police that he had obtained it from a strange man by trading a canoe. Now Smith is looking for his canoe.

Two purses also comprised the loot of the light-fingered gentry. Mrs. Clyde B. Tompkins, 1617 Eighth street, sat down on a bench in Washington park. She put her purse on the bench. While her attention was attracted in another direction some one walked off with the purse, which contained $16. Mrs. J. C. Veirs, 754 Sixty-first street, Oakland, also lost her purse in Washington park and in an almost identical manner.

War Correspondence Begun "In Fun" to End in Marriage

MISS LETA MECARTNEY of Alameda, who, as the result of a wartime correspondence, will marry Lieutenant Louis Edmond Aubert, a French war hero, in San Francisco on July 27.

Alameda Society Girl Will Wed French Hero of the War

ALAMEDA, July 20. — Love always defiant of barriers, whether real or imagined, has again defied the well-ordered in romance, stretched across six thousand miles and claimed its reward after four years of waiting.

Four years ago while the war was at its height, Miss Leta Megartney, Alameda girl, and member of one of the most prominent families of the Eastbay, started correspondence with Lieutenant Louis Edmond Aubert, a French war hero, whose name, along with the names of several other officers, appeared in a French magazine accompanied by an appeal for letters.

Like many other society girls, Miss Mecartney began a correspondence, never dreaming that in the first letter she would receive in answer to a letter she wrote "just in fun," would come the barbed dart which resulted in the romance which will culminate in a marriage in the French Catholic church of San Francisco on Wednesday afternoon, July 27.

As time went on the letters grew more frequent. Pictures were interchanged, a little later. After two years of correspondence, Lieutenant Aubert decided to risk his future happiness in one letter. What he said in that letter only his fiancee knows, but in her answer he found that she would be waiting when he came to claim her for his own.

That was two years ago. Lieutenant Aubert arrived in Alameda five weeks ago, and it was with marked approval that he and his fiancee gazed upon the originals of the photographs interchanged long ago.

At the wedding ceremony only the immediate members of Miss Mecartney's family will be present. The utmost simplicity will be observed.

About August 10 the couple will leave for New York, and will sail from there to France. They are to reside at Pau, in the Pyrenees.

Miss Mecartney is a daughter of the late Amos Mecartney, well-known capitalist. Lieutenant Auvert served with the French army as an aviator. He was decorated with the Croix de Guerre for bravery, and is a member of the French Legion of Honor.

What's Happening in the Motor World

by Jim Houlihan

Nearly a hundred men of the automotive industry of Alameda county attended the annual banquet of the Alameda County Automobile Trade Association at the Hotel Claremont last night.

The principal business of the evening was the election of officers for the coming year. David Jones of Butler-Veitch company was named as president; A. E. Berg, of the A. E. Berg company, and Nelson Scotchler, Berkeley Ford dealer, were elected vice presidents. Chas. L. Hebrank, of Hebrank-Hunter and Peacock was re-elected treasurer and Robert W. Martland was returned as secretary-manager.

There were several speakers invited; who told of commercial conditions and outlined the need of better business principles.

L. H. Bennett, who is giving his services to garages and automotive establishments who need business help, told of the trend of the times and pointed out the need of a real bookkeeping system in the business. He said that nearly 90 per cent of the smaller garages had no such systems.

Walter Fawcett, legislative representative of the California Automobile Trade Association, told of the work done in combatting bad bills at the last session.

Walter Hesse, retiring president of the association, traced the work done in the last year and expressed the hope that the good work would continue.

Robert W. Martland, secretary-manager of the organization, reviewed the history of the movement of associations, and pointed out the fact that the Alameda county body is the oldest in the state, and that the state association was formed with this county as the first.

"The Alameda County Automobile Trade Association is now seven years old," said Martland. "Seven years ago a few men in the automotive business decided that conditions had reached a point where they must organize or get out. A few planted the seed of the automotive trade association idea, which has grown to include 3500 men in California, and similar organizations in eighteen states of the Union.

"Conditions in 1914 and 1915 in this city were awful. No man had the nerve to demand a fair price for his product. All legitimate profits were wiped out and we stood to be eliminated as business men.

"Since that time conditions have changed. We are making better business men in the automobile field, and will continue the good work."

Members of the association presented Hesse with a fountain pen, as a token of their appreciation of the work he has done in the last year.

Clifford A. Williams, general manager of the Tunison Motor company, an Oakland concern which will soon build an eight-cylinder car of unique design, told the gathering of his plans for the future, and says he was glad to be back in Oakland.

R. C. Reubens, sales manager of the Tunison company, spoke on business ethics and declared that the trend of the times was toward better business.

OFFICIALS CAMP OUT, STATE PAYS BILLS, IS CHARGE

Westerfeld's Criticism of Fish and Game Commission Considered Weeks Ago.

That there is nothing new in the charges of Carl Westerfeld, former executive officer of the Fish and Game Commission, that members of the commission have enjoyed summer vacations at the expense of the State and that the whole question has received official attention on other occasions is the answer returned today to the latest publication of the Westerfeld story.

Westerfeld put the matter before Governor Stephens some time ago, before either Clyde Seavey or Stanley Benedict resigned from the State Board of Control.

Westerfeld says that Frank M. Newbert of Sacramento and Michael J Connell of Los Angeles have established a private summer camp at Mammoth, in Mono county, and that they use State employees for servants. Connell, in a written statement to the Governor, has declared that deputy game wardens have visited the camp and that they found it a "pleasant change" from their regular duties. Letters from various employees are said to be on file.

To take the place of Dr. Carol Aronovici, at present adviser and city planner for Berkeley and Richmond, as director of the department of housing, Edward Glass, manager of a San Francisco firm of architects has been appointed by Governor Stephens. Glass will direct the commission's activities in the investigation and preparation of measures to be introduced at the next legislature, and will be in charge of the enforcement of the State housing act. He is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and a member of the State Board of Architecture.

It is announced today by Harold J. McCurry of Sacramento that he has lost all chance of being named postmaster of his city and that a historic scrap for the appointment is ended. A decision to leave the selection with the Congressman from the district means that J. M. Higgins will be named. In the meanwhile Tom Fox, Democrat, is holding the job. Fox has refused to resign.

Dance Planned by Veterans of War

Col. John Jacob Astor Post No. 85, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, will hold its annual get together dance tomorrow night at College Hall, Twenty-second and Grove streets. R. E. Ex-service men who are eligible to the order have been invited to attend.

FAMOUS OLD 999 AGAIN WILL HAUL 'REGULAR' TRAIN

Holder of Record Will Be a Part of Exhibit At Chicago Pageant.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Traveling swiftly and alone, the old New York Central engine No. 999, proud holder of a record of 112.5 miles an hour, which has not been equalled in 28 years, reached New York today from the railroad shops at Avis, Pa., where she has been refurnished in her original colors for a run to Chicago with the famous old DeWitt Clinton train.

The DeWitt Clinton train, which is to make the trip in state on flat cars, will be exhibited at the pageant of progress in Chicago, beginning July 30, as the pioneer American steam passenger train.

The once-famous 999 will take up her post nearby as an exhibit of the original high-speed American locomotive.

Old 999, erstwhile pride of the Central, was called in from a prosaic daily run through the Beech Creek coal mining district of Pennsylvania to be refitted for the cross-country run. After the exhibition is over she will return to her humble tasks.

But during her trip to Chicago she will be her old self. Charles Hogan of Buffalo, who drove the high-wheeled, hand-built marvel in her record-breaking trip on May 10, 1893, will be at the throttle. The engine will look just as she did back in the nineties, even to the legend "Empire State Express" in gold script on her tender.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—The circumstances surrounding the mysterious injury of George Wagstaff, 34 years old, of 371 Sanchez street, were made the subject of police investigation today. On being revived slightly he said he thought he had been struck by an automobile and could remember being directed to the hospital. He was treated for concussion of the brain as there was no apparent injury. This morning his condition still being uncertain, he was removed to Franklin Hospital. The police have heard of no one who saw the accident nor has anyone reported aiding Wagstaff to reach the hospital.

BABE NAMED IN YOSEMITE VALLEY

YOSEMITE July 20.—Miss Loya Louette Bryant, aged one year, became a real Yosemite baby yesterday by being christened in Yosemite creek and given two Indian names typical of the beautiful valley in which she was born last summer. She is the daughter of Dr. H. C. Bryant of the University of California, one of the nature guides provided by the government to instill a love of the out-of-doors in those who visit Yosemite. Loya is the Indian name for Sentinal Rock and Louette is an abbreviation for Illilouette, one of Yosemite's beautiful waterfalls. The Rev. Montgomery of San Mateo officiated at the christening, which took place at the foot of Yosemite Falls.

Loya is not the only Yosemite baby now here, for her father found a tiny fawn several days ago in Bridal-veil Meadows and a youthful cinnamon bear has been a much petted resident for several months. It might be added, also, that Dr. Bryant has a baby king snake in his collection at park headquarters.

Word was received here today of the death in Baltimore of Mrs. Cynthia Arne Benham, California pioneer and aunt of Mrs. Clara Ellis and Mrs. Emma Overington and grandaunt of Agnes Arne Colvin, all of this city.

Mrs. Benham was mother of the Rev. DeWitt Miles Benham, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church of Baltimore and the widow of DeWitt Clinton Benham. Born in New York, she early pioneered to California with her husband, later returning with him to make her home in Pennsylvania. After her husband's death she resided with her son in Baltimore and traveled extensively with him in Europe.

ENGINEERS VOTE TO GO BACK TO WORK ON SHIPS

Reduced Pay Is Accepted and Break in Maritime Strike Made.

The first big break in the maritime strike that has tied up shipping on the Pacific coast and has thrown hundreds of men out of employment, came today with the announcement that the Marine Engineers have voted to return to work on the privately owned vessels. They returned to Shipping Board ships two weeks ago.

The end of the marine strike, so far as the engineers are concerned, came after a ballot had been taken within the membership of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association with an expression of 490 to 50 favoring the return. About one-third of the total membership voted, as the rest are employed on Shipping Board vessels and on ferries.

The engineers are to return under the terms of the agreement, which calls for a 15 per cent reduction in wages and the elimination of overtime. According to Ernest F. Pegg of Oakland, business manager and secretary of the association, the engineers have done the only thing to do under the circumstances and are going back to the ships to show the owners that the members of the organization are the most efficient operators in their line obtainable.

The strike started on May 1, when the general reduction in wages was announced by the Shipping Board. Engineers, seamen, firemen, cooks, stewards and radio operators walked out. On June 13 the Shipping Board offered terms that the men work on the reduced scale until April 30, 1922, and the engineers' representative, W. S. Brown, signed the agreement. While Brown was made the center of a storm of criticism from the unions when he signed the paper, he is now given credit as being far-sighted.

The Sailors' Union recently voted against returning to work and the Marine Firemen, Oilers and Watertenders have also rejected the new terms.

Klu Klux Klan Gives $500 to Orphan Home

DALLAS, Tex., July 20.—Knights of the Klu Klux Klan have contributed $500 to the support of Hope Cottage here, dedicated to the care of homeless children. The money was mailed to a local newspaper yesterday with a letter saying a number of infants being cared for by the institution "are due directly to lax enforcement of the law," a condition "which must be met."

Jewelry valued at $1,000 was reported stolen last night by Mrs. T. S. Tennant, 438 Athol avenue. The entrance to the house was gained by cutting the screen off the back door and they using a pass key. The jewelry included several watches, three rings, a bracelet and a number of other articles.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 20, 1921.

AN OPTIMISTIC NOTE.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover, in two addresses in Boston last week, delivered a message of good cheer for the people of the United States. They constitute a command for optimistic outlook, for up-raised vision and hopeful, industrious effort. "We have passed through several depressions since the Civil War and we have already turned the corner of this one," he said. That is a sort of summing up of his survey of the country and the day.

To dispose of the least important point first, Mr. Hoover showed that trade relations have been resumed with Russia on a practical scale and that Russia is obtaining from this country all the commodities for which she is able to arrange payment. Orders for millions of shoes are being filled in New England for Russian delivery and Russia is also buying heavily of agricultural machinery and a few other pressing necessities. Payment is being made from gold which has been melted down and shipped through Sweden, the transactions being put through regular channels from the latter country, Mr. Hoover said.

This probably will discourage the Bolshevist sympathizers in this country who have been crying for a long time that the only way business between the United States and Russia could be carried on was for the Washington government first to pronounce full and categorical recognition of the soviet regime of Moscow. It is shown that trade is possible without going to such questionable lengths as to officially endorse a movement that is nothing less than warfare on all civilized governments. The Bolshevist pleaders have based their argument on the ground that we need Russia's trade, as Russia needs ours. But apparently trade is possible with nothing more substantial than a reliable medium of exchange.

Mr. Hoover, referring to the feeling of uneasiness and even of pessimism throughout the country regarding the future of the export business, said he did not participate in this sentiment. We are today the only great source of enlarged food production. Europe must and will draw from us a great proportion of food supplies that she formerly drew from Russia, he pointed out, and then expressed this view:

"I see no basic reason why we should not continue to export approximately the same large volume of foodstuffs that we have shipped abroad during the last twelve months. This item alone, at even present prices, would be triple our pre-war food exports and would represent the equal of more than 60 percent of our whole pre-war export trade.

"Another great but uncertain shift in world forces will arise out of Germany. Germany is left, without much gold, foreign property or foreign business earnings of consequence; therefore her payments must be made mostly by the sale of manufactured goods outside her borders. But beyond the reparation payments, she must also sell goods abroad in the amounts necessary to buy her imports of food and raw materials.

"If we analyze the effect of these forces on the market for our manufactured goods, either in Europe or in our much larger market outside of Europe, we quickly find two directions in which we occupy a position of some security. The first is in those exports of lower production costs which are the result of great repetitive our pre-war food exports, and would represent production, which has its firm root in our enormous consumption. The second is in that large number of special manufactures in which the inventive genius and skill of our people have been developed beyond any country in the world. We will recover and can hold our share of the market for these products after the present world depression."

In view of the fact that exports are vital to the stabilization of American industries, of price levels, wages and employment, there is substantial encouragement to be drawn from this outlook, especially when described by one so intimately acquainted with world conditions and the currents of international commerce and credits. So long as we can sell abroad the surplus produced by American farms and factories, the future is not dark. And the foreign demand for our products gives signs of being permanently larger than before the war; that is, while the prevailing prices may give a smaller value to the exports than recorded during the height of the war period, the quantity required by foreign countries will continue to be nearly as large, if not quite so, as during the war.

There is something necessary for the cure of depression, however, besides foreign markets. Mr. Hoover referred to it in these terms:

"But when all is done, the real cure for all depression is courage and applied intelligence and the return to primary virtues of hard, conscientious toil and economy in living. On every side there is evidence that the vast majority of our whole nation is making again an effort in those directions equaled only by that of 1918, and the day some months ago when we entered this effort we fundamentally turned the corner of this depression. While our recovery may be slower than some may expect, nothing can prevent the prosperity of a country where the people have enlightenment, wish to work, wish to produce, and wish to do right by their neighbors."

General exhibition of this spirit will help greatly. It seems abundantly justified. Certainly there is no occasion for despondency if the rules laid down are followed. With the government doing all that is possible of a practical nature, without taking up costly paternalistic projects, the nation will soon be out of the woods—at least in the thin timber.

AN AMICABLE ADJUSTMENT.

Another pleasant bit of news is that telling of the settlement of the differences between the operators and employees of the Oakland Traction Company and Key System electric lines. The proposal of the company to reduce wages by six cents an hour for all platform men, or approximately sixty cents a day, had been pending for some time, but the general public took little notice of it.

This was because the spirit of arbitration and joint discussion prevailed. After a series of conferences between the management and representatives of the traction employees' union, a new wage scale was agreed upon. Both sides placed their "cards on the table" and made a careful examination of conditions. The result was that at a mass meeting of the employees in the Municipal auditorium early yesterday morning the new wage scale was approved by a two to one vote.

This readiness of the employees to accept an equitable share of the burden of readjustment is to be commended. And the tactics employed are particularly praiseworthy. There were no threats of a tie up of transportation facilities or other efforts at intimidation; no blustering or arbitrariness on either side. Common sense business methods were followed and the public is now consoled by the fact that an agreement for at least another year of amicable relations has been reached.

CHINA AT THE CONFERENCE.

China's announcement, made with marked alacrity, that she is willing to join the proposed international conference on disarmament should not be misinterpreted. China already is disarmed. In fact she has never been armed in the modern meaning of military and naval establishments. No nation fears China. As a military power she is not more menacing at present than Porto Rico.

But China is quite willing, if not anxious, to see her neighbors put a limit on their armaments. Should Japan cease military and naval expansion, a change in the policy of aggression and coercion which Japan has long pursued with reference to China might be noticed. There is not much hope for this, but still there is a chance and China is in such distress that she would welcome even this small chance.

It is not with this hope alone in mind that China contemplates participation in the international conference, however. There are other and vital reasons. China is directly interested in all the Pacific questions which trouble the world. Korea, Russia, Shantung, Yap Island, Manchuria and Mongolia as these areas have become the spheres of Japanese aggression, concern her most seriously and intimately. China should have a seat at the international conference on disarmament. She was denied the opportunity and her right to discuss several of these questions at the Paris peace conference. At Washington she should be heard.

Referring to the proposed Harding conference on disarmament the London Times observes that "The task of the conference will be as delicate and, unless discerningly approached, as dangerous as any that any conference ever essayed to discharge." This newspaper advises the utmost deliberation in preparing the schedule of discussions and the subjects to be taken up, and the liberal employment of expert knowledge in threshing out the subjects before they are brought before the plenary sessions. This seems to be sound counsel. Covenants cannot always be arrived at successfully in the open, despite the assertion of one distinguished American to the contrary. Careful and non-public deliberation is nearly always necessary, and it suffices that after they are made they are fully exposed to the people concerned before they are irrevocably ratified.

There must be in the hands of those who predict an end to war by 1923 some advance information as to the date of termination of the wars between Greece and Turkey, between the Poles and the Germans, between Russian Bolshevism and its neighbors and an antidote for the prevailing hatred marking the relations between the Jugoslavs and the Italians.

Yale University may boast that it has sent one professor to the Chief Justiceship of the United States. But there have been thousands of other professors who never got anywhere.

NOTES and COMMENT

The very old stunt of a police magistrate fining himself is reported every little while from various points, the most recent instance occurring at Jamestown, North Dakota. Judge Murphy drove on the wrong side of the street, was arrested by a policeman, fined himself one dollar and paid it. The original stunt of this character was pulled off in Oakland, more than a quarter of a century ago by Judge Alexander Laidlaw. It seems to have had many imitations.

One of the methods of the revived Ku Klux is the tar-and-feathers treatment. We read of it being applied in several instances. Like all summary and anonymous proceedings it is often taken advantage of to wreak private vengeance, and anyhow, lynch proceedings seldom permanently cure an ill, and the aftermath is often bad.

* * *

I. W. W. are again figuring in the news. They are charged with two murders in South Dakota, and with terrorizing railway lines at Omaha. This organization has great tenacity, and a concerted effort, and perhaps the passage of more summary laws, will be necessary to safeguard life and property against it.

Whenever a foreign power wishes a favor from Uncle Sam it reminds him of the inestimable help it lent in his struggle for independence. The number of countries which now claim to have aided in the enterprise is enormous, and indicates that Washington and his patriots must have had a pretty easy time of it sitting around in luxury at Valley Forge and letting the allies do the work.—Kansas City Star.

That an able-bodied man, and a soldier at that, can get so far in a mountain crevice that it takes a hundred other men with 500 feet of rope to rescue him was curiously demonstrated in the Yosemite last Sunday. The estray did not suffer injury, but a number of his rescuers risked their lives.

The President's editorial chair, gift of journalists, is substantial, solid and ornate, not throne-like or gaudy. While it may be too grand for everyday service it is not an impossible piece of furniture, and constitutes a souvenir that is likely to be cherished. The picture of the President sitting in it shows that chair and man harmonize in the characteristics of solidity and sturdiness.

* * *

The Stockton Record approves. "A San Francisco judge has determined that in his court no woman who lives with her husband not longer than a year shall have alimony if there are no children and she is able to support herself. Another good reason for women to continue the role of the clinging vine and avoid taking jobs to support themselves. But the judge is right."

* * *

"New York churches to advertise in papers." Nothing new in that. In fact, the churches here have been doing it extensively. Advertising is good for anything that the populace should know about. The surprising thing is that it has taken churches and banks so long fully to realize that fact.

* * *

The new head of the shipping board finds the financial affairs of that body to be "shocking." He asks of Congress an appropriation of three hundred millions to reduce the shock. It would seem to be a stupendous exemplification of the feat of throwing good money after bad. However, it is probably necessary to do something.

SPIRIT of the STATE PRESS

The directors of the California State Fair recently supervised the compilation of what is said to be the best premium list ever issued by any State Fair. Now comes a letter from a Santa Rosan calling attention to several glaring omissions in the list, chief of which is the absence of awards for the best samples of home brew, jackass brandy and prune juice.—Concord Transcript.

An American Legion Post proposes a purse of a quarter of a million dollars to any ex-service man of any of the Allied armies who can whip Jack Dempsey within a year. The purse may not be raised, but the conqueror of Jack Dempsey will be an international hero.—Sacramento Bee.

The engineers employed to make a survey of the proposal to bridge San Francisco bay have declared the scheme to be entirely feasible. The proposal is stupendous, but there is no occasion for any one to stand aghast. The ferry boat system between San Francisco and Oakland has become antiquidated and inadequate.—Stockton Record.

Richmond has entered into a 10-year contract with the Richmond Scavenger company for the disposal of garbage, the city council approving the contract, which terminates on 30 days' notice in case the city disapproves of the service at any time.—Richmond Terminal.

MR. FORDNEY'S OIL DAM.

The American people know that for several years they have heard warnings from all sides that this country's oil supply is in danger of running dry. They know that the best engineering genius and the highest statesmanship in the country have been patriotically contending that the welfare of the nation demands that foreign consumers should not be permitted to drain us of our reserves while refusing to let us have our reasonable share of theirs.

The American people know that the secretary of commerce is deeply concerned over this grave national question. They know that the secretary of state is vigorously insisting with great powers that this nation must have its rights to oil land grants in foreign territories recognized along with those European nations that claim exclusive first mortgages on them. They know that the President of the United States is contesting to the limit this deadly dangerous discrimination against us in foreign fields.

The American people know that every barrel of oil brought into this country is as good as a barrel of oil saved of our own home supply and for that reason the foreign oil must not be shut out.

When, therefore, the national administration is doing everything in its power to get foreign oil into this country as an imperative need of American industry, welfare and life what the American people want to know is why Chairman Fordney's ways and means committee insists on building a tariff dam in front of that foreign oil to keep it out.

And what the American people will want to know from the whole membership of Congress when it takes up the Fordney measure on the floor is whether Congress is going to stand for Fordney's prohibitive oil duty or whether Congress is going to kill it as dead as a door nail.

The House and the Senate will be called upon to answer this question by the nation. They might as well get their reply ready now.—New York Herald.

What They "'Awked."

Mr. W. Reid Dick, the famous sculptor, tells an amusing story of a cockney couple on a visit to the Royal academy.

One picture in particular attracted their attention, and they gazed at it long and earnestly. It's title in the catalog was "Hawking in the Olden Days."

"'Awking in the olden days," murmured the puzzled 'Enry, furrowing his brows. "Well, they didn't 'arf do it. My word, 'orseback an' all."

"Rather," agree 'Arriet. "But wot are they 'awking?"

Uncertainties.

"What is your position on this grave public question?"

About YOUR HEALTH

Every Mother Ought To Confide in Her Own Doctor

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D., Commissioner of Health, New York City.

It is bad enough to have a sick baby when you live just around the corner from a good doctor. But how would you feel if the nearest doctor were 80 miles away?

The other day I had a most pathetic letter from a despairing mother who lives in a remote mountain fastness. Her baby was sick and the nearest doctor was 80-horse-back miles away! No railroads, no electric lines, no roadways—nothing but a mountain track over which a horse might pick his way.

There she lives with a heart full of eager questions about the health of her ailing baby. Somebody said that God can't be everywhere, so he made mothers to take His place. Under such circumstances I have related, the mother herself needs all the consolation the Divine Father can give.

From the time of expectant motherhood to the end of her days, every woman should be given special attention. The stress of the early months of motherhood, the cares of bringing up a family, the drains and scars of maternity, all these predispose to conditions of health and possibilities of disease which demand watchful guarding against.

Immediately on suspicion of approaching maternity medical examination and advice are needed. From this time forward, heart, kidneys, lungs and all the other vital organs must be kept under medical supervision.

Mothers should confide in their family physicians. Every good doctor is glad to answer questions. He will think it strange if you do not ask him about the things which puzzle you. No feeling of restraint or of delicacy should deter you from getting the information you would like to have. Many of the questions may relate to unimportant matters, but others need the right answers because they have to do with things of the greatest importance to your health and the life of your child.

Make your doctor your confidential friend, and then thank heaven that he lives in the next block and not 80 horseback miles away, with no telephone and a mail but once a week at best. Bad as it may be, the city has its compensations. Fortunately, good roads and automobiles have shortened distances in the country.

Mothers have an easier time nowadays, but each of us wishes for one particular mother that some way might be found to make it easier still!

Wouldn't Last Long.

"How delightful to live in this solitary spot," he remarked to the farmer.

"I'm no sae shair about that, sir," replied the farmer. "Hoo wad ye like to hae to gang fifteen miles for a glass of whusky?"

"Oh, said the tourist, "but you could keep a bottle."

The farmer shook his head.

"Ah, mon," he said seriously, "whusky'll no keep." — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

LIONS SPEND DAY ON TRIP AROUND BAY

Caravan of 100 Autos Take Delegates to Many Points of Interest Down Peninsula; Dinner At San Jose

A caravan of more than one hundred automobiles, driven by Oakland citizens and containing delegates to the fifth annual convention of the International Association of Lions' Clubs in session in Oakland this week, left the Hotel Oakland this morning for San Francisco via the harbor route ferry on an extended sightseemg trip down the peninsula. The caravan was under command of Walter Hesse, Oakland Lion, and chairman of the convention transportation committee, assisted by J. Cal Ewing and E. O. "Chub" Deming.

The fleet of Lion laden automobiles arrived in San Francisco shortly after 9 o'clock and the head of the column was immediately pointed down the peninsula, Walter Hesse blazing the trail, followed by other Lions at frequent intervals along the procession.

ROUTE OF CARAVAN.

The route taken by the caravan was as follows:

Through San Francisco via El Camino Real to Burlingame and San Mateo. Luncheon servey by the Oakland Lions club and the San Mateo Chamber of Commerce at the San Mateo. Luncheon served by the Oak-Following the luncheon, the column drove to Half Moon bay, via Crystal Springs, San Gregorio, La Honda, through the Redwood Forest to Stanford University.

After an inspection of the university the column will proceed through the Santa Clara Valley to San Jose, where dinner will be served at the Hotel Vendome by the Oakland Lions club. The entertainment program will be furnished by the San Jose Lions club.

The return to Oakland will be made by moonlight about 9 o'clock via Mission San Jose.

There will be no business transacted today by the convention as a body nor by committees, as Wednesday has been designated by the Oakland club as a day of pleasure in preparation for the two remaining days of the convention, which, according to plans, will be replete with business and convention routine duties.

SAN JOSE TO ENTERTAIN.

The caravan of automobiles will be met at the Santa Clara county line by a delegation of San Jose Lions, who will escort the visitors to the chapel at Stanford University, where an organ recital will be given. From there the fleet of cars will be escorted to the Hotel Vendome in San Jose, where dinner will be served in the gardens. William G. Alexander of the San Jose club, former district governor, will be the speaker. During the banquet a military band will render selections.

Members of the San Francisco Lions club led the procession through the streets to Burlingame. Sam Losh, the Fort Worth (Texas) songbird, chairman of the music committee, accompanied the party and led the Lions in singing along the way.

Increase Is $176,000,000, Declares C. F. Stern, Former Superintendent in An Address At Lions Meeting

Although the world has just experienced a sharp decline in commodity values and business and finance has slowed up, the state banks demonstrated their sound foundations and the thrifty habits of California people when they showed $176,000,000 more deposits at the beginning of 1921 than they did in 1920, Charles F. Stern, former state bank examiner and Los Angeles banker, declared yesterday in his address before the delegates to the fifth annual convention of the International Association of Lions Clubs.

Stern said in part: "California is a religion—a faith with me. Since the early days in the early fifties, when men existed by might instead of right, the people of this far western state displayed a courage, an optimism and liking for all that was right when they established outside the law a respect and liking for all that the law meant. By organizing the old Vigilantes, comprised of the best citizens the state had to offer, the old Golden State was saved until such time as the rough element and the tricksters and grafters could be either run out of the country or made to festoon some giant oak tree.

BANKS STAND UP.

"And now after one of the greatest struggles the world has ever known, I with, many of California's sons, under white crosses in France and in hospitals here, the State of California has finally come into its own.

"Despite the business depression of 1920 and despite the sharpest decline in commodity values the country has ever experienced, the state has emerged, richer, wiser,, and cognizant of the fact that the western coast can take care of its own problems with its own capital and without any assistance from the east."

Stern declared that the people of the state are learning that there is no substitute for work He continued:

"At last we are getting away from silk shirt sovereignty and striking back toward honest-to-God work and industry. The people have found through sad experience that there never will be a substitute for work and that the quack-substitutes can never be applied to industry.

"Business and finance are passing through a delousing period—unpleasant, but inevitable. Values had to be readjusted after the war hysteria and inflation and high prices in order that normal business might be resumed. The process is by no means a total liability, for we are getting rid of a lot of things that would otherwise be extremely dangerous.

RED MENACE.

"And to you people from the East the so-called 'menace of the reds' cannot mean as much to you as it does to us. The state was flooded with the advocates of the I. W. W. just prior to the return of our boys from across the seas, but when the war was over and those 2,000,000 boys returned to their homes they announced that 'if the old state was good enough to fight and die for in times of war it was certainly worth enough to think and plan and act for in times of peace.' Return of the boys who wore the uniform of the army and navy during the war saw the final passing of the reds from the state of California."

What the country as a whole needs right now, Stern said, in continuing his speech, was faith in the present soundness of our industry and our laws and faith in our financial machinery because of its demonstrated results.

Concerning the faith in the state and nation he said:

"Let the peopel take care of their health and their nerves—the banks will take care of their money. But focusing on California, I want to tell you that our State is in as preferred a condition in the nation as as the nation is in the world. Our prosperity is based on essential food production.

2,000,000 DEPOSITORS.

"Demonstrative of the prosperity is the fact that 2,000,000 people of the State are depositors in our bank, with a per capita deposit of $600, which is phenomenal even in normal times and ranks us fifth among the States of the nation, while we are eighth in population.

"Increases in bank deposits by the laboring people are the real reasons and foundations for the great prosperity of the State."

Ewen Cameron and Judge John P. Garner, first vice-president and director of the international body, respectively, and candidates for presidency of the international body, were introduced by Le Roy Goodrich, chairman of the day.

Following a short address by the Rev. John Snape, pastor of the First Baptist church and member and director of the Oakland Lions club, the Lion delegates stood with head bent to the toast to "Womanhood." Rev. Snape spoke of the effect women had upon the nation, particularly upon the Lions club.

At the afternoon session at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, Harry A. Newman, international director of Canada, spoke on "Lionism as an International Factor," followed a short while later by Edward S. Vaught of Oklahoma City, Okla., who spoke on "Lionism and Service."

A drive over the Skyline boulevard and to the University of California, followed by a concert and musical program in the evening at the Hotel Oakland, concluded the long day's program.

MRS. H. S. "MOLLIE" KIGGENS, assistant secretary of the Los Angeles Lions Club and official chaperon of the delegation from southern California. The only woman secretary in the Lions Clubs of California, "Mollie" is the life of the southern delegation. Under her direction the delegates from the south have become the most prominent at the convention.

DEATH BARES DOUBLE LIFE OF ALAMEDAN

William Brady, Retired Meteorologist, Who Slashed Throat, Married Twice; Home Left to 3d Woman

The claim of a woman to the large estate of William Brady, Civil War veteran and retired meteorologist, who committed suicide at his Alameda home nearly a month ago, has brought to light the fact that he was married to two women, neither of whom had secured a divorce.

Brady, who was more than 70 years of age, slashed his throat at his home, 1423 Central avenue, Alameda, June 28, and died at the Alameda emergency hospital July 4. The day following his attempt at suicide he called in Attorney Edward J Silver to make his will, saying he was a widower and leaving a home at 1312 Regent street, Alameda, to a friend, Mrs. Sophie K Bennett, who was living in the house. The balance of his estate he left to five children, Huber Brady, 36; Priscilla Brady, 33; Katherine Brady, 31; William Brady, Jr., 29; Samuel Brady, 21.

Soon after Brady's death, Mrs. Nellie Emerson Brady sought Silver and informed him she was Brady's wife, having married him in Oakland, September 4, 1909 Silver investigated and found this to be true, but also discovered Brady had married in Dayton, Ohio, in 1881, and that this wife had filed suit for divorce in Ohio in 1918, but had dismissed the action on the signing of an agreement giving her $1600 in cash as her share of her husband's property.

Since the marriage in Oakland was illegal, Mrs. Nellie Brady has no claim as a wife, Silver pointed out to the court, and the agreement signed by the first wife prevents her from claiming any of the property. It is stated Mrs. Nellie Brady will not contest the will The whereabouts of the first wife is unknown. All of the five children are unmarried. They are living in Toledo, Ohio, except William, who is in Fairmont, West Virginia.

Brady was for years connected with the United States meteorological corps

Delay in Restoring Fast Trains to L. A.

Mayor John L. Davie today received a letter by John J. Byrne, assistant general manager of the Santa Fee Railroad Company, in which he stated that The Saint" and "The Angel," both fast trains which formerly ran between this city and Los Angeles, will not be restored to service for some time.

Several days ago the mayor wrote a letter to Byrne asking that the two trains be restored, as the company promised.

In the letter Byrne states that the trains will be restored when passenger traffic "picks up."

Court Rejects Will, Warns Doctor Author

Doctor, if a man suffering with heart trouble came to a lawyer and told of his trouble wouldn't you think it wise for the lawyer to call in a physician rather than to prescribe for him himself?

Superior Judge Dudley Kinsell thus questioned Dr C A Wherry, who testified that he had drawn the will of Mrs. Josephine B. Bright and had signed her name for her, after which he had her make her mark, but had secured no other witness than himself to the document or her mark. He said he had called to prescribe for her three days before her death and she had told him she wished to make a will.

Attorneys James C Walsh and Earl Warren, representing the heirs, declared Mrs Bright was capable of signing her name and pointed out that the will was invalid because of the signature of only one witness. Judge Kinsell added that it was not a will and the court would hold the woman died intestate.

Dr. Wherry said he had no intention of doing anything wrong, but merely wished to aid Mrs. Bright.

The will prepared by Dr Wherry left all of Mrs. Bright's $15,000 estate to four sisters and only $1 to a brother, John O'Connor, in Ireland By the setting aside of the will the estate will be divided among the brother, the four sisters and the children of a deceased sister.

Mrs. Bright died June 29 last at the age of 52 at her home, 517 Twenty-third street

Divorce Seeker Is Told to Pay First

Judge J T Trabucco today impressed upon Harold L. Hammond the fact that divorce is no less serious than marriage and carries equal responsibilities, when he refused to hear the suit brought by Hammond against his wife, Lillian Hammond, until Hammond has paid her attorney's fees and money he was directed to pay for her support pending hearing of the suit.

It was shown, upon inquiry by Judge Trabucco, that Hammond earns $180 a month and has not paid any of the $50 a month awarded Mrs. Hammond, pleading the necessity to support his mother. When ordered to pay over to Mrs. Hammond all the money in his possession Hammond produced $15

The Hammonds were married in San Francisco on March 21, 1918.

DREW TO SUE CITY FOR PAY AS CAPTAIN

Chief of Police Declares He Received Pay of Inspector While Heading Department —First City Suit of Kind

Chief of Police James T Drew announced this morning that his attorneys will file a suit against the city to collect back pay which he claims is due him while he served in the position of captain of inspectors. The position of captain of inspectors was made vacant when former Captain of Inspectors Walter J Petersen was discharged on September 19. Since that time the position was filled by Drew until he was appointed chief of police on July 1.

While filling the position of captain of inspectors Drew received only the salary of inspector, the rank which he holds under civil service ruling

Drew will be represented in court by the law firm of W. H. L. Hynes and W. M. Donohue. The suit, he said, will be filed within the coming week.

Drew contends that the city charter provides that in case of a vacancy in any rank above a policeman, the chief of police may assign a man to fill the place.

This will be the first suit of its kind to be filed against the city.

Comic Opera to Be Staged Twice in Greek Theater

Splendid Singers Selected for Cast to Present Mozart Composition.

Elaborate costumes and brilliant lighting effects, together with first class music will mark the opening performance of the "Marriage of Figaro" at the Greek theater, Berkeley, tomorrow night. The opera will be repeated Saturday night.

Every phase of the production has been carefully rehearsed by Paul Steindorf, who will lead the music, and George E. Lask, the stage director, and a well selected cast will present Mozart's famous comic opera. The feminine stars of the cast—Madam Johanna Kristoffy and Mabel Riegelman—possess voices capable of makingg every not audible in the great amphitheater, according to the director of the performance.

Marian Vecki, a baritone, takes the title role of Figaro, and has sung in the leading cities of the country. Josa Coral and Jack Hillman are other baritone members of the cast.

The entire cast is composed of: Almaviva, Jose Carral; Rosina, Mme. Johanna Kristoffy; Figaro, Marion Vecki; Susanna, Dorothy Raeggan-Talbot; Barbarini, Alice McComb; Cherubino, Mabel Riegelman; Bartolo, Jack Hillman; Marcellina, Emilie Lancel, Don Basilio, Aristide Nerl; Antonio, W. J. Molitor; Don Curzio, George W. Piner.

The ballet, which has been drilled by Anita Peters Wright, will present two big numbers, one of which will be an interpolation, the minuet from Don Giovanni, which will open the third act of the "Marriage of Figaro." The second will be the regular gavotte to Mozart's wonderful music.

The lighting effects will be especially beautiful during the ballet.

DOROTHY REGAN-TALBOT, who will play the part of "Susanna" in the "Marriage of Figaro," which will be presented tomorrow night.

He was 55 years old at the time of his death. He is survived by his widow, three children and two grandchildren. Two of the children are Alma and Newton. An older daughter, Della, is married.

The mayor's son was to have been married in a few days to Miss Marie Murray, an Alameda girl, but the wedding, it is understood, will probably be postponed.

There are now three vacancies in the Sonoma City Council, two members having recently resigned.

Huge Winery Is Taken Over by Ex-Supervisor

Vincent Hook Buys Property From Wine Association; May Pack Fruit.

MARTINEZ, July 20.—Vincent Hook of Hookston, ex-supervisor, was a visitor in Martinez today and announced he had purchased the extensive winery buildings and eight acres of land at Hookston, owned by the California Wine Association. Hook would not divulge what he intended doing with the property and no announcement was made as to the consideration.

Since the advent of prohibition there has been nothing done with the property. Hook secures only the buildings and the property. The machinery and tanks are now being offered for sale by the wine association.

Persons who have watched with interest what disposal would be made of the winery expressed belief this afternoon that a deal is pending to transform the property into a fruit packing establishment. Hookston is in an ideal fruit country and the winery, it is said, could easily be adapted to fruit packing purposes.

LIONS' ELECTION SET FOR FRIDAY

Tomorrow will be a busy day at the third session of the fifth annual convention of the International Association of Lions Clubs. From 9 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening the delegates will be working to complete unfinished and new business before the convention; listening to committee reports and reports from the district governors so that Friday may be devoted to lobbying for international officers.

The race for president of the International body lies between Ewen Cameron, first vice president, of Minneapolis, and Judge John F. Garner, international director, of Quincy, Ill., both of whom have announced their candidacy. Since the opening of the convention yesterday morning, friends of the two candidates have been lobbing for their choice.

Because the last two conventions have been held in cities west of the Rocky Mountains, it is expected that eastern delegates will make a strong bid for some eastern or middle western city. Paducah, Ky., St. Paul, Minn., and Quincy, Ill., are expected to enter in the fight for the 1922 convention city.

Labor Leaders Reach S. F. On Way to Washington to Oppose Let-Down.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—En route to Washington, where a personal protest will be added to that previously made by letter and telegram against any possible let-down in the country's exclusion laws against Orientals, George W. Wright and Wilmot R. Chilton, president and treasurer respectively of the Honolulu Labor Council, arrived today aboard the steamship Sonoma.

Before proceeding to Washington the Honoluluns will discuss the Oriental situation in California with representatives of the local labor council and exclusion league, hoping thereby to secure additional data to present at the national capital.

Wright said:

"We are also representing the workmen employed at Pearl Harbor and will appear before the navy wage review board, which now has under consideration the adjustment of the wages of men associated with the various navy yards. But we are going to add serious protest against any possible weakening of the exclusion laws.

"In our judgment it will be the height of folly to make it possible for any additional Japanese or Chinese to enter into Hawaiian territory. We believe it to be a conspiracy by those who place the value of the immediate dollar above Americanism and all that it entails in the standard of living. If they succeeded in letting additional Orientals through it would be used simply as the entering wedge to do the same on the Pacific Coast and in a short time the Oriental problem would be as grave here as in the islands.

"It is our purpose to make the situation as clear as possible to our associates in the American Federation of Labor on the mainland. This will enable us to make a united fight and with the labor men of the entire country lined up against them the proponents of the Asiatics will never succeed in effecting their program."

Los Banos Man Tells Story of Freak Kidnaping

Rodemar freely discusses his kidnaping and says he was not mistreated after reaching the spot where he was held captive. He states he borrowed money in Los Angeles to enable him to return home. He is in a very nervous condition and still suffers from the effects of blows he says he received when his captors pounced on him at the beach. He is an ex-service man.

EDEN GROWERS TAKE TO FARM BOOK-KEEPING

Farm Management Specialist to Illustrate System Offered Uncle Sam.

HAYWARD, July 20.—R. V. Wright, farm management specialist connected with the agricultural extension bureau of the University of California, in conference with Farm Adviser Mark Lee and Assistant J. B. Hammon, here yesterday, completed the opening steps in the 1922 campaign to instruct farmers in the best methods of keeping their accounts. This movement has been going on for the last five years, according to Wright, and the government systems are being more generally used each year. At present, states Hammon, there are seventeen representative farmers in Alameda county who use this method solely in keeping their farm accounts.

One of the outstanding features of the coming instructive campaign will be the introduction of a system of cost accounting. The usual yearly school of instruction will be established at Hayward at a date to be announced by the Farm Adviser's office later.

Between twenty and thirty members of the board of directors of the local Chamber of Commerce met at the regular monthly luncheon of that organization at the Auto Grill here yesterday. Plans for boosting the coming Eden Township Farm Products Show were discussed.

The experiment is for the purpose of determining the best method of planting to produce disease-free potatoes.

Three Supreme Court Justices To Retire

WASHINNGTON, July 20.—Three of the oldest members of the United States Supreme Court in point of service are planning to retire within a year, according to reports in official quarters here.

They are Joseph McKenna of California, Oliver Wendell Holmes, of Massachusetts and William R. Day, of Ohio.

Justice McKenna, who is senior member of the court in point of service, was appointed in 1898 by President McKinley. McKenna resigned as United States Attorney General to become associate justice. Prior to that time he had been a member of Congress and for five years had been a circuit judge.

"Farmer Market" Under Fire; Charges Are Made

The progress of the co-operative marketing idea in the Eastbay district was marked today by criticism of sanitary conditions at the Mooney market at Nineteenth street and Telegraph avenue by the city health office; the charge brought by established retailers of the downtown district that this market is not really a farmers' market and that most of its goods are secured from commission merchants; the statement of George Roeth that his market at Sixth and Washington streets has always been free to the farmers, and announcement that preparations for Berkeley's municipal market are nearly complete.

The city health office took action today when Dr. H. K. Foster, city health officer, visited the Mooney sales lot at the suggestion of Food and Market Inspector Harry B. Smith, who investigated the so-called farmers' market yesterday. Dr. Foster discovered, he said today, that several points in the sanitary law were not being complied with and gave the operators of the market several days in which to remedy conditions.

MARKET UNDER FIRE.

City Market Inspector Smith and several retailers have further charged that the Mooney sales lot is a private enterprise and has no claim to its representation of being a "farmers' market." They say the larger part of the goods sold at the lot is bought from commission houses and that it is therefore not a direct producer-to-consumer movement.

William J. Mooney, operator of the market, today said that a large amount of the goods sold at the lot was bought in the local commission market but that was only because the farmers had not shipped enough goods to supply the demand. It was apparent at the market today that most of the goods being sold was from the local wholesalers and that nothing save plums and apricots was available as the direct offering of the farmer through this market.

NO SPECIAL CLAIMS.

Roeth, manager of the free market at Sixth and Washington streets, came out in a statement today in which he set forth that the Mooney market has no special claims as a free market operator. The Sixth street market operator says that for years past farmers of the county and of Contra Costa county and other agricultural districts have been given the free use of marketing space around his property, and that on the market days, Wednesday and Saturday, large numbers of them do bring produce to the market and sell directly to the consumer.

Another feature of the sitdation was the defense of Mooney's market by Lloyd Russell, secretary-manager of the Alameda County Farm Bureau, who has framed a report in which he speaks highly of the Mooney sales lot and urges farmers of the county to consign their fruit and produce to it.

PRODUCE OFFERED.

Besides the plums and apricots received direct from the farmers, the Mooney market was today offering canteloupes, potatoes, cucumbers and small lots of corn and other produce which had been purchased in the local wholesale market because, Mooney contends, the farmers had not shipped sufficient goods here to satisfy the demand.

With the appropriation of necessary working capital in the new budget and the appointment by the Berkeley Council of E. C. Banks as municipal market manager at a salary of $225 a month, it was announced today by Councilman Carl Bartlett that Berkeley's municipal market project would open within a few weeks. This market will operate by purchasing carlots of fruit and vegetables from the farmers in the growing sections and selling the goods direct from the car, which will be stationed on a spur track in the downtown district of Berkeley.

News Notes of Vallejo And the U. S. Navy Yard

VALLEJO, July 20.—The funeral of William Brownlie will be held tomorrow afternoon. The pioneer resident died at his home in York street on Tuesday after a short illness. Brownlie was 80 years of age and made his home here for 57 years. He is survived by his widow and two daughters and a sister.

Veterans of Lawton Camp, No. 1, U. S. W. V., are to make their annual visit to Yountville on Sunday, August 14. The vets will take a navy yard band with them and the social committee is arranging a high class entertainment for the occasion.

Employees of the drafting room at the navy yard on Tuesday presented E. T. Kavanagh with a wedding present in the shape of a cut glass set. Kavanagh returned to the yard on Monday after a honeymoon trip in the southern part of the state.

The men and women who worked at the navy yard on Saturday, July 16 are to be paid for the day, say yard officials. The failure of an order to arrive last Friday from Washington, D. C., to close down the yard on Saturdays caused the station officers to work the force as in the past.

The Y. M. I. baseball club is after a game with the battler California nine. The teams may clash at Beach Park in a series of games. The Y. M. I. club defeated the Marine nine of the navy yard last Saturday in a fast game.

A modern three-story structure is to be erected in Virginia street adjoining the Vallejo theater. The structure is to cost $60,000 and Isadore Meyer states that he will award the contract in a few weeks.

SALINAS PUTS ON CARNIVAL COLORS FOR GREAT RODEO

Cowboys and Girls, Famous the Range Over, Gather for Festivities.

SALINAS, July 20. — With the opening of the tenth annual California rodeo and Salinas "Big Week" scheduled for next Wednesday, Salinas today is colorful with all the accompaniments of roundup week. Many of the famous cowboys and cowgirls from the western ranches are here, while hundreds of bulls, steers and blooded horses are already under the care of the rodeo management. Director-General H. E. Abbott said today that the coming rodeo would far outshine any of the previous annual celebrations, the number of entries received to date being nearly double that of any previous year.

C. W. Ayer, chairman of the committee having charge of the automobile and fashion show, announces that all space for the show has been taken, the activities of the committee for the coming week being to see to the proper distribution of space and installation of exhibits.

FASHION SHOW FEATURE.

A feature of the fashion show will be a collection of models from San Francisco, the committee having selected the most beautiful girls to be found in the bay metropolis for the style exhibits.

Invitations have been extended to Governor William D. Stephens of California, Governor Tom Campbell of Arizona, Governor Emmet Boyle of Nevada, to Mayor James Rolph Jr. of San Francisco, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors and officials of various other bay cities.

On Saturday, July 30, there will be a meeting of District No. 3 of the California Cattlemen's Association and the Monterey Live Stock Association in the city hall.

FOR WORLD TITLE.

Among the events of the rodeo will be a world's championship cowboys' bucking contest, with a substantial cash purse as well as the championship honors going to the winner. There will be roping contests, bull riding, a pony express race, cowboys' relay race, cowgirls' relay race, cowboys' and cowgirls', quarter-mile dash, stage coach, Roman chariot, and stake races, trick and fancy roping, wild horse racing and an infinite number of other features typical of range life.

Nearly 500 riders are expected to participate in the opening parade on July 27, the cowboys and cowgirls this year being garbed in the picturesque range costumes that were seldom seen during the rodeos of the war period.

Particular attention this year, according to Director-General H. E. Abbott, will be given to automobile visitors, a parking space of twenty acres having been provided with ample police protection, where motorists can enter and leave without delay.

SEVEN INJURED IN SERIES OF AUTO CRASHES

Rincon Valley Woman May Die As Result of Being Hit by Truck.

A woman, seriously and perhaps fatally injured, is one of the victims of several automobile accidents in the bay region within the past 24 hours which are responsible for a total of seven casualties.

The injured:

MRS. JOHN DUCKMILLER, of Rincon valley; shock and internal injuries. Condition critical.

JOHN W. O'CONNOR, 1256 Leavenworth street, San Francisco, lacerations of the scalp and bruises of the body.

MRS. M. J. SCOTT, of Oakland; bruises and lacerations about the head and body and possible internal injuries.

JOSEPH ZIMMERMAN, of San Leandro; two broken fingers.

JOE WILSON, 48 years old, 414 Twenty-ninth avenue; badly cut about the left arm.

J. A. MELBIN, 54, 1423 Santa Clara avenue, Alameda; fractured rib.

Thrown from the automobile in which she was riding when it was struck by a heavy truck, Mrs. Duckmiller sustained injuries from which she may die.

The woman and her husband were returning to Sonoma county from a visit in Merced when the accident occurred. Mrs. Duckmiller was rushed to a Santa Rosa hospital, where physicians found that internal injuries and shock had placed her in a critical condition. The driver of the truck has not been identified.

AID NOT GIVEN, CLAIM.

An automobile driven by a man believed to be an army officer, ran down and painfully injured O'Connor on the Great Highway at midnight and sped off without rendering assistance, according to Noble French of 167A Albion avenue, San Francisco, who witnessed the accident, sped after the machine and called the driver's attention to the fact that he had hit a man. No attention was paid by the uniformed figure at the wheel, he says, and he took the number of the automobile and returned to the victim. Lifting O'Connor into his car, French took him to the Park Emergency hospital, where he was treated for lacerations of the scalp and bruises to the body. The police expect to arrest the alleged fugitive driver.

Mrs. Scott was seriously injured while driving her automobile along the highway near Cotati. According to county traffic officers, Mrs. Scott attempted to pass another machine and was on the wrong side of the road. Her car skidded fifty feet and crashed into a culvert. She was taken to a Santa Rosa hospital.

Zimmerman, an employee of the Franciscan Sisters of Mary Immaculate, was severely hurt and a motor car he was driving demolished at 7:30 o'clock this morning when he was struck by a Western Pacific train at the corner of Williams and Park streets. Two of his fingers were broken.

Lawrence Ryan, while at play near his home, was struck by an automobile driven by C. H. Coats, 5208 Grove street. Coats took the child to the emergency hospital and later home with his mother.

Wilson and Melbin were hurt when their autos collided at Sixty-third avenue and East Fourteenth street.

AN ARMAMENT OF A HAT : By Juanita Hamel

A FRAME for her face—a reflecting bit of flattering color—a dainty sunshade—a creation of beauty in itself—all these a hat may be! It may also serve as a shield—a protection from someone the wearer doesn't wish to see—an armament against the stares of those who first look in startled admiration and whose eyes rest upon her, as if riveted there, until—well, even though it may be a tribute, SHE nonchalantly pulls down the brim a wee bit and strolls on—apparently unconscious of their adoring glances.

ENGLAND WISHED TO PAY INTEREST BY INSTALLMENT

WASHINGTON, July 20. — Payment in installments over a period of twelve years of the accrued interest due from Great Britain on her indebtedness to this country, was seriously considered by the treasury department under the Wilson administration, it was disclosed today by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon when he resumed his testimony before the Senate finance committee regarding the $11,000,000,000 foreign indebtedness to the United States.

Negotiations were entered into with the British treasury by former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Arthur Rathbone, whereby the British accrued interest was to be spread over twelve years as follows:

"One-thirtieth the first, second and third years; one-fifteenth the fourth year and the balance during the ensuing eight years," Mellon explained.

Preserving of California Figs Query to Tribune

Many eastern people are enjoying California figs for the first time. How to can or put them up is a query that has been coming in frequently to The TRIBUNE Information Bureau.

California figs are very good to spice the same as pickled peaches, or to make into jam or preserves the same as other fruit, only not as much sugar is needed as in the case of most fruits, because figs are sweeter.

Here is another query:

"Who is the newly appointed commissioner in charge of U. S. internal revenue in Washington, D. C.?"

David H. Blaire of Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

The TRIBUNE'S Information Bureau will answer all questions of a general nature except school or legal problems, debates, trade and firm names and queries as to the time of day.

Extradition of 'Doctor' Depends Upon Witness

F. C. Forell, Alleged False Check Operator, Under Arrest in Salt Lake.

"Dr." Frederick C. Forell, alias Warner, 60-year-old alleged peculator and love pirate, will not be extradited to California from Salt Lake City unless sufficient assurance is forthcoming that a competent witness will be brought here from Denver. Forell is alleged to have defrauded the Bank of Alameda out of $250. This alleged fraud hinged upon a worthless draft for $2500 on a Denver bank deposited in the Bank of Alameda by Forell, who is said to have drawn out $250 later.

Among the things said to have figured in his career is contracting to buy $30,000 homes without having the money, marrying well-to-do widows and drawing drafts on banks wherein he had no deposits. Among the cities in which he is alleged to have operated are Oakland, Alameda and Los Angeles.

Forell is under arrest in Salt Lake City. It is thought likely that he will be extradited to Denver to face fraud charges, instead of being brought to Oakland, as the latter course would involve the expense of bringing a witness here from Denver.

Among those whom he is alleged to have victimized in Alameda is C. F. Lewis of 1437 Benton street, a business man. In Los Angeles he is said to have married a wealthy widow named Simpson. One of Forell's schemes is said to have been to board at a place where there was a young daughter of refined appearance. He would make a practice of going shopping accompanied by the young woman and ordering expensive furnishings, giving the impression that they were being purchased for a bridal couple.

AUSTIN, Tex., July 20.—Two big wells in lot 162, Amatlan, southern Mexican fields, are burning and the entire district is threatened, according to information received by the oil weekly here. Farmers Urging U. S. to Buy Ford Nitrate Holdings

Muscle Shoals Proposition Is Expected to Bring About Fertilizer Cost Cut.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Cabinet officers today were swamped with messages from farmers and farm organizations urging approval of Henry Ford's proposal to take over the Muscle Shoals, Ala., nitrate plant.

Ford appears in the light of a benefactor to a majority of the farmers, according to the messages pouring in, as his proposal would mean cheaper fertilizer.

Although officials refused to make any predictions, there was considerable conjecture here as to whether Ford's proposal is simply a new venture, his entrance into the manufacture of a fertilizer, or whether he has plans for an industrial development. It was pointed out that by the completion of the Wilson dam, a great project will be developed and the plant is within easy striking distance of iron and steel supplies and with this combination of power and raw materials at hand, Ford will be in a fine position to undertake a manufacturing project on a large scale.

Included among the incorporators with him are Gavin McNab and Theodore Roche.

A report of the Merchants' Exchange committee which has been investigating the building trades situation and the first body of business men to seek a solution to the difficulties that caused the tie-up was heard at a meeting of the Exchange last evening. W. A. Knowles read the report.

The Merchants Exchange, following the report, went on record in opposition to a ten-cent levy on all vehicles using the ferries, a plan suggested by the State Board of Harbor Commissioners and named E. H. Hart, George Shelden, and Wilber Walker as a committee to take up the matter with the commissioners.

J. W. Musselman was appointed head of a committee to study and report on a proposal before the International Parcel Post Advisory Committee to allow small parcel post shipments of cigars to enter this country without the usual inspection.

The Manufacturers' Exposition Committee which proposes to hold an industrial fair at Idora Park starting October 1, was granted free use of an office at the Exchange headquarters and J. W. Musselman and A. Tally appointed to co-operate. Motion Picture Studios Tied Up By General Strike

Over 850 of Skilled Workers Are Reported Out; Employers Optimistic.

BY UNITED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

LOS ANGELES, July 20.—With 850 skilled studio workers on strike today and two more of the largest producing organizations slated for the "strike list" tomorrow, impending general tieup of the motion picture industry loomed as an immediate probability.

The Universal and Robert Brunton studios are to go on the "strike list" tomorrow, according to announcement by Verne Ostendorf, secretary of the joint strike committee of the Central Labor Council.

Both these companies are said to have followed the precedent of other producers and reduced wages $1 a day for electricians, painters and carpenters.

The Buster Keaton and Hamilton White productions studios were the latest units to be added to the strike list, which already has affected the Famous Players-Lasky, Goldwyn, Fox, Hal E. Roach, Metro, Realart and Century.

Walter J. Reynolds, secretary of the Motion Picture Producers' Association, was optimistic over the strike situation today and predicted that the available non-union skilled labor would be able to care for the situation.

Illinois Governor Accused of Graft

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 20.—Len Small, Illinois governor, and Fred Sterling, lieutenant governor, were charged today with misuse of millions of dollars state funds in indictments returned by the Sangamon County grand jury.

The second accused the two officials and the banker with conspiracy and confidence game in the misuse of $2,000,000 in state money.

The third and fourth indictments charged Sterling and Small with misuse of $700,000 and $500,000 in state funds respectively.

Soldier Bonus Foes Denounced by Landis

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Stating that what he said might be reason for impeachment, Federal Judge K. M. Landis, in an address before the wounded soldiers at Fort Sheridan last night, denounced the foes of the soldiers' bonus bill and asserted that if he were President he would "fire the whole outfit" at Washington who were "getting in one another's way trying to pass on the veterans' compensation proposition."

"As one man who stayed at home in peace and security while you fellows were fighting for our lives," said the Judge, "I am against stalling off this bonus proposition."

Single Dwellings Give Way Before New Apartments

WASHINGTON, July 20. — The old-fashioned American home—the single dwelling with a front and back yard—is giving way even in the smaller cities of the United States to the modern apartment house.

This is revealed in a report on 1920 building operations issued today by the United States Chamber of Commerce. The report, compiled in conjunction with the federal bureau of labor statistics, shows that last year 70 per cent of the families provided with new homes got one-family dwellings; 11 per cent two-family dwellings and 19 per cent a multi-family dwelling. The same figures show that the proportion of multi-family dwellings provided last year was largest in the smaller cities.

Ku Klux Klan Worries Texas Order Is Invisible Empire

(By United Press)

AUSTIN, Tex., July 20.—The southwest today faced the problem of an invisible empire within itself.

The Ku Klux Klan, originated in ancient Scotland and revived in the turbulent carpet-bagging days of the Old South, faced two proposed legislative resolutions, one aimed generally to remove the cause for its existence in Texas and another to investigate its objects and actions.

Technicalities of law handicapping prosecutions of criminal cases were described as the "cause of existence."

The resolutions were to be introduced in the Texas senate asking laws be passed to break up the Klan, which has grown in a few months to what is admitted to be the strongest secret organization in the new southwest.

Senator Edward Witt said he would specifically name the Klan and organizations declared not bona fide but which have taken its name in staging demonstrations and punishing individuals for infractions of moral laws.

Police and other peace officials, following an investigation, declared today that many of the assaults, whippings and tar and feather affairs of the last few months throughout the southwest are not the work of the bona fide Klan but the work of small groups of men who worked under the guise of the white masks of the organization.

Masked men and others have participated in 34 demonstrations in Texas this year. These demonstrations have included everything from gifts to charity to tarring and feathering a white woman after she had been stripped of her clothing. She stood naked before her abductors—men—as they poured the tar upon her.

Daughter of Oil Magnate Weds Family Chauffeur

"Sorry? I should say I'm not!"

This was the declaration today Mrs. Ralph Cassaro, formerly Miss Ruth Hart, Claremont society belle and an heiress to the millions of the oil man, Howard Hamilton Hart, who forsook a life of luxury to elope with the Hart family chauffeur. While according to the bride, her wealthy uncle and foster father disowned her when informed of the marriage, neither Hart nor Mrs. Hart could be reached today, to confirm this statement. Hart, according to word from his home, was out of town, and Mrs. Hart was "not in."

Miss Hart and Cassaro, the hero of a romance which reads like a stock moving picture scenario, were married in Sacramento by a justice of the peace on May 4, and are living today in a small apartment at 3216 Telegraph avenue, happy. The young bride today avowed that she would not exchange it for any other in the world without her husband.

FRIENDS SURPRISED.

The announcement of the romance and marriage came as a surprise to Eastbay society, who had been told for some time that "Miss Hart was away." The impression had been that she was traveling in Europe.

"You are no longer a member of my family. I shall have nothing more whatever to do with you," Millionaire Hart told her after having been informed of the marriage, according to Mrs. Cassaro today.

"I had no thought of discontent until a few years ago when my uncle married a second time," said Mrs. Cassaro, telling her story today. "There has been increasing trouble between my aunt and myself. I never cared greatly for what is known as 'society.'"

"A year ago Ralph came to work for my uncle as chauffeur. We became interested in each other. My uncle and aunt knew this and spoke of it, but they did not seem opposed. In fact, their attitude was entirely favorable.

"They left for a trip to Europe and were gone for some months. In their absence we became engaged. When they returned I informed them of this.

"Immediately their attitude changed—I do not know why. I'm afraid there was quite a scene when I told them of my decision to marry Ralph. It ended when they told me that if the marriage took place I might regard myself as no longer a member of the family. The door of their home would be closed to me forever.

TOLD HER FATHER.

"As far as they were concerned, the marriage was not an 'elopement.' They knew of it. I merely packed my things, drove to Sacramento with Ralph and his sister, and we were wed.

"We went on a brief honeymoon trip to Los Angeles and returned, coming to this apartment. It is not a mansion, but it satisfies me. I would rather live here in a kindly atmosphere than in a palace with ill-feeling.

"Ralph has been out of employment, but tomorrow he goes to work in a good position for the Associated Oil Company in Alameda. Fear for the future? Why should I fear.

"As to my friends in Claremont and Piedmont, I have met two of them by chance since my marriage, and they were cordial. I have not let anyone know where I was living. With those who are really my friends it will make no difference."

The Hart home is a large mansion occupying a knoll at Alvarado road and Tunnel road in Berkeley. The grounds constitute an entire block. Hart, the uncle and father of the bride, is a picturesque figure. He was one of the early Yukon pioneers, coming out of the Klondike gold rush with a fortune, which he soon afterward lost in speculation. Then he struck oil on land thought worthless, and within a few years he was many times a millionaire.

Mrs. Cassaro was a student at the Notre Dame convent in San Jose. Later she traveled in Europe. She speaks several languages.

WASHINGTON, July 20. — Republican members of the House ways and means committee engaged in a lively wrangle today, the bone of contention being tax revision.

After announcing yesterday that public hearings on tax revision would begin on July 25, Chairman Fordney today proposed to the committee that only treasury department officials be allowed to appear before the committee to express their views on tax revision.

This proposal brought a storm of protest with charges of attempts at "gagging the public" flying promiscuously. Representative Frear of Wisconsin is understood to have led the fight for open hearings for the public. The meeting became so heated that Chairman Fordney adjourned the meeting without any action being taken on the question of hearings.

Alameda Fire Loss Runs to 58c Per Capita

Yearly Report of Department Sohws One Fireman Killed, Seven Injured.

ALAMEDA, July 20.—The fire loss per capita in Alameda during the past fiscal year amounted to 58 cents according to a report filed with City Manager C. E. Hickok, by Fire Chief Walter Steinmetz this morning.

The department responded to 200 alarms, of which 23 were false.

Grass fires led the list, totaling 29, while sparks from chimneys setting fire to shingle roofs came second, with 28. The causes were reported in range from auto back fires, burning meat and roasting peanuts to spontaneous combustion. One was also charged to burning prunes, while children playing with matches were responsible for two. Five were of unknown origin and one was deliberately set.

Seven firemen were injured and one, Charles W. Young, killed during the year. The total fire and water loss was $17,450. The loss for the same period of the previous year, owing to the business section being burned, amounted to $133,760.

According to Chief Steinmetz, the activities of the Fire Prevention Bureau has been reduced on account of a reduction in the force of men. A total of 271 inspections were made during the year. During the coming year these inspections because of the curtailment of the force, will be confined entirely to the business section of the city. The total expenditures of the department for the year were $90,841.83.

Among the recommendations made by Chief Steinmetz is one for a more adequate water supply for fire use in the western portion of the city. Should a conflagration occur there, according to the report, the present supply would be entirely inadequate to handle the situation.

Winifred Black's Column

The little brown house on the hill.

The orchard, pink and white bloom, surging to the very doorstep, like an ocean of beauty and perfume. At the back the purple mountains and in the doorway the young couple.

She in her simple little pink house dress. He in his brown khaki and leggings.

She, round and rosy and dimpled and not too tall. He, tall and broad shouldered and dark.

If I live to be a hundred years old I shall never forget it.

"Happy days," he said. "Happy days."

In my heart I said a deep prayer of loving gratitude—for it is "happy days" on the little ranch in the foothills. Happy days to the young couple who left the city and all the city's gayety and all the city's luxury and all the well-trod paths of city life, and went into the country to make a living together.

The little house was nothing but a shabby shell when they first went there. You ought to see it now, so bright and clean and cosey—so full of books and pictures—so fragrant with love and happiness.

Every window is cut to frame some well-loved view—every piece of furniture set to the very best possible advantage—every picture hung upon the walls after hours of earnest thought and consideration.

The little dining room, in rose and tan—the soft tan walls of the living room—they did them all themselves. For workingmen were scarce and almost impossible to get when the little house was made over.

Now there's to be a broad pergola, paved with brick, and a big back porch and swinging seats and little built-in tables—oh, you should see the pride of the little place! How it glows and grows.

The orchard, too—how neglected it was when Pink and Brown took hold of it! And now every tree is spick and span with its coat of whitewash—every twig is picked up from the ground—the brown earth is ploughed and harrowed till it's as fine as table sugar, and the sturdy trees hold out their arms in generous gifts for gratitude.

And the windmill—don't forget that! "Thunder top," we call it—50 feet high and over, with a great tank filled to the brim with fresh spring water. They've made a garage of the tankhouse, and up over that there's a square room high and high. You can see 72 miles of blossoming orchards from the door of that room "Mellisonde's tower" they call it. Poor Mellisonde, she was never half so happy as the plain woman who climbs those steps to the top of the tower and calls the square room "my own."

For has she not seen the growth of the little ranch—has she not watched the gradual return to health of the one who came there to find vigor and strength in the soil; has she not sat in the evening and marked the silver radiance of the moon, filling the valleys below as a blue bowl is filled with white milk? And has she not noted from her tower the smoke rising from hundreds of quiet homes up and down the valley, and been grateful to the uttermost reaches of her being for the peace and calm delight of "home"?

Just Folks

by Edgar A. Guest

THE FRIENDLY WAY

Oh, I would tread the friendly way, the lanes where children romp and play,
The hearty road of fellowship where brotherhood is found;
I do not want the sterner game where life is but a fight for fame,

There is enough of riches here, enough of mirth and honest cheer
To balance all the hurt and pain as time goes speeding by,
And as each day comes to its end, if I am sure I have a friend
For greater wealth or greater fame I shall not give a sigh.

The children glad that I'm their dad—all that's my treasure store;
A happy home in which to live, What further has this life to give?
And where's the rich man with his wealth who really gathers more?

I would not shirk nor idly stand before the tasks which come to hand,
I would not fail in duty's hour; but once my work is done,
I would be father to my own, a neighbor in my little zone,
A man among my fellowmen, and friend to every one.

Uncle Wiggily Stories

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE FOX-GLOVE.

Down at the end of the garden behind Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow grew some tall plants on which, one day, the bunny gentleman saw some purple and white flowers nodding in the wind.

"What flowers are those, Nurse Jane?" he asked the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"I don't know their names," answered Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "Aunt Jerusha Ann, the woodchuck lady, sent the seeds over to me by Woodie and Waddie Chuck, her two little nephews. She said she didn't know what kind of flowers would grow from the seeds."

"They are very beautiful flowers," the bunny gentleman said.

"Indeed they are," agreed Nurse Jane, as she picked some of the purple and white blossoms. They were long and deep, like the fingers of a glove, and within each blossom were lovely colored spots.

"It's a pity the flower has no name," Uncle Wiggily went on. "I think I'll take a walk through the woods, and perhaps I may think of something to call these blossoms. Then they'll have a name as you and I have, Nurse Jane."

The muskrat lady thought that would be a fine idea. So after he had eaten a bread and milk sandwich, and twinkled his pink nose once or twice, Uncle Wiggily started off to look for an adventure and to try to find a name for the new flowers.

Now about this time the bad old Fox, who was always looking for a chance to nibble the bunny's ears, hopped along near the hollow stump bungalow. The Fox saw, growing in the end of the garden, the tall stems of purple and white flowers, which, as yet, had no name.

"Ah, ha!" thought the Fox to himself. "It would be a good place for me to hide among these tall flowers. Uncle Wiggily cannot see me if I crouch down behind them, and when he and Nurse Jane come to smell the blossoms I can jump out and nibble their ears! I'll do it!"

So the Fox did. He hid himself in among the tall stalks of flowers.

Now while the Fox was hiding there, waiting for Uncle Wiggily to come back and have his ears nibbled, the bad Fuzzy Creature began to look at the flowers. He saw that the blossoms were long and deep, like the fingers of a glove, and at once the bad chap had an idea. He looked at his paws, he looked at his tail, and, by squinting his eyes, he managed to look at his nose.

"I know what I'll do," said the Fox. "I'll pick some of these flowers, and stick them on my paws, and tail and nose. Then Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane cannot see me so easily. They will come down very close to look at the posies, and I'll have a much better chance to grab them and nibble their ears! I'll do it!"

So the Fox did. He put some of the long, finger-like blossoms over the toes of his paws, and he managed to stick an extra large blossom on the end of his bushy tail, and another one on his nose. Then, all blossomed up, so to speak, the Fox waited.

Uncle Wiggily came back from his walk in the woods. The only adventure he had was helping an ant lady get up out of a worm hole into which she had fallen when she was returning from the three and four cent store.

"Did you think up a name for the new flowers?" asked Nurse Jane.

"No," answered Uncle Wiggily, "I didn't. Let's go down to the end of the garden and look at them once more. I may think of a name then."

Down in the garden walked Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane. The tall purple and white blossoms, as yet without a name, nodded in the wind. Down among them hid the Fox, who saw the bunny and muskrat lady coming.

"Ah! Now for some good ear nibbling!" whispered the bad chap to himself.

Uncle Wiggily leaned over to look through his glasses at the blossoms. And he happened to look at those the Fox had stuck on his paws, nose and tail.

"Why, look, Nurse Jane, look!" cried the bunny. "Some of these flowers are growing upside down!" And surely enough, those the Fox had picked and stuck on himself were pointed end up, instead of with the open end up, as nearly all flowers grow.

"There is something wrong here!" cried Nurse Jane, as she saw the upside down flowers. Then, having sharper eyes than had the bunny, she saw the Fox hiding.

"Run, Uncle Wiggily! Run!" cried the muskrat lady, and she and Mr. Longears ran back in the hollow stump bungalow and locked the door before the Fox could get them. Seeing he had no chance to nibble ears the Fox pulled the blossoms from his paws, tail and nose and ran away.

When he had gone Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane came out again. They saw what the Fox had done, putting the blossoms on his paws like mittens.

"Now I have a name for these flowers," said Mr. Longears.

"What is it?" asked Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"Fox glove," answered the bunny. And from that day to this the tall flowers have thus been called. So when you see the fox glove blossoms you may think of this story. And if the tack lifter will put some stockings on the legs of the table to keep the flies from biting them, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the empty nest.

Holding a Husband of Adele Garrison's New Phase of REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

The Way Madge Managed Mrs. Durkee.

"No, but I wish I were," she wailed. "Then I wouldn't have to go through this today."

She slipped from my arms and threw herself upon the bed, burying her head in the pillows in a storm of sobs and tears. I waited until the paroxysm had spent itself, planning how I should deal with her.

Finally she lifted her head and sat up, shivering."

"It's no use, Madge," she said vehemently. "I can't go through with it. They'll simply have to have the wedding without me, that's all. I've nothing against Leila or any of them, but I simply can't see my boy married. I should simply shriek or faint, or do something disgraceful right in the middle of the ceremony. I can't do it, I tell you—I simply can't!"

The impulse to shake her was almost irresistible now. I knew how obstinate she was when her naturally sunny yielding disposition took one of these emotional tantrums, and I cast about in my mind for the surest means of dealing with her.

"Of course, if you feel that way about it," I said coldly, "there is nothing more to be said. I will go down to Alfred and Leila directly and tell them. They, no doubt, will be able to postpone the wedding, or abandon it altogether, for you know Leila said she would never marry Alfred unless you were perfectly willing for her to do so."

Little Mrs. Durkee rose unsteadily to her feet, as if my words had been an electric shock galvanizing her into movement, and took a step toward me. Her eyes were wide with amazement. With satisfaction I saw that into them was creeping a hint of terror.

"Postpone the wedding!" she repeated. "Why, Madge, what do you mean?"

"Exactly what I say," I returned. "You say that you cannot control your grief if you see the ceremony, and, therefore, mean to stay away from it. As a true friend to both Alfred and Leila I must tell them of this. That Leila will postpone her wedding is certain."

"Oh, Alfred will never forgive me if you do that!" she said childishly. "Don't tell them, Madge."

"Do you imagine," I retorted sternly, "that he will ever forgive you if you either display undue grief at his wedding, or stay away from it?"

"Oh! What shall I do?" she asked wildly, but I saw that she had surrendered. Then I permitted my very real pity for her to show itself, something I had not dared to do while she was obsessed with the idea that she could not attend her son's wedding.

"Do?" I countered. "Nothing at all, save be yourself, the plucky little woman we all know and love. Why, you didn't act this way when Alfred went to the war! I knew that you wept sometimes, of course, but I never saw you do it. Surely, if you could control yourself in that awful time, you can do so now."

"Perhaps that is the reason I can't do it now," she said with a simple dignity that made me feel remorseful until she promptly banished my remorse by adding a bit spitefully:

"Sometimes I think I would almost rather have him dead than married."

"You need a good shaking," I said with a laugh which I had to force. "You will persist in putting your worst foot foremost, saying things you don't mean. Now, forget all this nonsense, and lie down and try to sleep a little, and you will feel a great deal better when you wake up."

She looked up at me with tear-bedewed eyes and quivering lips.

"If you'll lie down with me and hold my hand I think I could sleep," she said as simply as a grieved child, and I felt again the tug at my sympathies which I always experience when I see my little friend in any trouble.

"Of course," I said, in as matter-of-fact manner as I could manage, for I knew that any undue display of sympathy would set her to weeping again, "I want my nap, too. We'll just leave the door open between our rooms. It will give us better air. Besides, if we miss hearing the maid's knock at one door we will hear it at the other. Aunt Dora is going to have us called in an hour, you know."

"I know," she said, with a frightened little air, "and I feel that I simply must get some sleep, my head aches so."

"Don't worry," I said soothingly. "I'll put you to sleep.

I lay down on her bed, put my arm around her, and cuddled her as I would Junior. In a few minutes her regular breathing told me that sleep had come to her, and I rapidly drifted after her into slumber.

We both arose refreshed when the maid's low knock sounded on the door, and I saw that I would have no more trouble with my little friend. She had summoned her reserves of courage, and would go through her ordeal—which I did not minimize—with flying colors.

When an hour later Leila danced into the room in a bewitching negligee, her face radiant with happiness, and kissed us both, I watched little Mrs. Durkee furtively to see if she would betray anything of her real feeling to the girl. But there was no sign of anything but the warmest affection as she kissed Leila and rallied her upon her brilliant coloring.

"I've come to borrow something," Leila announced. "You know I must have 'something old and something new, something borrowed and something blue.' My great-grandmother's wedding veil, which Aunt Dora is guarding with her life in my room, is certainly something old, and my gown is, of course, new. Edith provided me with something blue, and now I've come to borrow something—a mouchoir, if I may."

"I have just the thing, Leila, dear, a perfectly exquisite handkerchief, which Alfred brought me from Paris."

In another moment the two heads were bent above a bit of delicate embroidery, and I saw that the danger of an outburst from little Mrs. Durkee had been avoided—temporarily, at least.

What Does Your Husband Do?

The COUNTRY of UPSIDE DOWN

By Jack Burroughs

Chapter 32

The Prosaic Anesthetic

"WE must diagnose the case, first of all," said Doctor Skubblestutch, "but the patient is so busy talking that I shall have to ask for a substitute."

"I'll volunteer my services," offered Reddy Quackenback generously, and there was a tender quiver to his quack as he said the words. "Self-sacrifice has always been one of my prominent traits—it runs in the family."

"Step up here, then," the doctor ordered, "while I diagnose the case."

Reddy waddled forward.

"Stick out your tongue and say 'quack'" the doctor snapped in his best professional tones.

Reddy obeyed.

"Very bad," the doctor declared. "It's a confounded multiplex fracture of the ulterior ultimatum. Five dollars, please."

"Er—excuse me, doctor," Reddy stammered, "but I'm only the substitute patient in this diagnosis, you know. There's a limit beyond which I will not permit my instincts of generosity and self sacrifice to carry me."

The man whose jaw had been broken was brought before Doctor Skubblestutch. He paid the doctor his fee, talking all the while.

"And now we must give you a prosaic anesthetic," the doctor informed him.

While he was speaking he motioned to a nurse, who brought him a large bulky volume with very fine print. It was a 1000-page report on an investigation concerning the influence of clam digging upon the shape of the earth.

Dr. Skubblestutch told all present, with the exception of the man whose jaw had been broken, to stuff cotton into their ears. When this precaution had been taken Doctor Skubblestutch commenced reading to the patient.

At the end of the tenth page the man whose jaw had been broken was talking as much as ever, but the doctor was visibly wearied. He called in half a dozen nurses and when they, too, had stopped their ears with cotton, they took turns reading aloud from the book.

At the end of the hundredth page the patient's sprightly monologue began to drag a trifle and by the time two hundred pages were read his talk had ceased entirely and his head had begun to nod. Fifty pages further on he closed his eyes and from then on it was only a matter of a few paragraphs until he had dropped into a profound slumber.

As the doctor prepared to adjust the steel clamp upon the patient's jaw the Gingersnap 'Phone turned to Alex and said: "This prosaic anesthetic is certainly a powerful sleep producer. I am reminded of what Josiah Jingle-Jangle once said on this subject. The poem goes something like this:

Who needs a gentle anesthetic
Should listen to my works poetic.
Their rhyming lilt and rythmic sweep
Are guaranteed to make one sleep.

But if a slumber more profound
Is sought, one's senses can be bound
More firmly than by bards or mystics,

Cry on Geraldine's Shoulder

Listen, World!

There's only one thing I fear about this Judgment Day business. I'm not worried lest my record won't show up well—I know already that it won't so I'm resigned. And I'm not trembling at the thought of fiery punishments. I've had quite a bunch of them here on earth and I've sorta gotten the habit of being punished. But one thought does nag me badly—I'm afraid I'll begin to make excuses.

It's bad enough to do wrong, but it's minutely worse to crawfish about it afterwards. Real wrong doing is done for a selfish motive. You break some law to get something for yourself—pleasure or profit or power. And since you desired so unworthily, it makes the deed doubly loathsome if you try to drape a pretty excuse over it afterwards.

I know I'm not going to make a good showing on the Judgment Day. It's bad enough already and if they give me time I'll probably add murder and highway robbery to the list. But whatever my load of guilt, may I be saved from one most awful shame—when they charge me with my crimes, may I not crawl! May I be somehow kept from that last, contemptible whine of the defeated—"I did the best I could!" For I know perfectly well that I never have done absolutely the best I could. Though my record is shot to pieces—though I face an even greater loneliness than I have known here—may I stand my ground and take what's coming like a man!

Folks meet "Central." Perhaps you used to cuss her in the old days, but you're going to be strong for her by the time you've finished this. As a Husband Tamer she has a system all her own, and if it doesn't add some chuckles and much wisdom to your system you're in need of repair.

Dear Geraldine:

I read your columns a good deal. Some of your articles are very interesting, while some are sickening. Some of the poor love-sick girls, how I pity them. I would like to write them some advice as I have worked around where there were men since I left school at 16, and believe 'ma' if they worked around hotels and boarding houses in mining camps they would sure get their eyes opened. I would not trust the men too far, as to the majority.

I have a good husband now and two cute kiddies and we get along fine, but he did like to criticise my clothes and powder. So when he began that, I cut my skirt shorter still and used a little more powder, and now, believe me, he lets me alone and I wear what I please.

The article signed "A Jerry Fan" sure hits the truth every word of it. I am sure for her. My husband says he would be ashamed of a wife who dressed "phoney" and no style at all. Think of wearing those old, long, hot, dirty skirts which wiped up the streets (no street sweepers were needed those days), and having to lift them up everytime you climb a stairway or on a car. The poor men didn't have a chance to see the pretty ankles then like they have today, so I should think they would be more appreciative than they are.

And another word to the party who criticised California and its native born. I think she had better go back where she belongs. I am not a Native Daughter, but a Montana girl—a Westerner, you can bet, and sure proud of it. I have been East, my people are all easterners, but as for me, I cannot be transformed into dear sweet refined "put-ons" as some of them I know. I am just what I am every day and love all outdoor sports, just rough and ready, and care not whether people like me or not. I am afraid of nothing, can fight like John L. Sullivan, if I have to, and as a whole I have more men friends than I have women friends, and because I like men so little seems to make them like me better.

My husband is a New Yorker, but he got over some of his "put-on" ways after he met me. He can't get me East either unless I know for sure I can get back to the West again. We have had hot arguments but I always win (the Westerners do).

He used to say how shocked I made him, but I only shocked him a little more so he got over that, now he is not so nicey nice. When out with him I could not laugh out at pictures or be boisterous, as he called it, but when he shut down on me going to a good big ball game and not yelling, I sure then got my Irish up and made up my mind I'd have my say.

You can publish this or not, but I am sure it is too long a letter to put in The TRIBUNE, so I want to thank you for your few moments' attention and also for the good answers you can give.

A Talk On Marriage

Here's a little talk on marriage which holds as much philosophy as many pages of Plato. Jerry never needs to add much to a letter like this—it speaks for itself:

Dear Jerry:

I simply must write and tell you how I enjoy your common-sense talks each Sunday, as well as the evening ones. Just finished reading the "Fair Play" page and feel "Them's my sentiments, Jerry, exactly."

It must make you feel good to know so many, many people are made happy and shown the better way to right their troubles through your kind and broad-minded suggestions.

You are accused very often, Jerry dear, of being partial to the men. Well, I don't blame you. I truly feel if more girls would exert themselves in their early married life and use a little more patience and show their hubbies where they are wrong and work with them, see their good deeds instead of their faults, and talk things over with them, there would be less tears and divorces. It is up to the girl, she can make or break a man and the majority of men are good and with the right kind of handling, with love and kindness, the average man can be turned into an ideal husband and father.

I was just 17 and my husband 21 when we were married (which is very much too young), and I soon learned that I had tackled a larger proposition than I had ever dreamed of; THAT MARRIAGE WAS A BUSINESS AND NOT A LOVE AFFAIR. My husband was very quick-tempered (which I did not know before), and I very stubborn. Our expenses were rather heavy at first and our income very small, so there was many a rough place to pass over, but we worked together, talked things over, and saved what little we could.

Now after seven years we look back and have many a good laugh at our experiences, and still work together. He is always ready to help me, whether it is to wash the dishes or tend to our little girl, and I equally as ready to help polish the machine or work in the garden, and find it brings us real happiness.

If he does something I don't like, I tell him about it in a nice way and just think to myself "Oh, he was just a naughty boy," just as I did the baby yesterday, when she grabbed a handful out of the top of my lemon pie.

We wouldn't change our Daddy for the world and all that's in it, and feel that we both earn what pleasure we receive.

With love and respect to you and your good work.

THE HAPPY THREE.

TO A MOTHER OF MANY SORROWS—The answer you noted did not come from your daughter, my friend. It concerned a quarrel between two girls employed in the same office. I am deeply sorry for your sad lot.

"One Who Sinned"

To "FROM ONE WHO SINNED"—Poor little girl, Jerry's heart is aching for you HARD. I'm not going to excuse the wrong-doing. One reason why I feel so tender toward you is that you don't try to excuse it yourself but say frankly that it's your own fault, which it is. And I want to help, and am going to if you will let me. Hold fast to your determination about the baby. The boy can be made to marry you whether he wishes to or not, and he certainly should do so since you are both of age, that the baby may have a name. If you will write to me, I will tell you what to do. Mother will have to know it sooner or later, little girl, and I think your sort of a mother will prove your best friend. Won't you let Jerry write to her? You may trust me fully.

H. R. I'm stumped. I can think of no solution to your problem. You say you have tried schedules and talks but that neither works out. In spite of that, it seems the only way. Try the schedule again and you live up to the letter of yours, and if it fails, try it again. I don't know what else I can possibly tell you.

A TOMBOY. Good for you, be an outdoor tomboy all you can, but if you've got a mother who lets you romp and have the clean freedom you say you have, it won't hurt you to play the piano for her company when she wants you to. A tomboy's code should be fifty-fifty.

SIS. If you girls who write in day after day, asking the same questions, read Jerry the way you SAY you do, you'd know the answers before you started. Company and fun is almost as necessary to growing girls and boys as food, but often there are parents who are afraid of any outside influence. It's not fair, perhaps, but it must be understood. They are trying to take care of you, keep you from all harm, and to get privileges you must show that you are capable, strong and able to take care of yourselves. Jerry believes in you with all her heart, but you've got to prove to mother and father that you are worthy of THEIR TRUST!

TO JULE RENE LA GUERRE—You ask me, "What would I call the charming handsome monsieur who asks you to unite with him forever, but not to tell pater or mater?" No newspaper would print all the things I would call that young man, my dear. Have nothing to do with any young man who will not let you tell your father or mother about his love. He deserves just one thing—the humdingingest whalloping that was ever handed out to a miserable skunk.

COAST LEAGUE OWNERS NOT KICKING ABOUT ATTENDANCE

HOME RUNS BY MILLER, KRAUSE AND ARLETT WIN FIRST GAME FOR OAKS AT SALT LAKE

PORTLAND, SALT LAKE ONLY TOWNS WHERE CROWDS HAVE THINNED

Seattle and Oakland Clubs Are Drawing Better Than They Have for a Few Seasons.

By EDDIE MURPHY.

With only a couple of exceptions, owners of major league clubs are kicking about the poor attendance at games this season. And in the Pacific Coast League, with only two exceptions, every town is supporting the game better than it ever has since the outbreak of the war. The two towns where the game isn't being supported as well as the club owners would wish for are Portland and Salt Lake, but the positions of those teams in the race explain the reason. Still the attendance at Salt Lake isn't so bad that anybody has complained about it, but they have about that at Portland. There isn't a better town in the league for its size than Sale Lake when it comes to the fans supporting a winning team, and the same went for Portland one time.

The McCredies have promised to have a winner in Portland next season if they don't sell their club before that time. Manager Gavvy Cravath would no doubt have one at Salt Lake this year had he been appointed manager sooner than he was. When Gavvy got hold of the team the clubs were almost ready to move to their training camps, and he didn't know if he had even enough men with which to start a regular yannigan game. And there were times when he didn't, during the training period. Cravath has proved himself a hustling manager, and is doing all he can to make the race interesting. Gavvy's club isn't going to win a pennant this season, but you can bank on the veteran to have a regular one on the field next year.

Crowds at Oakland Park Too Large for Grandstand.

Oakland has a winning ball team, and everybody who has been interested in the Coast League within the past few years knows what that means to the pocketbooks of the owners of that club. The Thursday afternoon crowds this season have surprised the owners themselves. One of the largest Thursday afternoon crowds was out two weeks ago to see the Oaks and Seals battle. Each Sunday and several Thursdays for the past two weeks have seen the fans overflow the big grandstand, and if it keeps on, J. Cal Ewing, Del Howard & Co. will have to build that new deck on the grandstand which they spoke of some years ago. When the park was built, it was thought the grandstand would take care of the patrons for years to come, but it doesn't seem so now. It is nothing unusual these days to go out and see fans sitting in the aisles and on the fence bank of the grandstand.

Seattle is having its biggest season in the history of baseball, and that town is now rated as a better baseball supporting one than San Francisco, the city which held the honor for many years. Sacramento has a winning team, and just like Oakland, the fans turn out big there. Down at Los Angeles the fans aren't turning out so strong that they are overcrowding the stands but just the same the game is being run on a paying basis.

Outside of Salt Lake and Portland everything is running fine for the club owners. They are offering all kinds of excuses for the falling off of attendance in the East. The strongest alibi is that the fans aren't strong for the ball games that produce high and sometimes one-sided scores. The poor lively ball is coming in for a lot of the blame.

Buz Arlett Puts End to Big Bee Rally

Harry Krause Is Given a Big Lead, But Has to Be Yanked.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 20.—The Oaks started off well here in their series with the Salt Lake Bees by taking them into camp by an 11 to 7 score. Home runs by Hack Miller, Harry Krause and Russell Arlett were the features of the Oaks' work, for those circuit swats were responsible for seven of the runs made off Rudy Kallio and Jack Bromley.

The Oaks started out early to win the game, for they touched Kallio for a run in the first and second innings and were batting him all over the lot in the third inning when Jack Bromley went in. Before Jack could get the side retired, the Oaks had six runs for the inning. Harry Krause was unable to hold the big lead which his teammates gave him, so Arlett was sent to the hill in the sixth inning when the tieing run was on the bags, and he managed to pull out with his team one run to the good. Hack Miller helped somewhat by grabbing Cravath's long fly, and then throwing Bromley out at the plate when he tried to score after the catch.

The score looked a bit too close to Mr Arlett so he busted a ball over the fence with Foreman Mitze on the paths in the eighth inning, making the count 10 to 7, and another run was made in the ninth. Miller hit his homer in the third inning with Wilie on the bags, and Krause got his in the same inning with Brubaker and Koehler on. "Don" Brown, the Bee's third sacker, connected for three doubles in five times at bat. The score:

Judge St. Sure Hooks Big One

Here's what Judge A. F. St. Sure of Alameda caught on Lake Tahoe one morning. Record catches are reported daily. C. L. Best of Oakland and Judge St. Sure brought back limits of stream trout from the waters back of Tahoe. Judge St. Sure's biggest one weighed 7 pounds. Wm. Reed of San Francisco landd a sixpounder and another of the fishermen on the lake brought in a ten-pounder.

SEALS ARE GIVEN BIG SCARE BY BEAVERS.

The Portland Beavers dropped another game. This time it was to the San Francisco Seals in the opening game of the series at Recreation Park, but those Seals were scared stiff right until the finish for the score was 4 to 3. Two times the Beavers took the lead, only to have the Seals come back and take it away from them. Johnny Couch was on the hill for the transbay outfit and the Beavers nicked him for two hits and a run in the second, a double by Hale and Wolfer's single doing the work. Kamm's single scored O'Connell and Ellison in the Seals' half, and then the Beavers got three hits and a sacrifice fly off Couch to give them two more runs in the third. Hits by Yell, Rath and Fitzgerald, followed by Hale's boot of Caveney's grounder and an infield out clinched the game for the Seals in the sixth.

Madera Holds Lead in S. J. V. League Race

Ralph Stroud and Ray Keating Pitch Their Teams to Victories.

The Taft team failed to put up the close battle that they were expected to do with the Madera nine at the latter's home grounds, and suffered a 9 to 1 beating, while the Madera boys retained their position as leaders in the San Joaquin Valley league. Ray Keating held the Taft nine to four hits and fanned eight, while Art Fromme and Hall were batted hard. The only run off Keating was a homer by McNulty. Keating and Schlitz hit homers for the winners. But two of the runs were made off Fromme, as he quit in the third inning when overcome by the heat. The score:

STROUD ALLOWS 3 HITS.

Pete McHenry was on the mound for the Tulare club and was charged with a 2 to 1 defeat. He pitched a five hit game against Hanford, but Ralph (Sailor) Stroud, formerly of Salt Lake, was a bit better than he and allowed but three hits. Leyva, centerfielder for the Tulare club spoiled a chance for a victory by loafing home on a long fly to the outfield. He had plenty of time to score, but the outfielder threw the ball to second base to head off a runner traveling from first, and that runner was retired for the third out, before Leyva crossed the rubber with what would have been the tying run. Milton Steengrafe, local boy who has been pitching for Tulare, had to stay out of the lineup because of being hit by a ball batted by Pete Ritchie while in practice. A blood vessel in his ankle broke. The score:

JUNEY WINS FOR COALINGA.

With Bobby Smale, Frank Juney and Johnny Emerson added to the lineup, the Coalinga club looked like a real contender and defeated Bakersfield 11 to 7. Emerson hit a triple and double, while Juney hit three singles. Juney allowed but four hits in the first eight innings, but in the ninth with the score 11 to 0 in his favor, the Drillers got to him for seven hits and as many runs, and for a while it looked like he would have to be yanked from the box. Thousands of women in Kansas have put aside their household duties and gone to work in the fields.

Miss Jennie P. Musser has been appointed collector of customs with headquarters at Salt Lake City, Utah.

P. A. Swimming Championship At Capitola

Next Sunday afternoon will be the occasion of two important swimming races for the Pacific Association swimmers, when the senior outdoor P. A. 440 yards for women and the senior outdoor 220 yards for men are held at Capitola-by-the-Sea, under the auspices of the championship committee of the P. A.

The former event will be a tangled scrap with a three-cornered angle between Olga Chapital of this city, Gert Seyden of the Alameda Neptunes, and Florence Friesenhausen of the California Swimming Club. This trio of mermaidens is a capable one, and the girls are evenly matched, with a very slight edge conceded to the latter.

In the men's 220 yards Lester Smith, the Olympic Club boy who put up the best race of the day at Oakland last week in the Yale meet, will be favored to win the championship medal. Smith can swim if he wants to and he has declared that he is through swimming only fast enough to win. From now on he will be out after time and records. The men who will give Smith the best competition are Ike Kelipio of Oakland and John Bronco of the Sutro Baths Club of San Francisco. Frank Sahlin of the Alameda Neptunes may surprise, and Cliff Stone, the Santa Cruz swimmer, is always dangerous.

George Lineer and Roy Wright will be in charge of the events. More than twenty swimmers will take part in the meet.

Baseball Gossip

Norman Boeckel and Dick Rudolph of the Boston Braves put on a fist fight, as the result of a dispute over how a play should be made in the game of July 5. That is a good sign for the Braves. When George Stallings had them going pennantward in 1911 they used to fight like cats and dogs every day, so much in earnest were they.

As part of the deal by which the Brooklyn Club sent Pitcher George Mohart to the Memphis Southern League club, Memphis will turn over to Brooklyn this fall Catcher Bernard Hungling and Third Baseman Andy High. The latter is the youngest of three brothers, ball players, the others being Hugh and Charley, both of whom have had major league trials.

Elmer Ponder, now a member of the Chicago Cubs, in exchange for Dave Robertson, sent to Pittsburg, had a big year with the Pirates last season and had won the only two games he got a decision in as a Pirate this year. However, Pittsburg felt so strong in its pitching and so uncertain of its outfielding that it felt it could make an even swap for Robertson.

It is announced from New Orleans that the working arrangement between New Orleans and Brooklyn calls for First Baseman Roy Leslie and Outfielders Bert Griffith and Ike Boone to join the Dodgers for trials upon Brooklyn's demand any time after August 1. Boone has been leading the Southern League in hitting most of the season. He is a youngster from an Alabama college.

In the Cincinnati-Chicago game of July 5 at Chicago Rube Bressler got in the game, but did not get his name in the box score. He was sent to bat for Rixey in the Reds' half of the ninth inning with two out and Duncan on first. Bressler had taken one ball and one strike when Duncan tried to steal and was thrown out, ending the game, so Bressler did not finish his time at bat.

Moses Yellowhorse, young Indian pitcher of the Pittsburg team, may be out of the game for several weeks. He is in a hospital at Pittsburg, where he has submitted to an operation for a rupture of ligaments in the groin, caused by a strain while pitching a game against the St. Louis Cardinals recently. The surgeons say it will be two weeks before he can even take light exercise.

Pittsburg and Cincinnati have played 18 of their scheduled 22 games and of these the Pirates have won 12. Pittsburg and Chicago have played 15 of their games and of these the Pirates has won 11. Indicating that Pittsburg can thank its fellows of the West for all the lead it has in the National League race. On the other hand the Giants would be in the second division except for the help they have had from Braves and Phillies.

Hundred Yd. Record Is Again Equaled

Another sprinter has equalled the world's 100-yard record of 9 3-5 seconds. He is Allen Woodring of Syracuse varsity team and he ran the distance in a triangular meet with Pittsburg and Colgate colleges. He also won the 220 yards, running the distance in 21 1-5 seconds, which was the world record until Paddock cracked the time last month. Woodring was a member of the American Olympic team at Antwerp and won the 200 meter event.

RALLY WINS FOR ZENITHS.

The Zenith Mill boys once more stepped out and trimmed a fast aggregation, this time it being the Berkeley Elks. The sawdust boys pulled the game out of the fire in the sixth inning by scoring three runs and taking the lead, which they kept throughout.

Bray was invincible after the fourth inning, sending nine back to the bench on strikes. Foster played a nice game in right field for the Elks. The score:

BILL BURNS AGAIN ON STAND TO TELL HIS STORY OF SCANDAL

Admits That He Got Only Half the Amount of Money That Gamblers Promised to Give.

By CARL VICTOR LITTLE
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, July 20.—Black Sox defense, like a pack of angry wolves, sprung at the throat of Bill Burns, confessed baseball renegade, today.

Pent-up wrath for the former big leaguer who admits he delivered the 1919 world series to "sure thing" gamblers, caused the seven former White Sox stars charged with being Burns' co-conspirators to exert every effort to legally "get" the squealer during cross-examination.

"Before the third game, I went to Abe Attell," said Burns.

"I asked him for the $20,000 he agreed to pay for the first game.

"He said $10,000 was enough and that no more would be paid by Arnold Rothstein, a New York gambler, as he had $300,000 out in bets.

"Attell took me to a room where there were several gamblers. He lifted up a mattress and I took $10,000, which was underneath.

"I was told Rothstein kept a wire open all of the time between New York and Cincinnati during the negotiations and also during the game, to keep informed on how things were going."

The defense attorneys objected continuously as Burns told his story in a matter of fact way.

"When I took the $10,000, I told Attell I didn't think the players would accept it," Burns continued.

"I tried to get Bill Maharg to take it to them but he wouldn't, so I did.

"As I went from the gamblers' room to the players' room, I met Kid Gleason, White Sox manager.

"Risberg, McMullin and other players were in the room. Cicotte and Gandil came in later.

"The players asked me if I had double-crossed them. I told them $10,000 was all I had.

"I said I hadn't double-crossed them at all, but brought all the money I could.

"I gave them the money and asked about the game the next day.

"I told them Attell wanted the Sox to win the third game because the odds were going against Chicago.

"He wanted small odds, so they could bet on Cincinnati to win for the series."

"When you first met Cicotte in New York, what conversation did you have?" State's Attorney Gorman asked.

This question led to bitter objection by defense attorneys, who held the state had no right to ask questions of conversations held in New York.

The judge upheld the contention of the defense.

"When did you arrive in Chicago?" Gorman asked.

"On the morning of the third game," Burns answered.

"I met Attell in the lobby of the Hotel Sherman. He asked me to find out about the third game."

Q.—What did you do?

A.—I called Gandil up and asked about the third game.

Q.—What did he say?

A.—He said it was going the same way as the other two.

Q.—Did you see Attell again?

A.—Yes, I told him what Gandil had said.

Q.—Did you see Attell after the third game?

A.—I met him shortly after the game was over.

"Attel said he and Bennett lost a lot of money because they bet the Sox would lose, and they won. Later, Attel, Bennett and I talked about the other games."

Q.—What did Attel say?

A.—Attel said he would put up $20,000 on the fourth game and if the Sox lost the players would get a total of $45,000.

The "go-between" then said he went back to the players with Attel's new proposition.

Q.—Did you meet the players?

A.—Yes, I met Gandil.

Q.—What did he say?

A.—He said he was through with the gamblers because they still owed money from the first two games that were thrown. Gandil said he was going out to win. Later I saw Risberg and asked him about the next game and he said the players would hold a meeting.

Q.—Did they say anything about why they won the third game?

A.—Yes; I asked Gandil why they won it. He told me the gamblers double-crossed the players and they then crossed the gamblers.

Q.—Was anything said about the balance of the series.

A.—Risberg later said he was going to throw the whole series.

Burns testified he met Attel and Joe Gedeon the next evening.

Q.—Where did you go?

Q.—What did you talk about?

A.—Attel asked about the fifth game. He said he wanted to get to Gandil, Risberg and Williams.

Q.—Did he mention any money?

A.—He said he would give the $20,000 to lose. He said a couple of bankers would bring the money to the hotel. The money was to be split just among the three.

Q.—Did you put the proposition up to the players?

A.—I went to see them that night. I demanded that Gandil give me my share of the $10,000 they had received. He said he didn't have it. I said if I didn't get my cut I would tell everything.

Q.—Did you see Attel after that?

A.—Yes, I met him and told him it was all off.

The state's star witness was led into court by the armed guard of deputy sheriffs which is constantly with him. The detail stays with Burns at night in his hiding place.

Burns chewed his gum fiercely as he further unfolded the sale that rocked the sport world. Fans leaned forward in their seats to catch every word that was being said about the men they once worshipped.

They heard the allegation that Eddie Cicotte ran around New York with a "for sale" tag on the world series and how gamblers made the purchase for $100,000.

He recounted how "Kid" Gleason, the venerable White Sox manager, interfered with the "fixed series" when Little Dickie Kerr was put in the pitcher's box in the third world series game instead of Cicotte.

Cicotte had agreed to lose the game, Burns testified, and the gamblers, led by Attell, who, the witness stated, called himself "Able, the agent of Rothstein, the gambler," placed large sums of money on Cincinnati to win.

This money was lost, said Burns, when Kerr went to the box and pitched a shutout game.

Bitter quarrels between the gamblers and players ensued, according to Burns, during which the players were accused of "double crossing" the gamblers.

Oaks Were in Sixth Place This Time Last Season

Three Clubs Then in First Division Are Now Perched On Second Half of the Ladder.

The close of the fifteenth week of the Pacific Coast league season for 1921 sees the teams aligned as follows as compared with the same time last year:

1921—	W.	L.	Pct.
San Francisco	66	41	.617
Sacramento	62	44	.585
Oakland	58	44	.569
Seattle	58	44	.569
Los Angeles	55	45	.550
Vernon	53	53	.500
Salt Lake	35	65	.350
Portland	24	75	.242

1920—	W.	L.	Pct.
Salt Lake	62	41	.602
Vernon	62	46	.574
Los Angeles	56	50	.528
San Francisco	53	50	.515
Portland	46	52	.469
Seattle	45	58	.437
Oakland	46	61	.430
Sacramento	44	60	.423

A glance at the above shows that the present race for the pennant has developed much earlier than it did last year which, at the same time, eventually ended with one of the closest finishes ever seen in the league. Vernon failed to fatten up on the Portlanders to the extent that was expected, the Northwesterners astonishing the entire circuit by winning three games in the series, something that may be recorded as a rare event this year. The question now arises, did the Portlanders show greater strength than they have been exhibiting or is the Vernon team no longer to be considered as a dangerous competitor. The probabilities are that the latter alternative is the more generally accepted one.

TIGERS ARE WEAK.

Certainly the league champions of last season have shown nothing like the remarkable exhibition of consistent play with which they regaled the fans in 1920. It would be [illegible] to predict that any team is down and out of the race for it will be remembered that it was at this time that Seattle last year was making its climb from the cellar to second place—all but getting into the first position, which it missed only by the narrowest of margins. At the same time, Vernon has shown nothing thus far which would lead one to expect that it has any potential strength which it has not put to use.

The end of this week ought to see the Seals with a firmer grip on first place unless, as suggested above, the Portlanders have taken on a new lease of life and are to show a flash of something of the old days when they were in the habit of winning pennants. Of course, they are hopelessly out of the race, but there still are possibilities that they may be a thorn in the side of the real contenders. The present week's series will largely determine if they are at all likely to become such a factor. It does not seem likely however, that anything they will do will be anything more serious than a momentary flash now and then.

OAKS HURT SEATTLE.

Seattle's disastrous week with the Oaklanders in this last series will be a setback the Siwashes will have a tough time recovering from in view of the closeness of the race and the equality which the teams are showing at the present time.

The next couple of series will be important ones for the Sacramentans and it is possible that much may hinge in the matter of their future prospects on the way in which they emerge from their battles of the next couple of weeks. Many a pennant has been lost in a mid-season series or two, and this seems to be the situation that confronts Rodgers' men at the moment.

100,000 forest fires have burned 20,458,000 acres of timber in the last five years.

GOLF

Morton Benedict, a 15-year-old boy from Kansas City, has been extended an invitation to play in the third annual State Junior Golf championship which opens at Del Monte tomorrow with a qualifying round of 18 holes. Benedict has been practicing in company with Ashton Stanley, who won the title for the first time in 1919, and has been showing to good advantage.

The event is open to boys of 16 years and under and is expected to attract a goodly entry. There will be flights of eight which will be played at handicap with the exception of the championship division.

Mortie Dutra, the Pebble Beach professional who had a marvelous record of 67 at the seaside course last week, pulled another sensational stunt while playing the historic Del Monte course over the week-end. He made the first hole, 390 yards, par 4, in 2. He got a long tee shot and sunk his mashie pitch. Quite a gallery saw Dutra perform the feat. He was playing with Abie Espinosa against John Black and Peter Hay. In a 27-hole match Dutra and Espinosa won five up.

The work of improvement continues on the Pebble Beach and Del Monte course in preparation for the State championship which will be held on September 3 to 11. The summer golf tournament on August 12 to 14 is coming in for a great deal of interest as a number of well-known players are already starting to arrive to get in some practice licks.

FOUR ROUNDERS WILL STEP AT THE AUDITORIUM TONIGHT

EDDIE DIGGINS WILL BE GIVEN ACID TEST WHEN HE MEETS JOE KETCHEL

Promoter Simpson Has Well Balanced Card To Offer Patrons At Auditorium.

Eddie Diggins, the pride of Antioch and the Olympic Club, and one of the most promising lightweights to pop up in the four-round game in several years, is going to be given the test that he has not received since his entrance into the game. Eddie has met a lot of good boys, but none as experienced as Joe Ketchel, the Alameda miller whom Promoter Tommy Simpson has picked to meet Diggins in the main event of his weekly show to be staged at the Oakland Auditorium tonight. Eddie is so confident of putting the well-known kayo on his opponent that he says the fans will be brought back to school classroom days by hearing the referee counting from one to ten. Probably Diggins has been listening a little too much to his admirers, for he has many of them who think that Ketchel will be an easy target for him. The Alameda boy may not look as fast in the ring as will Diggins, but he will surely be trying all the time and hopes to prove to the crowd that experience has it on youth.

Ketchel has watched Diggins closely in his two bouts here with Jimmy West and Johnny Nunes, and doesn't expect to have much trouble in avoiding that kayo wallop of the Antioch boy. The Alamedan admits that Diggins is one of the best that he has seen crop up among the lightweights in this section for a long while, and he isn't going into the ring with the idea in his head that he is meeting a green pea. Joe is going to be very cautious, and that seems to be what everybody else thinks he should do. Ketchel carries quite a kick in both of his own hands, and Diggins will also have to be careful that he doesn't put his chin in the way of something that will send him flopping on the canvas.

May Be Last Chance To See Diggins For Some Time.

Gerald Brown realizes that he has the makings of a champion in Diggins, and he has been very careful about his training and in matching him. Brown doesn't want his boy to step along too fast, and it wouldn't be surprising if he rested him for a while after the bout with Ketchel tonight. If Diggins does decide to take a rest, then local fans are not likely to see him for a long while again as it is quite certain that some of these out of town promoters will be keeping him busy for awhile, and you know every four-rounder likes to see what it is to perform elsewhere. Diggins has trained at the Olympic Club with Eddie Ramies and other fast boys, and Manager Brown says he was never as fit for a bout as he is for to-night's. Joe Ketchel spent the last week in training at Conde's quarters in Alameda.

After looking over his full list of four-rounders, Tommy Simpson has decided to use Al Sange in one of the special events against Frankie Thomas, in place of Frankie Murphy. Sange is no busher at the fisticuff game, for he has been quite a drawing card at the bouts staged in Alameda, and has also shown here on different occasions.

Ramies and Vierra To Tangle in Special Event.

Next to the main event, between Diggins and Ketchel, the scheduled four-round contest between Benny Vierra and Eddie Ramies is causing the most talk of any bouts on the card, and there are eight of them. Ramies, who is also another of Gerald Brown's stable, fought a sensational draw with Vierra two weeks ago, and besides the fans crying for a return match, both boys did it also, and Tommy Simpson wasn't fool enough to pass up such a good box office attraction. If Vierra and Ramies can repeat their last bout, then Diggins and Ketchel will have to do some real milling to claim they put on the best entertainment for the patrons. Oakland fans have made Vierra a favorite to win, but Ramies is going to have plenty of backers from the other side of the bay.

The other five bouts on the card are promising of keeping the fans uneasy. Jack Davis will be another old trial horse who will appear. He is matched with Frankie Hanley. Johnny Burns, the East Oaklander, is one of the gamest boys in his class and should show Marty Burham a real lively time.

Al "Red" Williams is going to be the attraction for a big party of fans from Rodeo and neighboring towns. Al is a regular idol in the town of auto ferries, and he will have plenty rooting for him when he tangles with Joe Roberts, who has been doing a lot of training at Conde's place. John (Mickey) Derney vs. Joe Healy, and Jack Grande vs. Joe Morrissey are the other bouts on the card.

Here Is Card For Tonight At Auditorium

Joe Ketchel vs. Eddie Diggins.
Benny Vierra vs. Eddie Ramies.
Al. Sange vs. Frankie Thomas.
Jack Davis vs. Frankie Hanley.
Johnny Burns vs. Marty Burham.
"Red" Williams vs. Joe Roberts.
Johnny Derney vs. Joe Healy.
Jack Grande vs. Joe Morrisey.

Johnston's Partner Puzzler To Fans

With Pock Griffin, William Johnston's partner in the tennis doubles, an uncertain quantity as a running mate, there is conisderable speculation among the followers of the game as to who would be his partner in the event of Griffin finally not being able to join up. That he would hook up some other Californian player would seem most probable. Johnston will, of course, wait until the eleventh hour before taking any steps toward finding another running mate, as he is anxious to pair up with Peck and will give him every opportunity.

Big League Club Owners Are Worried

Crowds Have Fallen To Less Than Half of What They Were Last Year.

By HENRY L. FARRELL.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, July 20.—Club owners are beginning to get concerned over the decrease in attendance at the major league ball yards.

The 1921 season got away well and until the first of June the crowds equalled the record breaking attendance of 1920. Then the slump came.

The Polo Grounds where the two New York clubs make their home, has been giving unmistakable evidence that interest in the national pastime is falling off. Crowds of 5000 and less now sit in on the daily games where 10,000 were only fair last year. This, too, despite the fact that both the Giants and the Yanks are up in the race.

Some of the wise followers of the game blame the slump on the "lively ball," which is making the games much longer and less interesting. It is a fact that where games last year used to be played in an hour and a half to two hours, nine innings now run much longer and the spectators begin to file out to the subway and the elevated around the seventh inning.

Others maintain that baseball was lucky too be late in getting a wallop by a general business slump. It seems more reasonable to believe that the fans are staying away from the parks because they have other places for a dollar. The tight financial condition of the country is shown in the bleachers. During times of prosperity the bleachers are almost deserted on the Polo grounds but it has been noticeable lately that the seats out in the sun are more popular than the higher priced seats in the grandstand.

Baseball and the theatrical world have a lot in common in New York. The same element that fills the theaters swells the crowds at the baseball games. There is a lot of significance in the fact that the gay white way in the "Forties" is having the same slump as the Polo grounds.

"The Follies" is the only show on Broadway doing good business. Other shows are playing to half-houses every night. Tickets are available for every show in New York but the famous "Folly" show at a cut-rate ticket agency, where the managers dispose of tickets below the box office price.

It means nothing that Tex Rickard gets $1,600,000 from 80,000 spectators who saw the Dempsey-Carpentier fight. Such a sport spectacle will draw a crowd any time in any place near such a nest of population.

It is not generally known, however, that Rickard, seeing the slump in baseball and around the theaters, was a rather worried person just previous to the fight. His tickets weren't going, and as late as eleven o'clock on the morning of the fight he wasn't sure that he was going to have enough fans in the big stadium to give him even a slight return for all his time and trouble.

Pete Herman to Tangle With Joe Lynch on Monday

By JACK VEIOCK.
International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Pete Herman, former king of the bantamweights, will arrive here late today or tomorrow aboard the Cunard liner Orduna to fill a very important engagement at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, next Monday night.

Fresh from his sensational knockout victory over Jim Higgins, British bantamweight champion, in London, Herman returns home to fight Joe Lynch, who took the world's title away from him, in a return bout of 15 rounds. The little fellows will fight under the auspices of the International Sporting Club and the bout has aroused unusual interest.

Herman has been knocking off some husky opponents of late and he returns home confident that he can win back the bantamweight crown. In the estimation of a good many fistic experts, Herman has an excellent chance of regaining the title.

Many who saw him lose to Lynch were of the opinion that he boxed too carefully and could have retained his championship had he made the sort of fight he is capable of making.

Immediately after he lost his championship Herman went to London and started his campaign to win it back by knocking out Jimmy Wilde. He has worked incessantly since then to fit himself for a battle with Lynch and he will crawl through the ropes Monday night a very determined and dangerous young man.

Amateur Golfers Have Their Day At National Tourney

By RUSSELL BROWNING,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

COLUMBIA COUNTRY CLUB, Chevy Chase, Md., July 20. — This was amateur day in the preliminaries for the national open golf tournament, with Bobby Jones, Atlanta youngster, and Chick Evans Jr., American amateur champions, as the headliners. These are the only two amateurs who are conceded a chance in the finals by the experts.

Nelson M. Whitney, New Orleans, however, showed he is not to be overlooked by making a 73 in the first day's preliminaries, taking his place alongside Pat O'Hara, New Jersey, at the head of the low score list.

By DR. WOODS HUTCHINSON

Every prize fighter I've ever examined—and I've examined more than a few—has had a consumptive chest. None of them is really strong; none of them has any endurance to speak of.

A few years ago, in California, I had a number of well-known ring fighters under observation. It came about this way.

Once upon a time a wise old cockatoo stated that the flat chest was the consumptive chest. Very good. Since he made that statement medical men and others seemed called upon to reiterate it.

In those days many fighters were coming to California. It was boom-time for fighting here. I met the original Jack Dempsey—the Dempsey whose name the present-day pugilist is wearing—and examined him. Then there was Joe Wolcott, and Willie Meehan, and Bombardier Wells.

What sort of chests had they?

Round chests! The sort of chest we had been told were the healthy, strong man's chest.

Do you know what sort of a chest a baby has? No?

Well, it's a round chest—exactly the same type of chest that your prize fighter has. However, the baby doesn't keep that chest longer than he has to—nature has given him more sense. Little by little, his chest flattens out, and as he grows older, if he is healthy, it broadens, too.

To prove that my findings were average, and therefore to be accepted as true, I may say that I examined 2500 men—many of them soldiers.

That former Jack Dempsey died of consumption, as you know. So did Peter Jackson, a crack fighter of 20 years ago. And though I can't give you the name of all that I looked up I went right into their family history—I can state that at least one-third of all those fighters of bygone days whose records I investigated had died of tuberculosis.

The percentage among average citizens is about eleven in one. Quite a difference, isn't there?

And speaking of averages. The ordinary man lives to something over 53 years, while the prize fighter's life is limited, on the average, to slightly more than 26.

Of course, there are exceptions. Corbett, for instance. And old John L. But the exceptions just mean that men like Corbett and John L. were unusual men.

You know in the old days, when they took measurements of chests in order to determine an average, they took their measurements from skeletons. Can you imagine anything more absurd? You'll see my point more clearly if you knew how those skeletons were set up. The man that fixed them doesn't know how the chest bones go, so he rigs them up so that they're about perpendicular to the spinal column. So that when they come to measure the skeleton they find that the man whom the skeleton had once been had had a very round chest. Apparently. But the chances are that the man had had a flat chest, which is a sign of true health.

Boxer Doesn't Live as Long as Average Man.

Prize fighters are freaks, but I don't want you to understand that I think they're roughnecks. They're not. Many people have called them vicious. But that's absurd. The average prize fighter is nothing but a good-natured, harmless child. He is usually kind-hearted and very good-natured.

But they are freaks.

They don't live long. A fighter's life, especially when you eliminate the childhood part of it is terribly short. He goes up like a flash to his greatest success, and like a flash he comes down.

But the unfortunate part of it is that they don't stop. They're freaks, but they don't realize it.

Since the game began, every prize-fighter has believed that he was the exception—that he would live long—that the time of his downfall would never come—and that when he got too old to fight, and his strength and agility began to slip from him, he'd know enough to stop. But they seldom stop in time! Now and again you find a man who's recognized his limitations and has quit the game before the game has trapped him—but they're few and far between.

Now there are two things which the prizefighter has not—and one thing which he has.

He has little balance. His legs are underdeveloped, and when he stands it is as if he were on a pivot. He can fall with all his force once or twice, smashing out his fist with terrific power. But then all he can do is stand still and get pounded. His punch is unbalanced, unnatural and unhealthy. Your ring fighter is not a barroom fighter, contrary to widespread popular opinion. If he attempted to scrap with a real roughneck he would be beaten up, for he can't handle himself for brutal stuff.

If his punch misses, he has lost a tremendous amount of energy, for he has been all keyed up to deliver that punch the moment the opportunity presented itself. His very state of being keyed up has cost him a lot of energy, for his muscles have been taut and ready. Missing, he is like the bee that dies after he has stung.

Doesn't Feel Any Pain Because of No Nerves.

In the second place he has no nerves. Pain is a thing unknown to him. Never in my life have I seen pain show itself on a prizefighter's face. And I know when a man is in pain. I've seen the sign many times.

Therefore, it is absurd to talk of brutality in the ring. You can't say a man has been treated brutally if he doesn't feel the blows!

On the other hand, though, it is also absurd to speak of prizefighting as requiring courage and manliness. It most certainly does not.

Have you ever tried to kill an eel? Have you ever tried to kill one by walloping him on the head? Yes? What impression did you make on the eel? None!

That's exactly the impression you could make on a prizefighter by hitting him on the head. He scarcely feels it. The place for the knockout is the jawbone—or the solar plexus. At the point of connection between the jawbone and the skull the bone is thickest and most brittle. There is more line there and no spongy tissue. A stiff wallop on the point of the jaw, or on the side of the jawbone, and the man is likely to go down.

Well, that completes the essential things which the prizefighter has not. There is one thing which he has.

"Quickness."

He has quickness of response. He must be able to deliver a blow like lightning—so fast that it cannot be timed. In fact, he delivers the blow so fast that he does not himself realize that he is doing it. When he is hit, he responds in a flash; but it is on account of a strange reflex. The message is not transmitted to the brain, but merely to the spine, and the answer comes back in incredibly short time.

It would produce more result if you kicked a boxer in the shins than if you hit him on the head?

They're freaks, as I said before. They go up—and down. Two years in a fighter's life is as long as twenty in the ordinary man's. That's why the man of today is forgotten tomorrow.

Yankees, Indians Open Series Today

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 20.—Possession of first place in the American league standing is at stake in the four-game series which is scheduled to open here today between the Cleveland Indians and the New York Yankees. This morning the world's champions were leading by less than one game. The series finds Manager Speaker better fortified with pitchers than he has been for two years. He has seven first-rank men ready to go in against the Yankees.

THIS TIME LAST YEAR

Ruth hit his thirty-first home run against Faber of the White Sox, at the Polo Grounds. Chicago scored four in the ninth, winning 5 to 3. After getting a seven-run lead, Cleveland barely defeated Boston 9 to 8 in 11th.

Playing against Pittsburgh, both Young and Frisch of the Giants scored on King's sacrifice fly, Frisch coming in from second.

George Kelly and Ruth Are Opposite Style of Batters

Babe Ruth of the New York Yankees, and George Kelly of the New York Giants, the two "home run kings" are distinctly opposite types of hitters. The only thing both have in common is their ability to swing on the old cork center and send it airplaning into the bleachers or out of the grounds entirely. Kelly is a freer hitter than Ruth in the sense that he hits to all directions of the field oftener than Bambino. On the other hand Ruth is a freer hitter than Kelly in that he hits all kinds, high, low, fast curves, etc. Kelly is a wrist batter while Ruth has a long powerful swing and applies the principles of power so that he gets every ounce of weight into action. Kelly leans well forward, Ruth does not. Kelly stands with his feet well spread while Ruth does not. Ruth's position at bat is the easier of the two. Ruth holds the bat vertical. Kelly has the bat pointing out backward. Kelly picks out balls to hit better than Ruth. Kelly is a "flat-footed" hitter, and Ruth is lighter on his feet.

Graduate Manager At Stanford May Be Picked Tonight

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, July 20.—The question of picking a successor to Graduate Manager Ed Martin, whose resignation was announced here yesterday, will be taken up here tonight at a meeting of the Stanford Board of Athletic Control. It is said that the Board is considering several men who graduated from the University three or four years ago. The new Stanford stadium will make the graduate manager's position a more difficult one than usual this year.

Another assistant football coach is to be selected by the Board of Athletic Control. This question may also come up at tonight's meeting, but it is not thought likely as the board desires to hold a conference with Gene Van Gent, the new head coach, before making a selection.

Stanford will have an unusually large coaching staff this year. The line is to be supervised by Prof. J. R. Canning, who helped last year. He is a former University of Chicago guard. "Dink" Templeton, now varsity track coach, but star of the 1920 eleven, will assist in the backfield this season. Athletic Director Walter Powell, who coached the 1920 eleven, will also give his advice on the building up of the team. Duffy Seay will handle the freshmen eleven again.

Pipe Is Help to Track Men, Thinks English Captain

BOSTON, July 20.—Bevil Rudd, captain of the Oxford-Cambridge track team that meets the Yale-Harvard group in Harvard stadium on Saturday, trains on a pipe.

The big Oxford athlete puffs on a briar pipe almost incessantly. He smokes even on the days when he is slated for gruelling tests on the cinder paths and laughs at American trainers who say it will hurt him.

"Why, it helps me a tremendous lot, really," Rudd said today. "Over in Antwerp, one of your American coaches told me to cut it out and see if it did not help me. I tried it and ran third in the 400 meters. Then I smoked two pipefulls and won my next two events."

Miss Mary Browne Will Make Another Try to Win Title

NEW YORK, July 20. — Miss Mary K. Browne, of Los Angeles, has arrived in New York and will begin preparations for the women's national tennis championships to be held at Forest Hills beginning August 15.

"I am anxious for another chance at the national title," said Miss Browne, "and I expect to play right up to that time." She has been entered in the women's New York championship tournament beginning in Brooklyn next Monday.

Livermore Trims Oakland Sciots, 10-3

LIVERMORE, July 20.—The Livermore Baseball Club defeated the Oakland Sciots by a score of ten to three at the Rodeo Park. The game was something of a pitchers' battle, with Keller of Livermore tightening up wonderfully in the pitches. Potts of the Sciots pitched an erratic game making the Livermore sluggers fan thirteen times, hitting three men, walking five and allowing twelve hits.

In the final inning with two down Yakota, Livermore's center fielder, made a very spectacular catch and thus ending one of the best all-round baseball games that has been played this season on the local grounds. Uttendoffer of Livermore umpired. The Sciots' concert band furnished good music for the fans and was greatly appreciated.

ARRANGE VALLEJO CARD.

VALLEJO, July 20.—Joe Fox and Manuel Azevedo are mentioned as the pugs for the main event of the card to be staged by the American Legion the night of August 9. The Legion management states that the show in August will eclipse all of the shows held so far this year.

Bill Johnston One of First to Send in Entry For Singles Championship

A number tennis players apparently want to take no chances of being left out of the draw of the men's singles championship which begins at the Germantown Cricket Club Philadelphia September 9 for entries are already being received by the United States Lawn Tennis Association 70 Broad street, New York. Although August 30 is the closing date, the fact that so many foreign competitors are likely to be in the championship seems to have spurred the players of the United States to unprecedented activity.

JOHNSTON EARLY ENTRANT.

Watson Washburn was the first to send his entry and this was soon followed by a telegram from the California Lawn Tennis Association to make sure that William M. Johnston of San Francisco was properly entered. Other ranking players are already on record, along with youngsters who want a chance at the title. In view of the likelihood of the entry being restricted to 128 so that the tournament can be completed within a reasonable time, others are taking every precaution to benefit from whatever advantage there may be in sending entries early.

It is not hard to find the reason for this activity. Representatives of Australasia, British Isles, Denmark, France and Japan are already in the United States or sailing for this country to compete in the Davis cup matches that will culminate in the challenge round at Forest Hills, September 2, 3 and 5. With so many tennis fans during the latter part of the season it is only reasonable to suppose that most of them will arrange to stay for the championships. Consequently, the competition at Philadelphia should bring together the most notable entry, in its world-wide representation, in the history of American tennis.

EXPECT RECORD CROWD.

This interest in the championship is not confined to the play by any means, for Samuel M. Peacock, 142 South 4th St., Philadelphia, who has charge of the advance sale for the series tickets, report that clubs in and near Philadelphia have already underwritten large blocks of tickets. The seating arrangements will be similar to those at Forest Hills and about 9,000 spectators can be accommodated. "It is important that every one wishing series tickets make application early" said Mr. Peacock because the demand is brisk. We still have plenty of seats available but with the approach of August it will be increasingly difficult to accommodate all who wish to see these matches."

VALLEJO CLUB TO SHOOT.

The next shoot of the Vallejo Gun Club will be held Sunday, July 24. The shoot was advanced one week as many of the crack shots are preparing to leave for the hills on July 31 in quest of deer.

While in the U. S. Army I suffered agonies from piles. I was treated by the army doctors without effect. I suffered just the same and was told that I must face an operation. Finally I heard of the Fong Wan Chinese Herb treatment. I drank the herb about 4 weeks and am now in fine condition. I am glad to recommend the Fong Wan Herbs to all who are in poor health. Twenty Parties Are in Czecho-Slovak Assembly

By OSCAR W. JUNEK,
Universal Service Special Correspondent.

PRAGUE, July — The Communist party should not obstruct the political programs of other parties represented in the National Assembly, but together with them should join as a unit to the common wheel in building the new republic in exemplary state economically as well as socially. This at least was the most heartfelt desire of President Masaryk before he left for his summer vacation on the Island of Capri a week ago.

At present there are some twenty different parties represented in the parliament. To an American such political diversity appears highly incongruous and almost unthinkable, when he thinks of home and the two great parties.

For information's sake let us enumerate all of them and their respective programs.

MANY PARTIES.

(1) The Czecho-Slovak Social Democratic (right wing) program of national social democracy; after the 25th of October it split into Czech and the Slovak Social Democrats. Fifty-two representatives, thirty six senators, five party newspapers.

(2) The Czecho Slovak Social Democratic Labor Party (left wing) whose rapprochement answered somehow the Moscow Bolshevistic program (This is the party which now calls itself "Communist" and wishes to carry out the program of its Russian friends in Moscow) Twenty-two representatives, five senators, three party newspapers.

(3) The Czecho-Slovak popular party (a Catholic party demanding a certain autonomy for Slovakia), 33 representatives, 18 senators, 4 party newspapers.

(4) The Republican party of Czecho-Slovak Agrarians (mostly small agriculturists), 28 representatives, 14 senators, 2 party organs.

(5) The Czecho-Slovak Socialist party (this is the old Socialist party, whose social reform program borders on the one put up by the Social-Democratic party), 24 representatives, 10 senators, 4 party organs.

CONSERVATIVE ELEMENT.

(6) The Czecho-Slovak National Democratic party, whose program is both national and liberal in all questions of economic nature; 19 representatives, 10 senators, 3 party organs (considered to be one of the most conservative parties.)

(7) The Slovak National and Peasant party (the majority adheres to the program of the Republican party of Czecho-Slovak Agrarians, the minority to the National Democratic party); 12 representatives, 6 senators, 3 party organs.

(8) The Middle-Class Trade party defending the interests of small industries, petty trades and petty commerce); 6 representatives, 3 senators, 3 party organs.

(9) The Working-people's party (progressive Socialists; the right wing of the Socialist party); 3 representatives, no senators, 2 party organs.

(10) The German Social Democratic party. 31 representatives, 16 senators, 2 party organs.

GERMAN BRANCH

(12) The German Electoral Union (an electoral coalition composed of diverse German nationalistic bourgeois and German National Socialists) 15 representatives, 8 senators, 2 party organs

(13) The Union of German peasants (Agrarian party): 11 representatives, 6 senators, 1 party organ.

(14) The German Christian Socialistic party (a Catholic party with moderate Socialistic program): 10 representatives, 4 senators, 1 party organ

(15) The German Democratic Libertarian party (National progressivists), 3 senators, two party organs.

(16) The German-Magyar (German-Hungarian), Social Democracy right wing: 4 representatives, 2 organs

(17) The German-Magyar Social Democracy left wing (Social Democratic program): 1 representative, 1 organ.

CHRISTIAN SOCIALISTS

(18) German and Hungarian Christian Socialists. (coalition party of Catholic origin but of diverse separatist elements of Slovakia without distinction as to religion.) 5 representatives, 2 senators, 2 party organs.

(19) The Hungarian Small Cultivators' party (Agrarian program). One representative, one senator, one party organ

From the above it becomes at once visible that a diversity of interests are represented in the new parliament. The strongest party is the Czecho-Slovak Social Democrats with a representation of 88, whose left wing (the Communists), with a representation of 27, wish now to co-operate with the Moscow government, answering the call of "the Third Internationale." It is to them that the president directed his ardent wish not to fall out of entire political grouping, but to co-ordinate their activity as to be in full harmony with the rest.

LATEST NEWS OF INDUSTRY, TRADE AND FINANCE

New Orleans Encouraged By Price Gains: Other Business News.

(Copyright, 1921, by OAKLAND TRIBUNE)

By A. D. WELTON.

CHICAGO July 20.—Warm weather has stimulated sales in everything designed for high temperatures and business in clothing and shoes has shown more snap this week than for a long time. The wholesale markets have reflected this activity through additional buying by retailers who however, still make their purchases in small quantities.

This policy has brought its penalties in many cases. Merchants who have attempted to purchase lightweight garments to replace depleted stocks have found manufacturers working on fall deliveries.

Price cuts on steel are reported as having a favorable influence on demand but have not yet resulted in renewed activity on mills in this district. Crop prospects are favorable but reports of damage are coming with greater frequency.

New Orleans

By I. V. SHANNON.

NEW ORLEANS, July 20.—Substantial rise in the value of all its agricultural products, particularly cotton, sugar and rice, has created a much better feeling throughout this part of the South. Bankers and business men now feel that there will be a general improvement when crops begin to move. The belief that better conditions are bound to come is so general that jobbers and manufacturers who have been holding their salesmen at home, now have started them out for fall business. All the large department stores here are sending their buyers this week to buy for fall and spring, a radical departure as none has placed large future orders for more than a year.

Business Topics

FUR TRADE CAMPAIGN.

NEW YORK, July 20.—A national advertising campaign to stimulate the buying and wearing of fur garments is being agitated in the fur trade. It is planned to make the campaign a cooperative one, including all elements from the dealer in raw furs to the retailer and its object is to re-establish the confidence of the public in the validity of present fur prices. According to present plans the first blast of this publicity will be blown about September 1.

MANEQUINS PASSING.

NEW YORK, July 20.—As a result of the keen competition which has entered the wholesale apparel trade some of the largest dress manufacturers of New York have decided to dispense with living models on which to display their products to buyers. The manufacturers of the cheaper lines discontinued the use of models some time ago but until now the "perfect 36s" were deemed a necessity in the high-class trade. One manufacturer declared that the models were paid $35 a week and that as many as twenty were employed. In future the gowns will be kept on dummy forms.

Commodity News

COTTON.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Business in standard 60x60, 38½-inch print cloths is not booming but there has been a stiffening of prices which is taken as an indication of better business ahead.

LANCASTER, S. C., July 20.—The Lancaster Cotton Mills, which closed two weeks ago, have resumed operations under the same conditions which formerly obtained. Executives denied that any agreement had been reached with the union and said the mills would continue to exercise the right to choose their employees as they saw fit and to refuse to deal with anyone not employed by the company.

BOSTON, July 20.—Cotton mills are running at far less than capacity throughout New England. Demand for ginghams, however, particularly for small checks, is strong for spot delivery and there is a good demand for organdies and fine crepes.

SHIPBUILDING.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation has been awarded the contract for a 2000-ton tanker by the Atlantic Refining Company.

NEW YORK, July 20.—It is reported in shipping circles that the Argentine government is a potential buyer of American tonnage on a fairly big scale. The South American government has the money, having fared remarkably well in the sale of grain during the past few years, and may indulge in a state-owned fleet.

Clothing

NEW YORK, July 20.—Dresses made with an open slit down the back with the blouse fastened only at the neckline and waist are frequently noted at the roof gardens and cafes here and give opportunity to make evident the color symphony between inner and outer garb.

Henry VIII has lent his name to a new shape in headpieces now being developed in the Parisian Atliers and brought here by importers. The new hat has a small brim, coming far down over the eyes in front and over the neck at the back and rolling smugly up at the side. Ostrich plumes are used extensively for trimming, but the plumes instead of trailing off the side, are laid on the hat from front to back. Cire cocardes are extensively used on the Continental or George Washington shapes as a trimming.

The new well-dressed business man is expected to be on the dot and the dot is expected to be on the well-dressed man at least on his tie. Men's neckwear specialties are featured at the moment by dotted effects usually carried out in foulard or some other soft material. The dots are close together and fairly large. The diagonal stripes in ties are falling off in popularity. Black and white combinations are predicted for fall wear.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

Coining operations were renewed at the United States Mint in San Francisco today, it was announced by M. J. Kelly, the new superintendent, formerly county treasurer of Alameda county. The resumption of operations follows a close of six weeks for annual accounting, which also is the first accounting made to Kelly, who took office on July 1.

The operation which started today was upon standard silver dollars for replacement under the terms of the Pittman Act, it was stated. Minting was started on the day work basis, but within a week or ten days there will be continuous operation with shifts of workers doing 24-hour coining.

Coincident with the re-opening today, it was announced that the tremendous task of counting and verifying the quantity of gold and silver bullion and metal for minor coinage has just been completed after work of a month and a half.

W. H. Shanahan, the retiring superintendent, accounted for $157,950,-162 93 and accepted the receipt of Superintendent Kelly for that amount.

The coinage operations will be upon silver dollars only for the present and it will be necessary to operate to full capacity to meet treasury requirements, it is stated.

WOODS, NOW WITH GREAT N. Y. BANK; TO WATCH COAST.

W. W. Woods, vice-president of the First National Bank of Los Angeles, who was elected vice-president of the National City Bank of New York, yesterday, will take up his new duties in August, but will remain in close touch with coast conditions in behalf of his new affiliation, it is understood. Woods, a short time ago, was located in the bay region as vice-president of the Bank of Italy. He has been 26 years a banker, having begun in New Mexico. By nativity he is of Indiana.

TWENTY-THREE NEW OIL WELLS STARTED.

Oil field operations during the week ending July 16, included 23 new wells started, as compared with 17 during the previous week, making the total of new wells this year 824 compared with 459 the same date last year, R. E. Collom, state inspector, reported today.

Tests for water shut-off numbered 27, as compared with 31 during the previous week. Deepening or redrilling jobs 14 compared with 27. Wells abandoned numbered 2 as compared with 6 during the preceding week. There have been 129 abandoned this year so far.

POOREST U. S. STEEL REPORT EXPECTED.

E. T. Hutton & Co.'s New York stock wire letter today says:

"Earnings of United States Steel Corporation for the second quarter will be published next Tuesday. It is generally known that they are bad, in fact, not far from the lowest on record. Some of the selling of steel stocks for short account which made the low price of the year for this issue last month, doubtless was based on the idea that these earnings figures would develop liquidation. It looks as though, for the present, at least, this expectation would be realized."

Another New York market advice says:

"Steel men placed little credence in the reports coming from Youngstown to the effect that leading independents in that district were about to pool their orders and turn them all over to one mill to take care of the light demand and at the same time reduce costs of operation. It also was said that such a plan would provide increased employment In one quarter doubt was expressed as to the feasibility of such a system, but it was admitted that it had been discussed in steel production circles."

U. P. PLANS NEW LINE TO GRAND CANYON RIM.

The Union Pacific system may at no distant time, construct a branch line to the rim of the Grand canyon, a short distance from the Utah state line. H. M. Adams, vice-president of the railway and second vice-president of the Los Angeles and Salt Lake railroad, said in Salt Lake yesterday. Adams intimated that the proposed branch to the Grand canyon would tap the Los Angeles and Salt Lake line at Lund, Utah.

OAKLAND MAN DEVELOPS MONO MARBLE QPARRY.

Edward Dinneen of the Dinneen Marble Works, Oakland, has just returned from Bridgeport, Mono county, where he went to make arrangements for the development of a travertine quarry, which he has purchased. According to Dinneen, this deposit is the second largest in the world, the largest being in Tivoli, Italy. The quarry, Dinneen reports, covers an extensive area, being composed chiefly of vari-colored marble and onyx.

Dinneen, in conjunction with Charles L Hayes, district attorney of Mono county, will develop the holding and the stone later will be put on the market as an ornamental marble suitable for bank and vestibule interiors. Dinneen is confident that the vicinity of San Francisco bay holds a great future for work of this class.

NOTES.

Western States Gas and Electric company has petitioned the Railroad Commission to issue $111,000 of its preferred stock at par to reimburse its treasury and to pay off indebtedness incurred for payments to its sinking fund.

Great Western Power Company of California has asked the Railroad Commission that it be permitted to pledge $7,500,000 series B 7 per cent bonds as collateral security for general lien 8 per cent bonds now outstanding and to issue an additional $1,000,000 series B 7 per cent bonds to be sold at not less than 90.

A comparison of Central Leather and American Hide and Leather in the six-year period, 1914-1920, indicates that both succeded materially in reducing the funded debt. Central Leather increased working capital since 1914 by $7,736,550 and inventories by $17,940,594. American Hide cut its working capital $2,589,321 but reduced inventory from $9,629,441 in 1914 to $9,259,186 at the close of 1920.

In the three months ended June 30, last, the American La France Fire Engine Company earned net $122,228 after deducting interest charges and taxes. This compares with $241,168 earned in the same period the preceding year, when the rating profits amounted to $275,231 against $226,-839 in the 1921 quarter.

The Cadillac Motor Company, a General Motors subsidiary, is applying the finishing touches to its new plant in Detroit, which covers nearly fifty acres. With completion the output will be increased over 50 per cent.

Loft, Inc has opened two new stores making the total number in operation 26 against 24 in March, 16 March last year and 13 in 1919. Reports that the company would need public financing to complete its program, which includes the building of a new factory in Long Island City, are denied.

Any quarterly dividend which may be declared by the directors of the Pennsylvania railroad will be payable August 31 to stock of record August 1 it is stated by officers of the company. Action will be taken at the meeting of the directors on July 27, and the announcement is in accord with the custom of the Pennsylvania to state in advance the time of meeting and the date on which dividends will be payable.

Entrance into the state for operation as a corporation has been made by the J. I. Case Plow Company of Delaware, a $10,000,000 agricultural implement concern long established in industrial circles. The filing of the company with the secretary of state of California is believed to forecast development of the company's business in the state.

DIVIDENDS.

Indian Pipe Line—Quarterly $2 share, payable August 15 to stock of July 19.

Pullman—Directors met in Chicago today and the regular dividend was expected.

National Cloak and Suit Company—$1.75 share, payable September 1, to stock of record on August 23.

DOLLAR MEASURE HELD UNFAIR TO NATION'S TRADE

By HOLLAND.

Exclusive to OAKLAND TRIBUNE

NEW YORK, July 20.—If it be true, as some of the experts report, that the prices of many products have now reached bottom, then there should be an end of the policy which has been so long followed of buying only those things of which the need is imperative, a "hand to mouth" policy.

Price reductions have been made so rapidly and in many instances have been so drastic that the impression has prevailed that lower prices are still to come. The public will discover speedily that in many cases the bottom prices have been reached. Then the beginning of large purchasing will be observed.

Happily for the wheat farmers the prices received for wheat are better than was expected. Wheat commands relatively speaking, a better price than corn or oats and considerably better than cotton. One of the explanations which is given for the higher price which wheat commands compared with other agricultural products is that from Russia little wheat, if any, will be exported. Formerly Russia's contribution was an important factor.

OUR TRADE TROUBLE.

There begins to be good understanding of the reason why our international trade, especially our exports, met with so great and sudden falling off in the twelve months which ended on June 30. It was a falling off more apparent than real. The trade continued but the money which that trade represented was far less than the amount of money received in that trade a year ago and in fact for three or four years.

We are accustomed to measuring our international trade in terms of dollars rather than quantity. If this fact be borne in mind then there will be good understanding of the chief features of our international trade. The reports from the Department of Commerce show that in the past twelve months the falling off in our trade so far as quantity is concerned was not very large. But in the early part of the previous fiscal year there began the era of price cutting. It was first observed in April. It acquired momentum and later in the year before the winter frost came had reached the bottom of its depression except in steel.

This was true not only of the United States but of the world and it is stated on high authority that this fall in world prices was the chief factor in the amazing and anxiety causing drop in our international trade. If we take the month of May of this year comparing our trade in that month with that of May, 1920, an excellent illustration of this changed situation can be obtained.

TWO HUNDRED MILLIONS.

In May of this year we imported commodities of the money value of a trifle more than $200,000,000. But in May of last year the money value of like imports was $430,000,000. Here then in a single month is a falling off of more than $200,000,000.

So also on the other hand the money value of our exports in May was $330,000,000 and this was nearly $100,000,000 less than the money value of our exports in May, 1921. Statistics of this kind, if superficially read, would indicate an enormous falling off in our international trade in May, 1920, as compared with May, 1921. But it was a falling off only in dollars. It reflects the reduction in prices for almost all commodities which began a little over a year ago. The Washington authorities do not report in detail the quantity of goods exported and imported but the reasons are excellent for assuming that the quantity was well maintained. There was a reduction in the amount of money received but not much reduction in the amount of goods imported and exported.

In fact we imported certain commodities in May of this year greater in amount than in May of last year. That is true of silk. This commodity was bought by American silk manufacturers in greatly increased amounts as compared with like purchases in May of last year. In fact the increase was about 75 per cent. On the other hand there was a falling off in price and as it is customary to measure our trade in terms of dollars rather than in quantities it would seem as though our international trade in raw silk had decreased. But in quantities it had really increased 75 per cent.

Going back of these figures it is reasonable to infer that the silk industry of the United States which was one of the first to be hard hit, rapidly is recovering.

IN THE MATTER OF WOOL.

The woolen industry of the United States and the wool producers of this country were early affected by the fall in prices. Yet there was an increase in the purchase of wool produced in other countries and imported by the United States of nearly 15 per cent in May of this year as compared with May of last. But there had been a decrease of considerably more than 50 per cent, in value. Therefore while the money value of wool imports was greatly decreased the quantity of wool imported was increased.

A showing somewhat similar is made by that part of our international trade which cotton represents. Taking again the month of May for an example, we exported more cotton by 33 per cent in that month than we did in May of the previous year, but there was an almost appalling decline in the market price. It was equivalent to 61 per cent. Therefore measured in dollars our international trade in cotton was very low but measured in quantity as much greater than was the case a year ago.

May was taken as a typical month and the statistics for May of this year and of last come from the Department of Commerce at Washington. But what was true of May was relatively speaking true of other months of the year. Measured by quantity our international trade did not fall off appreciably. We sold and bought in this international trade almost as much as we did in the previous year. But we did not have to pay as large an amount for the goods that came in nor did we receive as large an amount of money for the goods as we sold to other parts of the world. When our international trade for the year just ended is under consideration and when some anxiety is expressed lest the figures indicate a very alarming slump in that trade, it should be borne in mind that this falling off represents lower prices that prevail throughout the world and that we are buying and selling in quantity practically as much as we did in previous years, leaving the special commodities we exported which were due to war demands out of the consideration.

LIST OF OIL TAX RATES AFFECTS MEXICO STOCKS

London Exchange Reacts From Rally; Equipments Stronger.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The stock market moved within narrow limits at the dull opening of today's session. Changes among leaders were limited to fractions. Mexican Petroleum was the only exception, reacting a point and then rallying moderately. Other Mexican oils were irregular on publication of figures which indicated that the export tax imposed by the Mexican government, in some instances, equaled or exceeded the sales price. Steels, equipments and rails were firm. Exchange on London reacted slightly from yesterday's rally.

Mexican Petroleum rallied 2 points from its first reversal, but gave way to further pressure. European and lower priced domestic oils were firm. Moderate buying of General Electric American Car and Baldwin Locomotive strengthened the equipments. Steels were listless within fractional limits.

Northern Pacific and Great Northern were strongest of the rails. New York Central and some of the others also improving.

Oils were under renewed pressure during the mid-session. California Petroleum lost 1 point. American Tobacco also became heavy, but American Wool and obscure specialties, such as American Ice and Endicott Johnson, seemed to be favored by bull pools.

NEW YORK SUN REVIEW.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The New York Evening Sun's financial review today said:

Trading on the stock exchange started off early this morning with a promise of better things; that is, there was some semblance of animation for the first hour and prices rallied a point or two with comparative ease, but the market failed to climb out of the narrow rut in which it has been holding for the past two weeks.

The motors were subjected to considerable selling pressure at times. Profit taking in Studebaker resulted from the belief that directors will not declare an extra dividend at the forthcoming meeting as had been rumored when the stock was marked up from 70. Sugar and leather shares gave a good account of themselves, owing to more cheerful advices from the industries represented.

Stock dealings remained at dead center throughout the afternoon. The market closed dull with prices showing smaller changes compared with yesterday.

RAILWAY CHIEFS DEBATE FUNDING PROPOSAL TODAY

New York Meeting Expected to Disclose How U. S. Will Render Help.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The plan which the steering committee of the railway has evolved in co-operation with government officials for funding the amount spent on capital expenditures during Federal control. was presented to all members of the association today at a meeting in the New Haven board room at the Grand Central Terminal.

It was intimated yesterday that the full details of the plan be made public after today's meeting but this apparently hinged on its acceptance by the railroad executives.

It was believed that the plan follows the suggestions made in Washington despatches the past few days, that the War Finance Corporation lend its support to obviating the necessity of a special appropriation by Congress to place the railroads in immediate funds.

Inspecting the railway situation, one authority today had the following to say of the coming reports on June business.

Railroad reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission for June will show further improvement in net operating income according to officials of western systems. It explained that the volume of traffic in the middle and far west has increased somewhat more than a mere seasonal increase would indicate. One executive is quoted as pointing out that the postponing of maintenance work and repairing until after July 1, to take advantage of reductions in railroad wages, should be reflected in the June net figures.

Battle Over Almond Tariff Still to Rage

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—California Almond Growers' last hope in the House of Representatives for minimum tariff demands of 5 and 15 cents on unshelled and shelled nuts, respectively, was lost today when the House, acting as a committee of the whole, voted a schedule of four and twelve cents. Publication of news despatches has caused a flood of telegrams from growers asking officials of the growers' exchange, it was given out if they should harvest the crop due to ripen within two or three weeks.

George W. Pierce, president of the growers, who is 72 years old and one of the pioneer almond men in the state said today:

"This is a disappointment and may throw California almond growing into a chaotic state, coming as it does just before our harvest. We have been victims of our own sincerity in asking only what was necessary to have 100,000 acres of groves and $65,000,000 investment and our lives' toil and sacrifice. The ways and means committee, apparently, thought we played a usual political game of asking more than we expected and more than was necessary. Hundreds of our growers are on the edge of bankruptcy with 3000 tons of our 1919 and 1920 crops unsold.

"The 4@12c schedule is welcome news to the representatives of the growers of southern Europe and foreign shippers. We can only fight to the last ditch through the Senate and through conference committees of the house."

T. C. Tucker, manager of the Almond Growers' exchange, the cooperative organization of almond farmers, was expected to call an emergency meeting of the board of directors to lay plans for the fight in the senate to revise the schedules voted by the House.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 20.—Possibilities of a railroad embargo against grain shipments to Chicago had a bearish influence on the wheat market today. Opening quotations, which ranged from ¼c decline to ¾c advance, with September $1.28@1.29¼, and December, $1.32@1.32¾, were followed by material setbacks all around.

Subsequently forecasts of hot weather in the Northwest rallied the market and so, too, did indications of liberal export business. The effect, however, was only transient. Prices closed heavy, 1¾c to 3c net lower, with Sept., $1.25¾@1.26, and Dec., $1.29@1.29½.

PACIFIC FOOD PRICES AND WORLD'S COMMERCE

TOMATOES GAIN GOOD PRICE FOR GROWERS, CLAIM

Trade Fairly Active; Stronger Market Foreseen; Other Produce News.

Dealers on the Oakland commission market assert that money has been lost by them in the last few days in the handling of carloads of tomatoes. As a result, declining delivery and a stronger market is predicted.

The trade in tomatoes, notwithstanding these assertions, has been fairly active, although at lower prices. Southern crates sold down to $1.50 today and below. Stocktons are quoted at $3 and more on the lug, but sales below that figure have been frequent.

Good prices, said to run near the $3 mark on lugs, are being obtained by growers in the field, in the interior areas, dealers here report.

Turlock cantelope deliveries still were light and prices ranged up to $3, but averaged about $2.75 on crates in most stalls offering Turlocks.

The market now is engaged in a cleanup of Imperial Valley canteloupes and offerings of uneven quality sold down to $2 and below on standard sized crates today.

Peaches are showing increasing strength with every active trade. Baskets under competitive bidding went up as high as $1.75 in some cases today and lugs were quoted at $3 and $3.25. There is a markedly diminished crop of river peaches and the delivery is under the demand in the Oakland market steadily. Heavy shipments of the fruit are expected to be brought in tomorrow.

Local canners, who have been taking only choicest apricots from the produce market, today were more liberal in their buying and many boxes of seconds were turned over to the packers at prices reported to have been between $30 and $35 a ton.

Berry prices remain practically steady, but the quality of strawberries delivered in the last few days has shown improvement. Deliveries of loganberries are growing steadily smaller. Raspberries hold about constant both in delivery and price.

OREGON HOGS HIGHER.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 20.—Recent sharp advances in the hog market and a rise in country dressed pork, bringing best offerings to 16 cents a pound, the highest in several months, are attributed by commission men to shortage of supplies due to shippers being busy with haying and grain crops. They said it would not take much increase in receipts to force quotations down again.

The Waterfront

Now that the marine strike is about over several of the coastwise steamers are preparing to sail after being tied up since May 1. The steamer Mayfair of the Charles Nelson Company left Oakland Harbor yesterday for Eureka to load a cargo of lumber for the Sunset Lumber Company. The steamers Rainier and the Northland of the Albers Milling Company will leave Oakland in a few days to resume their regular traffic between Oakland and Puget Sound ports. It is thought that before the end of the week the entire fleet of steam schooners numbering about 125 will be here on their regular runs. A large amount of freight is awaiting shipment to northern ports.

The stern wheel steamer Crockett broke down in the bay this morning and was towed to a nearby dock for repairs. She has a cargo of sugar on board to be loaded into a steamer for up the coast. The Crockett was formerly the steamer J. H. Corcoran, which was sunk by the steamer Seminole during a fog off Alcatraz Island some years ago. She was raised and rebuilt and now carries freight from river points.

The steamer West Haven, which sailed from Baltimore on July 16 for this port, returned to that port. The reason was not given in the telegram.

Steamer West Imboden, en route to France from Galveston, has arrived at Key West with engine troubles.

The Danish motor ship Australien, which arrived in port a few days ago from Antwerp, was taken to Parr Terminal this morning where she will unload two thousand tons of general cargo.

After a passage of 83 days from Molendo, the barkentine Katherine Mackall arrived here, in ballast. She was spoken off the lightship several days ago but was compelled to stay outside until a favorable wind came up.

The Pacific Steamship Company's steamer Queen arrived here today from Los Angeles with freight and passengers. It was one day late in making the voyage, due to troubles with her feed pump, after leaving the southern port. After repairs are completed she will sail for Puget Sound.

The Matson liner Maui, Captain Peter Johnson, arrived from Honolulu last night bringing 231 cabin passengers; among her cargo was 150,000 cases of canned pineapple, 52,848 bags of raw sugar, 2367 bunches of bananas, 350 sacks of rice, 85 bags of coffee and 44 crates of fresh pineapples. The Oceanic Steamship Company steamer Sonoma also arrived from Australia via Honolulu. She brought 5000 cases of canned pineapple and 23,000 bags of sugar from Honolulu, and a general cargo, besides 700,000 pounds in gold in her treasure box. Among her passengers was Thomas Ockerby of Australia, who was arrested by United States Marshal L. B. Conlon on charge of embezzlement on instructions from Australia. The steamer Maui was also met at the dock by officers who arrested Percy W. Smith, a chemist, who resides in Redwood City. He is charged with issuing a worthless check for $177 to the manager of the hotel at the Islands where he was stopping. A Chinese, Hing Tong, was also arrested on the Maui on a statutory charge from Honolulu.

The steamers Stanley Dollar, Charles Watson and the West Katun arrived on Puget Sound yesterday from this port with general cargo, and will return after taking on another cargo. The Dollar will load part cargo on the Sound, and then come here to finish before she proceeds on her journey to New York.

The American fishing launch K-153 was seized by the cutter Malaspina on Sunday night when she was caught poaching within the three-mile limit off the west coast of Vancouver Island. She was brought into Esquimalt Harbor. E. Cope and E. Karlstom were aboard but were released and the vessel held pending investigation by the fisheries officials of British Columbia.

Change of masters registered at the U. S. Custom House: Captain H. Hansen, steamer Shasta; Captain H. G. Lawson, steamer Celestial; Captain F. L. Hamma, steamer Hammac; Captain J. T. Stephenson, steamer Capital City; Captain H. Henriksen, schooner Resolute; Captain P. F. Wood, gas schooner Dorothea; Captain Charles E. Larsen, steamer Celilo; Captain F. N. Fowler, gas launch Port Costa.

Edward L. Eyre & Company have chartered one of the United States Shipping Board steamers to load barley at this port for the United Kingdom at 65 shillings one port or 6 7-8 for two ports. The name of the vessel is not yet given.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION TEACHERS HEAR OF EFFORTS TO MAKE YOUNG MEXICO PLAY

Leaders in physical education in the United States at the twenty-eighth annual convention of the American Physical Education Association (left to right), upper row, EARL WHITE, University of California; CLINTON BIRD, state supervisor physical education, Georgia; G. C. DELAPORTE, assistant superintendent of schools, Chicago; A. BORLESKE, Washington; DR. DUDLEY B. REED, national president; H. H. HINDMAN, Oakland; GEORGE HJELTE, California state assistant superviser; MISS MAUDE WILDS, Oakland.

Lower row, JAY B. NASH, director of playgrounds, Oakland, and national chairman of program; PROFESSOR F. L. KLEEBERGER, University of California; DR. CLARKE W. HETHERINGTON, California state supervisor; MISS ELIZABETH R. STONER, president Bay Cities Physical Education Association; DR. LELA BEEBE, Stanford University; MISS HELEN BUNTING, Stanford University; MISS RUTH ELLIOTT, University of California.

Below is MISS JANE MAGNESI, as the Spirit of the Hidden Treasure, in the dance pageant presented yesterday in Mosswood park by the local recreation department.

VARIOUS PLANS OF CITY RECREATION ARE OUTLINED

Methods in Chicago and Los Angeles Are Detailed by Superintendent.

How the people of Mexico are being taught to play n an effort to solve the national problem; how Chicago is putting over a physical education program for its school children; and how Los Angeles is carrying forward a large project of summer recreation camps were presented this morning at the second day's program of the twenty-eighth annual convention of the American Physical Education Association meeting in the Auditorium Opera House. Enrique C. Aguirre, national physical director for the Y. M. C. A., in Mexico; G. C. Delaporte, assistant superintendent of schools in Chicago, and C. B. Raitt, superintendent of playgrounds in Los Angeles, were the principal speakers. Dr. David Starr Jordan, president emeritus of Stanford University, who was scheduled for an address, postponed his appearance to Saturday when the delegates will be entertained at Palo Alto.

"The big job in Mexico today is to teach the people, 75 per cent of whom are illiterate, to play," declared Aguirre. "We are concentrating upon this problem as a factor in the solution of our national life. The one play instinct that remains with them are the bull fights.

"To get the Mexican girls to play basket and volley ball and games requiring such strenuous effort is exceedingly difficult. The boys play easier," he said.

CHICAGO PROGRAM TOLD.

"Tieing up school athletics with the playgrounds was Chicago's large achievement, according to Assistant Superintendent Delaporte in outlining in detail a public education program in that city.

"The business of the public schools is to train boys and girls for life," Delaporte said. "Our job is to make them physically fit by the administration of a safe and sane program of education."

Every new school building in Chicago is having installed as part of its plant and playground, athletic field or stadium, the educator asserted. He urged the adoption of a basket ball and scoring system in elementary schools, which gave points for sportsmanship and reliability rather than victory. The Chicago basketball score gives 60 points for language, conduct of team and spectators, to and from the game as well as during, etc.; 30 points for promptness, etc. A code of penalties has been adopted. Teaching elementary school athletics by volunteer high school coaches and football by movies is in vogue in Chicago.

Playground projects developed in every school in the city with a physical instructor in every school of upward of 1500 students, Delaporte declared to be a board of education policy. Co-ordination of the schools and playground systems he named the "Big Idea" of the year.

DETAILS OF METHODS

Chicago's schools number: elementary, 287; high, 24. One hundred and sixty-four physical instructors hold temporary appointments. All athletic activities are centralized under a bureau of physical education and the schools are organized into a Public School Athletic League operating under the board of education. During the past year 1199 girls' teams, including approximately 17,000 students; 1826 teams, numbering approximately 26,550 students, were at work in Chicago school grounds. Three large athletic fields in separate parts of the city are at present being made ready.

Methods of running a mountain recreation camp at a maximum rate of $14.25 for two weeks outing, including transportation of $5.75 and building up a treasury was outlined by the Los Angeles superintendent of playgrounds. Three camps accommodating 3500 persons at these rates returned $4000 to the directors for development at the end of last season, Raitt reported.

The Los Angeles recreation camp is located in the San Bernardino mountains, where a $25,000 permanent equipment has been installed. Operating since 1911, the sanitary system has been so well planned that no single case of illness has been reported.

DELEGATES ENTERTAINED.

Convention delegates were entertained this afternoon by the San Francisco recreation department under the direction of Miss M. Philomene Hagen, with the assistance of William Sweigert, Miss Grace Spenser and Melvyn Cronin. A sightseeing tour of the city preceded a trip through Chinatown. Chinese students led the visitors through the Oriental quarters. No program is scheduled for tonight.

The Amy Morris Homans Club of Central California, representing the department of hygiene, Wellesley College, will meet at a 6 o'clock dinner at the Hotel Claremont.

Physical educators are finding a large interest in the exhibition booths at the Municipal Auditorium, where equipment and literature bearing upon their work are being shown.

The general public is invited to tomorrow night's meeting in the auditorium, at which Professor C. E. Rugh of the University of California will speak on "Worthy Use of Leisure." A regatta on Lake Merritt is announced for 7:45 p. m.

Physical Educators Told of Proposed Playground Plans

Oakland's proposed recreation center adjacent to Lake Merritt and the Municipal Auditorium was presented to the attention of the delegates to the twenty-eighth annual convention of the American Physical Education Association when on behalf of the mayor Herman Johnson, member of the board of playground directors, offered the official welcome. The greeting was made a preliminary to the pageant in which scores of young girls from the city's playgrounds participated in Mosswood park during the afternoon.

With the reclaiming and equipping of 100 acres of land within the heart of the city, with an approximate valuation of $6,000,000, Johnson declared that Oakland would possess one of the most complete and modern community recreation centers in the United States. The project of dredging Lake Merritt and filling in the land near the Auditorium was outlined by the speaker.

5000 SEE PAGEANT.

Five thousand convention visitors and local residents thronged Mosswood park yesterday afternoon to witness a demonstration of the city's playground work and the dance pageant of "The Hidden Treasure," founded upon a California Indian tradition and presented under the direction of Mrs. E. A. Hollington. Oakland took first honors in the posture parade with which the outdoor program was opened. More than 1500 elementary school students from Oakland, Berkeley and San Francisco contested for place. Berkeley won places for its schools in the tests of skill and games.

Men and women gathered from all parts of the nation, headed by Dr. Dudley B. Reed of the University of Chicago, president of the Physical Education Association, were given places of honor at the reproduction of the pageant which was offered Saturday on the lawns at Mosswood.

Mrs. Addie Mosher, president of the Board of playground directors, was hostess to 300 convention delegates at tea at the conclusion of the recreation program. Assisting her in extending hospitality to the distinguished visitors was a coterie of feminine leaders, including Mrs. Aaron Schloss, Mrs. Carl Williams, Mrs. Bessie Wood Gustason, Mrs. A. E. Carter and others.

Y. M. C. A. SECTION MEETS.

S. Wiley Winsor, San Francisco, presided at a meeting of the Y. M. C. A. section meeting at 4.30 p. m. yesterday.

Physical education in the industries was under discussion following the athletic cabaret dinner in Mosswood Park last night. The speakers were Robert Parker, vice-president of the E. K. Wood Lumber Company, and Van Britton, Pacific Gas and Electric Company. Again Oakland demonstrated its playground work, representative groups from the various industrial organizations putting on a volley ball program.

"Aims and Purposes of Physical Education in Terms of Modern Life" was the subject which Dr. Reed discussed in his annual address given last evening in Wheeler hall, University of California campus.

It Wasn't Kidney Trouble! His Ailment Was Caused By Self-Poisoning

Allen was sure he had kidney trouble. He felt half dead, no appetite, headache, pain, fever etc., afternoon — in fact, an analysis showed albumen and pus in the urine. What more proof could anyone ask? Yet, he learned to his amazement that the whole trouble was a result of auto-intoxication or self-poisoning.

Three bottles of Plantlax removed the cause of the trouble by cleansing his system of poisons and restoring healthy action to the liver and bowels.

Many people have ailments directly due to self-poisoning, and wonder why medicines don't seem to help. The reason is that they treat the symptom instead of the cause. Plantlax rids the system of poisons, and nature does the rest. Simple, but true.

Plantlax is purely herbal—contains no minerals. Anyone can take it—safe for all the family. Price $1 per bottle. Sold by the Owl Drug Co. and all leading druggists everywhere —Advertisement.

HEY, GOOD-FELLOW, HERE'S YOUR CHANCE!

Bill and Joe and Jim were going on a vacation. But they are not unless— And everybody is afraid to tell them. They are the young sons of widowed mothers, well mannered, clever American lads.

Bill is 14. He obtained a working permit for the summer, but he is so young and not very strong that a job was hard to find. So he has minded the younger children while mother has gone about her wage earning. Always he has dreamed that August 1 will see him headed toward Oakland's Recreation Camp in the high Sierras.

And there is Joe and Jim—7 and 8 years old, who have been practicing in their mother's wash tub just how they are going to catch the trout and doing Marathons up and down the street, to be in condition for their hikes. They, too, thought August 1 would show them the wonders in the Stanislaus Forest.

Now there is no money to send any of them! The three lads might have their full two weeks play and fun for $53.

The Associated Charities is asking who will contribute toward that vacation fund. Those that love boys may send their gifts or checks to the office in the City Hall and make three youngsters happy.

If you see it in The TRIBUNE tell them so.

AUTO CAMP PARK PLANS OPPOSED

BERKELEY, July 20. — A protest against the establishment of an auto camp park on the tract bounded by Sacramento, Rose, Smith and Cedar streets, is being formulated and will be presented to the city council, asking that body to rescind its action in acquiring the tract for camp sites. A call for a protest meeting tonight in the Jefferson school has been issued, and residents of the neighborhood are signing petitions to the council.

Leaders in the move include Pedro Saiz, foreign freight agent for the Santa Fe, whose home is at 1430 Holly street; W. S Coughlan, 1525 Sacramento street; W. S. Hanford, 1410 Holly street; T. Ramsing, 1509 Holly street; W. R. Southall, 1595 Holly street, and others

The council is acquiring a lease of the tract of 10.37 acres, owned by Miss Sophie Schmidt, sister of City Commissioner George Schmidt, with the option of purchasing it at the end of eighteen months. The city will pay the taxes on the property as rental, in addition to $40 per month for the house that stands on the tract.

The objection is raised because the section is said to be a growing residential section, and because the property is adjacent to the Jefferson school.

RUMANIANS WILL ASK RIGHT TO HAVE TWO WIVES

BERLIN, July 20.—A semi-official Bucharest newspaper announces that at the next session of the Chamber of Deputies a bill will be introduced making it legal for men to have two wives if they so desire to challenge fate.

The bill, it is claimed, will enter Parliament with the support of a number of deputies. The attitude taken is that if the heir to the throne can marry two wives Rumanians should have the same rights and privileges.

The Crown Prince married Zizi Lambrine, eloping with her to Odessa, where the couple were wedded in a church. She refused to be divorced, but the Crown Prince recently married Princess Helena of Greece. A special law was passed to legalize this union.

PETERSEN CASE MAY HAVE TO BE HEARD ALL OVER

Only One Member of Board That Heard Evidence to Render Decision.

A possibility that all the charges in the Petersen case will have to be filed over again and that new hearings must be held developed today with the discovery that the civil service board, as no wconstituted, may be without power to render a decision.

The tangle has developed, according to John Chambers, president of the board, because of the fact that Ralph Beebe's resignation as a board member has been accepted and that the term of office of Major Harry F. Huber, the third member, has expired. Technically there remains but one board member, Chambers, and it is a question if any decision may be rendered by him or by a new board which would include men who did not hear the evidence.

When two new members are appointed, or the old ones renamed, Chambers will ask the city attorney to render a decision as to the powers of the new board to render a decision on case heard by the old.

If City Attorney Gray holds that this may be done it will be necessary to have the reporters notes transcribed and the council will be called upon to appropriate between $2500 and $3000 for the work.

An ordinance was introduced in the council last March by former Commissioner of Public Health and Safety F. F. Morse, asking funds to pay for transcribing of the notes, but it was defeated.

Another question that may face the new board if Gray decides that they cannot give a decision after reading the transcript but that another hearing must be held, is who will be the one that will file the charges.

The charges on which Petersen was deposed as captain of inspectors were filed by former Commissioner Morse. Petersen was discharged from the department on September 10, 1920, for the second time on twenty-one separate charges. Several months prior he was discharged by Morse but he took his case to the district court of appeals and was ordered reinstated on September 9 of last year. The following day he was again discharged for the second time.

It took the civil service board from September until March 8, 1921, to complete hearing the charges in the case.

Beebe, although he had presented his resignation to Mayor Davie in June, did not know that it had been formally accepted until yesterday. Both he and Huber contend that they cannot vote on a decision because they are no longer members of the board.

YACHTSMAN HAS NARROW ESCAPE

How John Casserly Jr. narrowly escaped with his life when the yacht Reliance ran into a squall on the bay late yesterday, was told when the four young society leaders of the Hillsborough Yacht Club who were piloting the craft on a cruise to Burlingame from here arrived.

The skipper was Austin Moore and others of the sailors beside Casserly were Gerald Williamson and Michael Casserly.

While crossing the bay the Reliance ran into strong head winds during a squall and John Casserly Jr. was carried overboard. Several of the sails of the Reliance were carried away.

By allowing the vessel to drift for a time and then tacking, Skipper Moore finally brought the yacht alongside of Casserly who was then rescued. The waters were quite rough due to the wind and it was only due to Casserly being an excellent swimmer that his life was saved, it was said.

The yacht club will purchase several more sailing vessels shortly. They will be moored off Coyote Point. A committee of the club was on hand at Burlingame to greet the sailors after their first trip in the Reliance.

Hawaii Japanese Urged to Work For U. S. Interest

HONOLULU, July 20.—"As long as you are in America, work for the interests of America," said the Most. Rev. Sekizen Arai, chief Sodo priest of Japan, in a message to Japanese Buddhists of Honolulu delivered on the eve of his departure for mainland United States.

The Rev. Arai, who is visiting America partly for the purpose of studying certain aspects of American-Japanese relations, stressed the necessity for good citizenship in the fullest meaning of the phrase throughout his address to his fellow countrymen in Honolulu. He referred to the greatness of Benjamin Franklin, exhorting his hearers to emulate the great American.

CROWD SEES PAIR ACCUSED BY WIFE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20. — Several score of spectators, the majority of whom were women, were on hand in Police Judge Daniel O'Brien's court today for a glimpse of Mrs. C. Edith Prudhomme and Wallace Van Winkle Alexander, wealthy Los Angeles broker, accused by the latter's wife, Mary F. Alexander, of immorality. At first a wave of disappointment crept over the audience when Attorney F. W. Murphy, representing Sullivan, Sullivan and Roche, counsel for the accused, declared that they were not in court and asked for a continuance of the arraignment.

Judge O'Brien insisted that the defendants be present and the spectators, many of whom were about to leave, decided to wait awhile. Within an hour both were brought into court and the case was then allowed to go over until Friday.

The arrest of the couple and their release on bail followed a recital by Mrs Alexander to the bond and warrant clerk of a long story of domestic tragedy, in the course of which she said she had found her husband in the apartment of Mrs. Prudhomme when she went there in company with her two brothers and a policeman.

ALAMEDA ASKS FOR INCREASED WATER SUPPLY

ALAMEDA, July 20.—Following a special meeting of the committee of the whole of the Alameda city council last night decided to request the Railroad Commission to order the Eastbay Water company to furnish an adequate supply of water in the West End district of the city.

The request from the council will be made within a few days, according to City Manager C. E. Hickok. It is the contention of the city officials that the West End district can be supplied with comparatively little expense on the part of the East Bay Water company. The company at present has a sixteen-inch main ending at Ninth street, Oakland. The Alameda officials figure that the extension of this main could be carried across the estuary along Webster street as far south as Neptune beach. This will give an adequate water supply for both household use and fire fighting purposes.

At the present time, according to reports made by Chief Walter Steinbeck of the Alameda fire department, should an extensive conflagration occur in that part of Alameda the local department because of inadequate water facilities would be almost entirely unable to combat it.

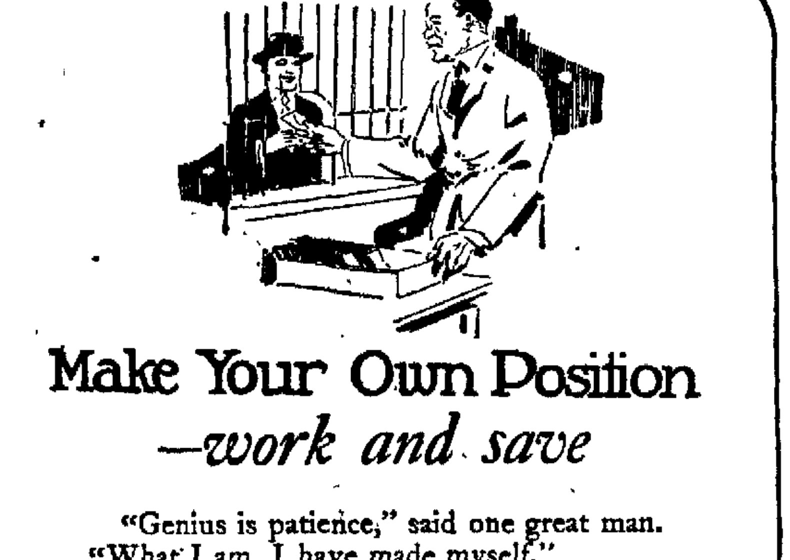

No Warrants Unless Expenses Guaranteed

Deputy District Attorney Earl Warren today announced there will be no warrant issued for "Dr." Warner unless a guarantee is offered for the expenses of witnesses to be summoned from Denver.

Warren said the law does not permit the subpoenaing of witnesses from another state and that as the check for $2,500 deposited by Warner in the Alameda bank was drawn on a Denver bank it would be necessary to have witnesses from Colorado to show that the check was worthless. He said the state will not attempt to extradite Warner unless there is a guarantee that the necessary witnesses will be sent and that their expenses will be paid.
